MR. HUSTIS SELECTED

Slated For Presidency of the New Haven Railroad

It is said that Mr. James H. Hustis, of Newton, vice president of the Boston and Albany R. R. Co., will become president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford R. R. Co., as soon as Mr. Howard Elliott who has just succeeded

MR. JAMES H. HUSTIS, Slated for Presidency of New Haven Railroad

Mr. C. S. Mellen as president of that company, becomes chairman of the executive board of that company, which will be about November first.

In commenting on this piece of news the Boston Transcript has published the following editorial:—

It is doubtful if the New Haven directorate could find a better man for president of the system than J. H. Hustis, the manager of the Boston & Albany road. The quieting effect that his assumption of authority had upon England transportation interests we must remember that the Boston & Albany is a very important factor among them. Its affairs have in recent years moved smoothly, which is the best evidence that they have been conducted efficiently and with due regard for the interests of the public as well as of the system of which the road is a part. The New Haven field is broader and, at the present time, more complex, and needs for its immediate oversight the services of a man with such qualities

WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Upper Falls Makes It Three Straight From Catholic Club

Last Saturday afternoon on the Newton Upper Falls Playground, before a crowd of 4000 people, the home team won from the Newton Catholic Club by a score of 9 to 8. Upper Falls, who had won the two previous games played their same lineup, but the Catholic Club was strengthened by Foley, the former Holy Cross and Boston American pitcher, and Nelson, the former catcher of the St. John's team.

Upper Falls started after the game in the first inning, Halliday leading off with a single, and the next two batters following with bunts, filling the bases, which, coupled with a base on balls, and consecutive hitting, netted a four-run lead. Both teams played good ball after this till the seventh, spectacular plays being pulled off by Barnes and Costigan of the Catholic Club and Donahue and Crowley of the Upper Falls.

In the seventh inning Estelle hit the first two men up and after getting three balls and two strikes on Foley, he hit for three bases and came in on error of Burkes. Before the inning was over, West Newton, through good hitting and a few errors was leading by a score of 7 to 4. Upper Falls was unable to score in the last of the seventh, but with good clean hitting by Halliday, Crowley, Yates and Ryan, scored 5 runs, again taking the lead. The ninth inning rally of the Catholic Club came near tying up the game, for with two Texas leaguers and a hit they scored one run and had a man on third and second when Donahue ran into left field and pulled down a fly ball. The best playing in the game was done by Donahue, Halliday, Crowley and Yates for Upper Falls, and Barnes, Costigan, Duffy and Linnehan for the Catholic Club.

as Mr. Hustis has shown. He has put his own road upon a basis where any of the many available good railroad men can keep it up to the high level which it has attained as the result of his efforts, and should he be invited to assume the larger responsibility, the public satisfaction would be general and genuine.

MAN WITH AXE

Breaks Into Three Newtonville Residences With Considerable Damage

Newtonville was visited yesterday by a person known to the police of Boston and vicinity as "the man with the axe." His first visit was at the residence of E. T. Trofiter on Washington park about one o'clock, during the temporary absence of the family. He used an axe to break open a large and heavy safe and even made quite a hole in it, when Mrs. Trofiter returned and hearing the noise went to a neighbor's and called the police by telephone. While waiting the arrival of the police, it is said that three men attempted to guard the house, but as they all remained at the front door, the burglar left by the rear door, leaving his cap behind him, and could not be found when the police arrived. A scarf pin was missed at this house.

He was next seen about three o'clock leaving the residence of Alderman Fred M. Blanchard on Clyde street. At this place he had free rein to exercise as much malicious mischief as he pleased. He entered through a cellar window and used an axe to break down the door leading into the upper part of the house. He passed over silver in the dining room, put his fingers in a jar of peanut butter, went thru the pockets of garments hanging on the clothes pole, tore down and carried off several pairs of window curtains, turned desks and drawers upside down, dumping their contents on beds and floors, took several razors, overlooked a dollar bill in one desk and acted altogether in a most peculiar way and evidently justifies the belief that he was somewhat crazed.

A third break was later discovered, evidently made some time yesterday afternoon, when the residence of Mr. Horton S. Allen on Walnut place, Newtonville, was found in a similar condition to that of Alderman Blanchard. Entrance was made thru a cellar window and the door at the head of the stairs smashed in with an axe. The entire house was ransacked, things being thrown in every direction. As in the Blanchard house, the man passed over valuable silverware and so far as can be learned only took a small jewel case containing pins and other small articles.

ALCOHOL CHAT

Points for your consideration. We have always had a respect for our business, particularly that part of it which relates to the manufacture of Alcohol. We have earnestly tried since February 2, 1872, to make the products of our Still, (Alcohol and Spirits) the best types of their kind. It is possible now to obtain from leading family Druggists and Grocers, Graves' Grain Alcohol in sealed 8, 16, and 32 ounce bottles, each of which has over the cork a strip label bearing our firm name signature. If your dealer can't supply you, he is missing an opportunity to give you the best thing made in Alcohol. If he wants to substitute on Alcohol, might he not want to substitute on something else? Ask for what you want and insist on getting it.

MR. LOWELL APPOINTED

Chairman of New State Board of Labor and Industry

Mr. James A. Lowell of Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, was nominated Wednesday by Governor Foss as chairman of the recently created State Board of Labor and Industry. Mr. Lowell is a native of this city, a son

This board was provided for by chap. 726, Acts of 1912, and required the Governor and Council to establish the board on or before March 1, 1913, and it was expected to be able to familiarize itself in its duties by June 1, on

MR. JAMES A. LOWELL, Chairman State Board of Labor and Industry

of former Judge John Lowell and has served the city as a member of the board of aldermen and as a representative at the State House. In more recent years he was chairman of the commission which reported the present law on Workmen's compensation.

One member of the new Labor Board must be an employer, one a wage-earner, one a physician, one a sanitary engineer, and one a woman salaries $1500 to the chairman and $1000 for each of the others.

The Board shall appoint a Commissioner of Labor, salary $5000 to $7500, with two deputy commissioners and industrial inspectors; also 24 health inspectors, of whom four shall be women.

The Board may investigate the conditions existing in any line of industry carried on by inhabitants of the Commonwealth, and such investigations may be extended outside of the Commonwealth to procure information for the promotion of industrial development or the improvement of industrial conditions. The Board shall receive all complaints concerning conditions existing in any industry carried on by inhabitants of the Commonwealth, or concerning alleged violations of any laws enforced under its direction, and shall thereupon make or direct all needful and appropriate investigations and prosecutions. It may employ experts or other necessary assistants to aid in the performance of any duty imposed upon it by law. It may make rules not inconsistent with existing law for carrying out the provisions of this act.

"NUMBER, PLEASE"

Telephone users have noticed that since Thursday, the telephone operators have been using a new form of response when asking for the number with which the calling party desires to speak. The old way has been to put the query "Number?" with a rising inflection. The new form is "Number, please?" This operating feature has been adopted by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, beginning on the first of August. The two-word query will undoubtedly be more pleasing to the ear, and the addition of the polite word "please" to the questioning "Number?" will give a fresh touch of courtesy to the service to which the public will respond with a similar spirit.

THREE WAYS TO CAN BEANS

Salylic Acid, Salt and Vinegar Have Been Successfully Used on the String Variety.

Three ways of canning string beans, all of which are successful, are, by using salylic acid, salt and vinegar. To those who like vinegar on their beans anyway the vinegar method is the best and safest.

The beans are cooked perfectly done and a few may be canned at a time when they are being cooked for dinner, as it rarely happens that the housewife can get enough beans for more than a can or two at a time.

Put the cooked beans in glass jars, add three tablespoons of good vinegar to each quart and seal the bottle while boiling hot.

There will be no spoiled jars, for they will be both canned and pickled. When ready to use them simply heat but do not boil. Since so many use vinegar when eating string beans this will be no objection.

In using salt the same method is followed except that a teaspoonful of salt is placed on top of the beans after each quart can is filled and then sealed hot.

This method is not as successful as the vinegar. The use of preservatives as salylic acid and benzoic acid we are inclined to recommend less highly.

COOK'S ADVICE ON ROASTS

Many Valuable Suggestions Are Offered on How to Regulate Your Oven.

That water should not be put into an open meat-pan its place being supplied by bits of fat from the roast, or by dripping.

That a rack made of wire should support meat in the roasting-pan to prevent it from sticking to the bottom and being unevenly roasted.

That all cut meat should first be laid on the rack skin-side downward, provided the hottest air is above, in order that the lean part, from which juices might escape, may be at once crusted over to retain them.

That a six-pound roast in a little oven requires one hour's roasting to be rare, and one hour and a quarter's to be well done.

That to lessen such a heat at once for roasting properly, after the searing is completed, a pan of cold water may be set into the oven and the draft somewhat reduced.

That the double roasting-pan, with close-fitting covers, are most convenient both for large and small roasts, as basting is not required, and they keep the small roasts from drying out.

OLD OVEN TEST STILL USED

Sheet of Linen Writing Paper Placed in Stove Will Show the Temperature.

The old-fashioned test for ascertaining the heat of the oven before putting in a cake to bake is still in good standing even among the cooking-school generation of cooks. The writing paper test is the favorite one. Lay a sheet of ordinary linen writing paper in the oven and let it stay for five minutes—by the clock. If the paper is just nicely browned in that time the oven is hot enough for loaf cake. If the paper is burned or scorched, the oven is too hot and must be cooled by leaving a crack in the door, opening the ventilator or setting a cup of cold water in the oven to lower the temperature.

Pressed Chicken.

Cut a small chicken into four parts, boil in a little water as possible without burning, and watch constantly. When done very tender take out the meat, but keep broth boiling. Pick the meat from the bones, chop it, and add butter, pepper and salt. Take all fat of broth, then pour over the chopped chicken. Then press it, put plate on top with something heavy to hold it down. Set on ice and when very cold slice it and you will have a delicious supper or breakfast dish.

Hamburg Steak Soup.

Have lean beef hamburger and place on stove with cold water. Boil three-quarters to one hour only. Nice with rice and carrots, or rice only, also served as vegetable soup. Vegetables must be put in at once with the hamburger, as they will be done together. Season to taste. Quickly done and precisely the same as other soup. Nice also for supper to put the little ones to sleep on.

Beefsteak Dumplings.

Line a deep dish (four inches deep and eight inches across the top) with pie crust, cut up two pounds stew beef in small pieces, add salt, pepper, onion and water, one-half teaspoon poultry dressing and little butter. Put top crust on and steam for three hours.

To Mend a Thimble.

When a silver thimble wears through at the top get a plumber to drop just a little solder inside, and the thimble is as good as new.

When Bleaching Clothes.

If a lump of soda dissolved in a little hot water is added to the blue wash on washday it prevents the blue from settling in the clothes and makes them perfectly white. This is also useful when the water is hard.

To Remove Match Marks.

When paints have become scratched with matches rub them first with a slice of lemon and then wash with soap and water. This removes all traces of the match scratches.

—Miss Emily F. Jordan of Concord street has been spending a few days with friends at Duxbury.
—Mrs. Nathaniel Brewer and daughter have returned from a three week's camping trip in Andover on the Shaw-shen River.
—Mrs. Nathaniel Brewer and her daughter, Ellen, have gone to their summer cottage in Jamestown, R. I. for August where Miss Brewer will entertain a house party for a few of her friends for a week.

PECULIAR SUIT

John Marcell, living at 83 Border street, West Newton has brought suit in the Middlesex courts against his wife Amelle.

The bill alleges that Mrs. Marcell is withholding from her husband one horse, three carts and wagons, sets of harness and other articles which are legally his. It further states that the plaintiff has had an opportunity to sell the articles, but had been prevented from so doing by his wife, who had threatened the presumptive purchaser with legal action.

The bill states that husband and wife are joint owners of a mortgage on property on Border street, upon which Mrs. Marcell has made collections which she has refused to divide with her husband. Mr. Marcell asks the court for an order compelling his wife to give up the property.

93RD BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Clementina Butler, familiarly known to many persons as "Mother Butler" observed her 93rd birthday on Wednesday at her home on Crescent avenue, Newton Centre. Mrs. Butler who has worked many years in India, China and Mexico as a missionary, received many greetings from her friends in those countries and among her many gifts was one of the new flags of the Chinese republic, sent her from that country by missionaries. In addition she was the recipient of many flowers. Despite her great age, Mrs. Butler is quite alive to the times and takes a deep interest in the Balkan question. Yesterday she enjoyed a long automobile ride.

BASS POINT HAS MANY ATTRACTIVE THINGS

Throngs of pleasure seekers are always to be found at picturesque Bass Point and Nahant on Saturdays and Sundays. Special music is provided at the leading hotels and dancing, band concerts and other attractive amusements insure a enjoyable day's outing. Bass Point hotels and restaurants are famed for their shore dinners, and probably best of all is the delightful hour's sail from Boston on the Bass Point and Nahant line's steamboats Machigonne and General Lincoln. These boats sail hourly from Otis wharf, 408 Atlantic avenue.

MIDSUMMER MEETING

It has been several years since the city government has met in the summer season, but some oversight in making sufficient grants, caused a special meeting to be held last evening. Alderman Sullivan was chosen president pro tem and Aldermen Winslow, Jamieson, Forknall, Blanchard, Jones, Richardson, Early, Bemis, and Bartlett were present. Besides making a few grants of appropriations, the board authorized water mains laid in Upland road and Hawthorn street and adjourned.

Care of Broken China.

When mending broken china always place it to set in a large box filled with sawdust. By this means it is easy to stand the article in any desired position, so that its own weight holds the pieces in place, while the cement is hardening.

The Proof

Efficiency

Railroad operating expenses are less to-day than ever.

Wages continually advancing, material costing more, millions upon millions spent in expensive construction.

Notwithstanding these advancing costs, transportation is cheaper to-day than ever.

Efficient management alone has made this possible.

NEWTON CENTRE WINS

The Newton Centre Squash Tennis Club entertained a team from the Worcester Tennis Club in a return match in an inter-city series Saturday and won 7 out of the 9 matches that were played. The home team got five matches in singles and two doubles. Afterward the two teams enjoyed a dinner at the Brae Burn Country Club.

Small, Worcester, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2; J. Crawford, Worcester, defeated G. L. West, Newton Centre, 6-4, 8-6.

Doubles—Wales and Bray, Newton Centre, defeated Porter and Stewart, Worcester, 7-5, 6-7, 8-7; Walworth and Porter, Newton Centre, defeated Bullock and Small, Worcester, 6-2, 1-6, 6-2; Jennings and Lincoln, Worcester, defeated Andrews and Wilbar, Newton Centre, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

W. C. T. U.

Mrs. J. Augustus Remington, who is spending the summer on the large estate at 432 Dedham street, Newton Centre, gave a very enjoyable luncheon on Tuesday, July 29, to the officers of the Newton Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Among those present were Mrs. S. L. Eaton and Mrs. J. E. Beckham of Newton Highlands; Mrs. William Mink, Mrs. A. C. Daniels and Mrs. Church of Newton Centre; Miss Grace Howland and her sister, Mrs. Stubbs, with Mrs. W. E. Birdsall of Newton. The guests were entertained on the large cool piazza, where vigorous plans were laid for a series of successful meetings next season.

Small Boy Again.

"Bobby, do you see that bright star overhead, at the top of the big cross?" "Yes." "Well, that's Denob. It is nearly three quadrillions of miles away." "Huh! Then how do you know its name is Denob?"

Inside Information is the costly, valuable ingredient that figures most prominently in all business deals.

There is a wealth of "Inside Information" in the want ads.

Many business men whose preeminent success is attributed to a highly developed foresight and shrewdness, are in reality making daily use of this want ad "Inside Information."

What You Decide

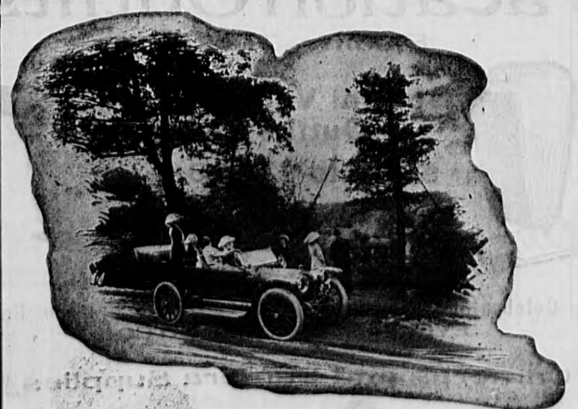

The one most unusual feature about our stores is this; you don't have to scrutinize everything to see if you are getting what you think you are. The only thing for you to decide is—does the price appeal? If it does, you can safely buy. We absolutely guarantee that the quality conforms to the price.

NORUMBEGA PARK

In the famous open air theatre, this week a vaudeville program of merit is presented every afternoon and evening and is being received with much applause. Heading the bill are the favorites, "The Judges" in a merry tumble feat; Chesley, Finlay and Chesley in songs and dances; Elmore, the magician and his dog solve some intricate problems; the American Comedy Four in their harmonic music feat, the Three Cyclonians, daring bicycle riders and the usual interesting animated picture. The management is pleased to announce for the coming week a musical comedy by Mat Ott entitled "The Redding of Father." Imagine an honest, hard working man whose knotty, calloused hands give unmistakable evidence of the roughest kind of manual labor suddenly falling heir to a fortune and how his daughter tries to make a way into high society and you have the gist of the plot. The many attractions at this ideal summer park were never in better condition than now.

EDITORIAL

I find there is considerable reluctance on the part of members of our city government to enter upon any organized movement to reduce or to modify the policy which has dominated our educational system for the past few years. Laymen, for one thing, do not like to enter into any controversy or argument, with experts in their own field, and when the demand for more and more money is coupled the slogan "nothing is too good for our children," the result is a foregone conclusion. And yet, there is a grave doubt felt and sometimes expressed that the present policy is altogether too expensive for the city to handle, and that even the alleged benefit to our children, in public, as well as in private affairs, a matter of dollars and cents. A man with an income of $1000 a year cannot expect to give his children as many advantages as one whose income is $10,000, and while we all want the best for our children, there is a limit to carrying out of the best intentions.

Dr. Spaulding devotes some space in his recent report to the results obtained by the new policy, but admits that it is a hard matter to prove. I can assert with some assurance that the results so far as mathematics and spelling are concerned are not satisfactory, if examinations of High School students in those lines by a state board can be any criterion. Out of a class of 21 high school students, 9 failed to pass an examination, which, in my opinion, ought to have been fairly easy to any well educated grammar school pupil. Of these 21 pupils, the average per cent in spelling 25 words was 71, the lowest being 44, and the highest 88 per cent. In arithmetic, the average was 57.2 per cent, the lowest being 17.8 and the highest 98.3 per cent. I find that there is considerable dissatisfaction in the city over the results in mathematics, particularly in the grammar grades, and know of one instance where a boy was placed in private school solely on this account, and another where a father was obliged to tutor his boy himself in this study.

From a layman's point of view, while there appears to be considerable merit in the present school policy, there is evidently a great need of strengthening those studies which rightly or wrongly, the public has come to believe are most essential for success in life, namely, spelling and arithmetic. The school committee desires the people of Newton to approve or disapprove of its educational policy. Let us give the question the utmost consideration as it is one of the most important matters in the city, but let us be fair to ourselves as well as to the future in reaching our decision.

Once again Governor Foss has honored a Newton resident as well as the city by the selection of former representative James A. Lowell of Chestnut Hill as chairman of the important board on Labor and Industry. Mr. Lowell is remarkably well qualified for this important office, having had many years of experience in public matters, and can be depended upon to render a good account of his new opportunity to serve the state.

FORMER RESIDENT KILLED

Mrs. J. L. Stearns of Boston received a telegram yesterday informing her that her son, Mr. E. Roger Stearns, had been killed at his home in Los Angeles, Cal. No other details of the tragedy are known at present. Mrs. Stearns left at noon for California.

Mr. Stearns was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Stearns, former residents of Newton. He was born in this city and was 29 years of age. He was married and is survived by a wife and two small children, E. Roger Stearns, Jr., aged 4, and Jessie Stearns, aged 8, as well as by his mother, Mrs. Jessie Stearns of 714 Commonwealth avenue, three brothers and a sister.

For a number of years Mr. Stearns was vice president of the Standard Motor Car Company, and he is well known throughout the West, whither he first went.

DEATH OF MRS. FRENCH

Mrs. Elizabeth T. French, widow of the late Marshall W. French, died last week on Thursday at the age of 82 years.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at her late residence, 393 Newtonville avenue. Services were conducted at 4.30 by Rev. Francis W. Sprague, a retired Universalist clergyman of Jamaica Plain.

The remains were taken to Brimfield, Mass., for burial in the family lot at Brimfield Cemetery.

Mrs. French is survived by one son, Mr. Samuel W. French, a grand-daughter, Mrs. F. Lincoln Pelce of Newtonville, and a grand-son, Dr. Robert W. French of Malden.

MR. MILLS DEAD

Mr. Francis Mills, for over a half century connected with the Boston & Albany Railroad and its predecessor, the old Boston and Worcester Railroad, died at a private hospital in Newtonville last Sunday after an illness of a few days with pneumonia. Mr. Mills was born at Newton Lower Falls 80 years ago and has resided on the Wellesley side of the Charles River for many years. His wife died several years ago. He was a member of Newton Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Dalhousie Lodge of Masons, and of Boston Lodge, Order of Railroad Conductors. The funeral services, which were held at St. Mary's Church, Newton Lower Falls on Tuesday afternoon, were attended by many friends and representatives of the orders to which he belonged. Rev. Francis B. White, the rector, officiated, and the interment was in the churchyard.

FLOWER PLACE CARDS

PRETTY SUGGESTIONS FOR TEA OR GARDEN PARTY.

Entail Little Trouble or Expense and Give Just That Distinctive Feature So Appealing to the Modern Hostess.

During the flowery summer months the hostess delights to plan luncheons, dinners and teas for her visiting guests. The garden offers material for decorations or a fitting background for a tea or garden party.

The decorative value of the basket has been recognized for many ages, and you cannot select a more artistic centerpiece than a basket, woven of Japanese willow or plaited rushes, filled with roses, lilacs, daisies, carnations, gladioli, nasturtiums, sweet peas, phlox or larkspur. The brown of the willow harmonizes so beautifully with the blossoms, and if a bow of ribbon is tied to the handle of the basket the centerpiece is perfect.

One of the attractive features of a luncheon or dinner is the place cards, and these can be made at home with very little trouble or expense entailed. At an artist's supplies shop purchase a large sheet of water-color paper of a not too coarse grain, a box of water-color paints, a camel's-hair brush and a piece of carbon paper. Charming designs for basket place cards are given here, and when you have selected the one which appeals to you most follow these directions:

Between the drawing and the water-color paper place the carbon paper and carefully follow each outline of the design with a sharply pointed pencil. The drawing will be reproduced on the water-color paper, ready for tinting.

The rectangular basket filled with clusters of hydrangeas is effective if tinted yellow, green or brown. Color the flowers pink or pale lavender and the foliage a soft green.

Especially pretty is the hat-shaped basket filled with wild roses. This is Improved by cutting out the design after it has been tinted and pasting a strip of cardboard to the back which acts as a support.

Paint the basket brown, green or yellow, the roses pale pink, with yellow centers, and the foliage green.

Never purchase place cards when you have these attractive designs at your disposal! You will be agreeably surprised to find how easily and quickly they are made and how very artistic are when completed.

FOR THE SEA OR LAKE

SEASON'S BATHING COSTUMES ARE PARTICULARLY PRETTY.

Black Silk Suit Probably the Best for Wear, Though There Are Many Other Materials Almost Equally High in Favor.

The new bathing costumes shown are decidedly attractive. Each season marks a noticeable improvement in this line, the freshest novelties appealing to few women, those of taste demanding the more conservative models.

Without doubt the well-made black silk suit, of good quality, relieved by white or other soft color next the face is the smartest, handsomest and most tasteful costume the bather can wear and the season's variety in such models is surprising.

This year one finds among the best looking bathing costumes a good many black and white mixtures, stripes, checks or plaids, the stripes predominating here as they do throughout all fashion's province; and some of these models are extremely pretty without being as startling or conspicuous. They are usually trimmed with plain black satin, with relieving touches of white, and are desirable only in a good quality of silk; but it must be admitted that even at their best they do not stand the wear and tear as well as the plain black and are not so generally becoming. The white stripe soils quickly and, when wet and clinging, takes on distorted lines, which are unbecoming to the figure. In this last respect the black and white checks and plaids are better than the stripes, but they have not quite so smart an air on the whole.

The black and white stripes are more in evidence as trimming than otherwise, and as such are extremely attractive, making becoming and effective pipings and trimmings.

One suit of striped material, which is illustrated, in the large drawing, was effectively made up with the stripes running diagonally across the bodice fronts. The right side lapped across the left and buttoned over a scarf of black satin, which fell from the neck, below the waist line. There was a trimmed turn-down collar of white moire.

Comfortable and practical bathing costs are made of black or blue serge, with large collars and cuffs bordered with a relieving note of gay color.

Bloomers or knickers are essential features of the costume, and should be of the same material as the skirt and blouse. The knickers should be loose enough for comfort, but fitted carefully, though easily, around the hips and waist.

A tight or stiff corset is an absurdity, but there are corded bathing girdles which will keep a suit smooth around the waist and over the hips without cramping the body. The stockings should be snugly gartered, the belt neatly adjusted to cover the union of the skirt and bodice—if the two are not, as is advisable, stitched together.

MARY DEAN.

Old Blankets Useful.

To get most benefit out of blankets that have become too thin for ordinary wear, wash them, dry them thoroughly and put two or three of them together and cover them with sixteen to make quilts. They will have to be buttoned down somewhat like mattresses, quilt fashion, will have to be made across them to hold them in shape. A border or sixteen frill adds to their attractiveness.

PRETTY SHADES FOR CANDLES

Lace and Silk Effects That Are Highly Decorative—Can Be Made at Home.

The woman who appreciates the beauty of candlelight likes to have pretty shades, for she realizes that these small articles are more decorative than almost any of the small household furnishings. Many of the loveliest candle shades displayed in the shops can be successfully duplicated at home. Those made of lace and silk can be readily stitched together by the needlewoman.

Foundations for the shades must be purchased first, and over flowered chifon are built the lace coverings.

Irish crochet lace is used for one pretty shade, over a foundation of pale pink silk. A row of insertion is stitched about the top and to this is whiptitched a narrow beading, and to this an edging the same width as the insertion.

A narrow ball fringe is then joined to the edge of the lace and a band of pink ribbon threaded through the beading. This completes the dainty shade, which can be lined with any color to correspond with the room in which it is to be used.

Candle shades of shirred flowered chifon are charming. The material is shirred very full to the frame and a narrow heading is left at the top. Finish the top and bottom with a garland of tiny flowers. You will enjoy making a set of pretty candle shades, so why not begin now?

TO REMOVE THE SHININESS

Tell-Tale Mirror-Like Polish of Skirt or Coat Easily Can Be Remedied.

There have been various and sundry methods tried of removing that tell-tale, mirror-like polish from a skirt or coat which has been subjected to daily wear. At last something has been found which will remedy the evil. It's a little arrangement about the size and shape of an ordinary piece of toilet soap. It fits the hand and is very convenient to use. The bottom of this contrivance is fitted with three little revolving wheels which protrude just a hair's breadth beyond the surface in which they are set. These wheels, when rubbed over the surface of the cloth, raise the nap and comb out the fine threads which form it until a new surface is formed. Thus, the shine disappears and the cloth looks perfectly new.

The business girl who wears her practical serge suit daily will be glad of this little invention for keeping it looking fresh and trim.

FOR YOUNG GIRL

Drawers and petticoat for a young girl of eight to ten years may both be made in nainsook, madapolam or longcloth.

The drawers are gathered in at knees into insertion bands edged with lace or embroidery.

The petticoat is a simple one-piece pattern, trimmed with insertion and lace; the neck and armholes are edged with narrow lace.

Materials required for drawers: 1 yard 36 inches wide, 1/4 yard insertion, 1 yard lace. For the petticoat, 1 1/2 yard 36 inches wide, 1 1/2 yard lace 1/2 inches wide, 1 1/2 yard insertion, 1 1/2 yard narrow lace.

New Russian Blouses.

The Russian blouse is less extreme than the low-waistline jackets, and it is excellent style. All the French houses are making it, and it is proving popular in this country. The true Russian blouse has a rather full yoke, and the upper part blouses over a regulation or slightly raised waistline in front as well as in back.

If you do not care for either the Russian or Balkan blouses you can use a cutaway coat with the fronts out very much away and running into a narrow cutaway back, or a jacket with some suggestion of the raised waistline either at the front or back or both.

Draped Skirts.

Dressy tailored suits for summer made of line, rattan, sponge, volles, silk, etc., show the belts completed by sash ends of satin with tasseled or fringed ends. They also show draped skirts, which increase in favor.

MR. HUSTIS' ACHIEVEMENT
(From the Hartford Times)
James H. Hustis, who is to have the administration of the New York, New Haven & Hartford system proper, has to his credit one of the most remarkable achievements in American railroad history. The Boston & Albany, by reason of inadequate and inefficient service, was in 1907 regarded with contempt or anger by most of its patrons. Never was any railroad more thoroughly "in bad" with its local public. It was built up by Massachusetts men who never found out how to quarrel with or disappoint either passengers or shippers. Its station agents had held life positions and some of them were in the old days elected to every Legislature. Under New York Central management at first the idea that a railroad must have not merely patrons but friends seemed to have been dropped. The Boston & Albany line was run for a while on the theory that it did not need even the good will of the men who operated it. When its train service broke down, and the only certainty about its service was that trains would never be on time, the road came to be regarded as a public enemy and the management incurred both ridicule and contempt. Mr. Hustis, who had risen from the place of the old general manager's office boy to supervision of all the New York Central lines in New York State, was sent over to Boston to straighten out this very unpleasant and unprofitable situation. It took him about three years to make everybody so well pleased with the Boston & Albany service that the delinquencies of 1907 passed out of the public mind. When a patron sent in a complaint to the managers that something was wrong with the train service, a general agent went out from the president's office to see the complainant, and, even if the letter was unfair, or merely ignorant of the facts, the writer was treated so courteously and considerately that in a short time he became as friendly and appreciative as he had been hostile and offensive in his attitude toward the railroad. The public was treated to a three years' course of civility and sympathy, and the cure of a distressing and formidable condition was complete. The employees were again made to feel that they were working for men possessed of a spirit of fairness and capable of exacting efficiency and not merely for a soulless corporation. A large investment of money in locomotives and other equipment and in additional trackage made it possible for the trains to conform to the time-tables. Business and earnings increased tremendously and the basis was laid for permanent prosperity and success on that section of the New York Central system.

That achievement has caused Mr. Hustis to be invited to take charge of the New Haven system, and while the public has no such feeling of hostility toward the New Haven system as the Massachusetts people had toward the Boston & Albany in 1907, there is no doubt that Mr. Hustis is the best man in the country for the work which he is to undertake. If Mr. Mellen had called this railroad manager to his aid three years ago and given him full power over the operation of the whole New Haven system, much of the opposition to the company which has recently developed might have been avoided.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—One of the biggest novelties of the summer is promised for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week in "The Pinafone Kiddies," a remarkable troupe of thirty singers, dancers and comedians in an up-to-date version of "Pinafone." The production offered by the Pinafone Kiddies is a condensed version in one act of this famous masterpiece. This great feature will be but one attraction on a splendid bill. Nick's Skating Girls, a novel act from the European circuits, will make its first appearance in Boston, while Marie Fenton, "That Melody Maid," will present a brand-new repertoire of popular songs, besides wearing some beautiful gowns. Other strong features will be the Azard Brothers, in hazardous equilibristics; Vessouli Trio of bar experts; Solly Brown and Sprague in a new singing act; Lynch & Zellar, the clubman, the Pathe Weekly, and numerous other features as yet unannounced.

Last Witch Burning.
There are countries in which the execution of women as witches is only a thing of yesterday. The last instance of witch burning occurred as recently as 1858 in Peru, and in other parts of South America cases continued to occur until well into the second half of the nineteenth century. England's own last conviction for witchcraft took place at Hertford in 1712, and Scotland condemned a witch ten years later, while Spain and Germany retained a judicial belief in witches and the justice of killing them until 1782 and 1796.

SPEAK THE GOOD WORD
W. J. Lampton, in New York Times.
It isn't the thinking how grateful we are
For the kindness of friends come to bless
Our sorrow or loss 'neath the weight of the cross—
It is telling our gratefulness.
It isn't the love that they have in their hearts
And neglect or forget to reveal,
That brightens the lives of husbands and wives—
It is telling the love that they feel.
It isn't the thinking of good to mankind
That comes as a cooling drink
To the famishing ones of earth's daughters and sons—
It is telling the good that we think.
It isn't the music asleep in the strings
Of the lute that entrances the ear
And brings to the breast the spirit of rest—
It is only the music we hear.
It isn't the lilies we hide from the world,
Nor the roses we keep as our own,
That are strewn at our feet by the angels we meet
On our way to the great White Throne.
It isn't the silence of hope unexpressed
That heartens and strengthens the weak
To triumph through strife for the great things of life—
It's the words of good cheer that we speak.

Stolen Hair Means Death.
In many parts of the modern world the believer in witchcraft still gets hold of hair, nail parings and so forth from an enemy's head and hands, and burns, buries or does something else with them in order to entail unpleasant consequences upon that enemy. And universal folklore reveals the concern of savages to dispose of their own hair and nail clippings to prevent an enemy from getting at them. Australian native girls who have had a lock of hair stolen from them expect speedy death as a certainty.

VENTILATION.
When buying window shades get an extra set of catches. Put one set at the usual place, the other about a foot lower. On cold weather bang the shades on the lower catches and leave the window down from the top. This gives perfect ventilation and prevents the shade from blowing about.

KIND WORDS
Five classes of Harvard men who knew Mr. William F. Garcelon as "king" of the athletic association, and who were graduates and undergraduates-at-large, will join a silent cheer for the retiring graduate treasurer. In that gradual reconstruction of the athletic policies of the university, much of which has fallen within his term of office, Mr. Garcelon has had an interested share. The conduct of the athletic office itself has been improved under his management and his systematization of ticket distribution has wonderfully smoothed the vexed currents of those coveted pasteboards.
The spirit which has informed Mr. Garcelon's supervision of the sports on the field and river in Cambridge has been democratic and temperate. It has long been characteristic of athletics at Harvard that "everybody does something." The man who is not nimble enough to belong to the track team takes a three-mile run alone in the afternoons; the oarsmen who have been "chucked" from class or university rowing squads organize a "gentlemen's eight," and continue blithely to row. While there are the groups who shun athletics from sloth, or sensitiveness, or pre-occupation with studies, the prevailing mood is rather to immerse one's own limbs than to watch a university team while it does so. It is this spirit which Mr. Garcelon has striven to make more general. He himself was a track athlete and his sustained interest in the track team has not only liberalized his notions of athletics, but has led him to perceive that this more multifarious sport may be made to enroll and benefit those least athletically inclined. Recently, with the assistance of Mr. Paul Withington, he formed a class in general athletics which has enjoyed a steadily growing popularity.—Boston Transcript.

MR. GARCELON CRITICIZED
(From Malden News)
There appear to be some phases of life of William F. Garcelon who is said to be slated for the head of the Republican State Committee that the Boston papers have not touched upon. Last year Garcelon favored Roosevelt for the Republican nomination but supported the regular nominee and swallowed the result of the Chicago convention. At the same time Garcelon was and is the agent of the executive committee of the Arkwright Club, generally known as a standpat organization. Then, too, Garcelon conducts a weekly newspaper, the Newton Times, alleged to be the result of his dissatisfaction with the utterances of Newton's old-time reliable home paper, the Graphic. These additional items about Garcelon give the reader no assistance as to where to place him if he becomes head of the state organization, as to whether he will be more reactionary than Hatfield or reach out in an endeavor to bring back the progressives to the fold. These facts about him would appear to indicate that he is equally at home on both sides of the fence that is still dividing the party.

THE PROGRESSIVES' CHANCE
The Progressives of Middlesex County have an opportunity to show that they are liberal and broad-minded. We have not urged them to endorse Republican candidates for State offices, because, seeing that they believe in their ultimate success as a party, we can realize their desire to make an impression wherever they can. But there are two Middlesex County offices that ought to be non-political and under the civil service. The Register of Probate and the Register of Deeds perform very important duties. Experience and familiarity with the affairs of the office are important factors in the conduct of the business. It has been found that continued tenure of office has best served the public. The present incumbents, William E. Rogers, Register of Probate, and Thomas F. Leighton, Jr., Register of Deeds, are not, so far as their business is concerned, Democrats, Republicans or Progressives. They are faithful officials, clean men, and skilful and helpful public servants. It will be a shame if to keep up a party spirit, the Progressives slash into their votes enough to defeat either of them. We firmly believe that a liberal spirit shown by the Progressives by nominating Mr. Rogers and Mr. Leighton will aid the general cause that the Progressives hold dear.—Newton Times.

60 YEARS OLD

George B. Brewster entertained many relatives and friends last Monday evening at his home, 16 Hancock avenue, Newton Centre, the occasion being his 60th birthday. Mr. Brewster appeared in excellent health and spirits, cordially greeted the friends and relatives who had gathered to do him honor, and heartily endorsed the program of music and reading, pre-arranged as a surprise for him.

After refreshments had been served and the party had adjourned to the gayly decorated piazza, the old gentleman led in the Grand March that introduced dancing, and no one was more nimble than he in the Virginia Reel.

The members of his family presented him with a handsome walking cane, and he received several bouquets of flowers, sent by intimate friends. Mr. Brewster is a native of Iraaburg, Vt., but for the past several years has made his home with his son, Dr. Leonard E. Brewster. He is vice president of the Paragon Mfg. Company of Boston, and is at his desk every morning. He extended a hearty invitation to his friends to attend his birthday party next year.

Several hundred members and friends of the Newton Catholic Club gathered about the grounds last evening to welcome Capt. "Bill" Carrigan, leader of the Red Sox and Larry Gardner, third baseman on the World's Champions, who were the guests of the club. The affair took the form of a pop concert, several hundred being seated at tables on the lawn, which was brilliantly illuminated with Japanese lanterns, and a very enjoyable concert consisting of orchestral selections, professional singing and magic was presented.

A large bevy of young ladies acted as waitresses. Charles A. Laffie was the chairman of the evening's performance, and acted in the role of announcer. Following the concert the club hall, where they held a reception, meeting all who were present during the evening. Both were called upon to speak by the large throng, but sought shelter behind the committee.

The evening's entertainment ended with dancing. Assisting Mr. Laffie in the entertainment were President J. J. Curran, Thomas E. Noone, Fred Cahill and Robert P. Barry.

Mrs. Mary C. Metcalf, the widow of the late Albert Metcalf, passed away Wednesday at her summer home at Clifton, Marblehead. She was born in New York City, July 12, 1836, and came to Boston when a young girl. She married Mr. Metcalf June 6, 1860, and they removed to West Newton in 1884 where she has resided ever since.

Mrs. Metcalf was active in many charities and was prominent in philanthropic work in this city and in Boston. She was beloved by many who will mourn her death. Mrs. Metcalf is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Robert W. Williamson and Mrs. James A. Neal, both of West Newton. Funeral services of the Christian Science Church will be held this afternoon at her late home on Highland street, West Newton, and the interment will be at Newton Cemetery.

Each morning is a fresh beginning. We are, as it were, just beginning life. In a sense there is no past, no future. Wise is he who takes today and lives it, and tomorrow when it comes—but not before it comes. The past is of value only by way of the lessons it has brought us. There should be no regrets or crippled energies that result from such. We have stumbled—all have stumbled.—Ralph Waldo Trine in Harper's Bazaar.</

SPEECH ON TARIFF

the telephone; the telegraph; the wireless; talking machines; delivery systems, including those provided by the Post Office Department; and all kinds of foods packed, canned, and bottled, instead of sold in bulk.

The cost of advertising is also a material element and is paid by the consumer, and we go on to the end of our daily requirements and complain because we pay more for these things than our forefathers paid for the same necessities. We do in most cases pay more for the same article than we did 10 or 20 or 30 years ago, but so do the people of all other countries; that, however, is not the test which determines the prosperity of the people.

Many of the Democratic Members who spoke on the tariff question in the House followed a well-established precedent and included in their remarks long tables showing the difference in cost of many articles at other times and now; all that is admitted, but it proves nothing; these same speakers never take the trouble to prepare wage statistics for the same periods; fortunately we have some sources from which absolutely definite comparisons may be made, viz., the report of the British Board of Trade in 1909, a most careful investigation and analysis of relative conditions in Great Britain and the United States, as well as our census, consular, and bureau reports. The British board summarized its conclusions as follows:

"The workman's wages would be higher in the United States by about 10 per cent with slightly shorter hours, while on the other hand his expenditures for food and rent would be higher by about 52 per cent."

And again the report states that—"the average weekly family income in certain specified trades in the United Kingdom, including building, engineering, printing, and common labor, is $7.4. The average weekly family expenditure for food is $4.93, or 63.6 per cent of the family income. In the United States the average weekly family wage in the same trades is $19.25, and the average weekly family expense for food is $8.03, or 41.7 per cent. The difference in favor of the wage in the United States amounts to 21.9 per cent of the average weekly wage, or $4.20 a week."

There are volumes of evidence, much of which I have collected, showing that conditions in this country relating to the cost of living are world-wide.

After an investigation of all the reasons for the probable increase in the cost of living, noting the influence of gold-outlet monopoly, the tariff, and the cost of distribution, I incline to the opinion that it is due in a greater degree to density of population or less land per capita than to any and perhaps all other reasons combined.

I agree with those who have declared that there is likely to be a decline in the prices of some commodities, but it will result from a decrease in purchasing power rather than from tariff changes. If the purchasing power of our people is injured, those who produce, manufacturers, agriculturists, and labor alike, must expect less demand for their products or services and at lower rates. No interest in a community can be injured without affecting all others, and that wave of demoralization will spread to the remotest sections of our country. It is true that there is discontent, but explaining it by charging it to the cost of living, and the reason for that to the tariff, is the diagnosis of an incompetent; in this case the Democratic Party. For I repeat, the net cost of living, which results after all bills are paid at the end of the year, notwithstanding our extravagance and wastefulness, is the lowest in the world; that is, our people are larger net savers than any others, and figuring with this condition as a basis, the net results during the period since the passage of the Dingley bill in 1897 have been the best in our history, probably the net savings per capita have been more than twice, and perhaps more than three times, as great as they were during the first half century of our existence as a Nation. How does it profit a man to buy, his necessities at low prices if his income is only sufficient for that purpose? How much better his condition, even if he is paying high prices, if his income enables him to do it and have a balance at the end of the year.

In the tariff plank adopted by the Democratic national convention at Baltimore in 1912 is found this declaration:

"Articles entering into competition with trust-controlled products and articles of American manufacture which are sold abroad more cheaply than at home should be put on the free list."

To make this declaration in any way workable it would be necessary to determine what a trust-controlled product is and what a trust is. No definition of a trust has been proposed which is entirely satisfactory. The Cabinet officer who just now is eking out an insufficient salary by devoting his time to Chautauqua lectures once declared that any company or corporation which manufactured one-half of the total output of a definite product is a trust. Possibly this defines a trust as well as it can be done, in which case, however, there are comparatively few in the United States. It is true that it is quite common to speak of this trust, or that trust, or the other trust, but in many cases the company or corporation to which reference is made does not manufacture 15 or 20 or even 50 per cent of the goods produced in that industry; therefore such a concern would be removed from the trust as defined by Mr. Bryan. Even if anyone could define a trust with accuracy, has this plank of the Democratic platform had any influence in controlling the proposed free list? The slightest examination of this schedule will show that in most instances there is no connection between trust-made products and others which have been put on the free list. Products like wheat, flour, fruits, meats, oats, potatoes, rye, shoes, leather, the products of leather, and many other similar articles too numerous to mention, all of which are intensely competitive in their production, have been treated exactly as would be a trust-made product; therefore it seems to be a fair conclusion that no attention has been paid in the proposed bill to that part of the quotation from the platform. This is also true of the rest of the quotation relating to sales abroad, but to that I wish to refer in more detail. It seems to be impossible for a Democrat to understand that it is good public policy for domestic manufacturers to dispose of their surplus product wherever a market can be found, even if the price obtained is less than the cost of manufacturing.

The only times when this policy is adopted in this country is when a surplus is produced which can not be marketed at home without closing down or curtailing the production of a plant, in which case it may be sold abroad at whatever price can be obtained for it. I maintain that this is sound policy, which is of distinct advantage to the manufacturer and his shareholders, to the laborer employed in the industry, to all those living in the community where the goods are manufactured, and as a result to the country as a whole. And I would go further, for while we only sell our surplus under these conditions we might well adopt the methods followed in Germany; that is, to sell the entire output of a factory abroad at lower prices than similar grades of goods are sold at home. By following our usual policy our manufacturers are operating at a disadvantage, for frequently goods which are manufactured for our market, and which can be disposed of in that market at satisfactory prices, when sent to other markets to which they are not suited must be sold at a great sacrifice even if they can be sold at any price. The Germans study the requirements of the goods which they are after, manufacture the kind of goods which are suitable for that trade, the kind which it is accustomed to and for which there is an established demand, confining themselves to the styles and the colors required in that market. Our manufacturer may go into the same market with goods of similar texture and suitable to the tastes of the German manufacturer, but they may not have suitable colors or they may not be put up in forms that meet the requirements of the trade, so they do not find the ready market which is found for the goods of our competitor, the result being that in Germany large industries are being developed, and a great number of people, lines of transportation are established by German capital and are profitably employed in transporting this product and the trade which it develops, and the German Navy is provided with a fleet of transports without the necessity of maintaining them in time of peace.

In time of peace we are never going to reach a satisfactory stage in the development of our foreign trade until we cater to the exact wants of our customers; until we have established lines of steamers to carry our own products; until we have established banks in the countries with which we are doing business through which the trade can be financed; in fact, until we have adopted all of the up-to-date policies which are commonly practiced in the countries which are our rivals in developing trade with non-manufacturing countries.

But to come back to the question of disposing of our surplus manufactures. Those directly interested are the furnishers of the capital employed in the industry and the laborers engaged in the manufacturing of these goods. What labor wants is steady employment at remunerative wages. All employers recognize the fact that steady employment is a great factor in developing efficient and contented workmen. What capital wants is steady employment with reason returns. Neither condition can be insured if an industry is absolutely dependent on the home market, which varies in volume with the season, and with the condition of general business. Let me illustrate what this means to both the manufacturer and to the laborer. I will use as examples several industries which have furnished me with figures taken from their own books and checked up as to their accuracy as far as it has been possible to do by comparing them with annual reports and other similar sources of information. One of the best and most convincing arguments in favor of the policy of selling surplus products wherever and whenever a market can be obtained is shown in the shoe trade. Shoe manufacturers agree that when a factory is running three-fourths of the time the cost of manufacturing the average shoe is 5 cents a pair greater than would be the cost if it were running full capacity and full time; and if it were running one-half of the time the cost of manufacturing shoes would be 10 cents a pair greater than if the factory were running all the time at full capacity. These figures would vary somewhat in the manufacture of different grades of shoes, but they are substantially correct if an average is taken.

The testimony is almost universal among shoe manufacturers who have studied the question carefully that the average profit made per pair of shoes in all factories in the United States is about 7 cents. Let us take as an example shoes costing the manufacturer $2.50. These would be sold to the retailer at from $2.55 to $2.60 per pair. The retailer sells them at from $3.50 to $4 per pair; the cost to retail shoes being about 30 per cent of the retail selling price. In such a case the manufacturer would make somewhat less than 7 cents a pair and the retailer would make nothing to 25 cents, dependent on the varying cost of selling the shoe in towns of different sizes and in different sections of the country. Now, if the manufacturer were running his factory at 75 per cent of its capacity, instead of the shoes costing him $2.50 they would cost $2.55; if he were running at one-half of its capacity, instead of the shoes costing him $2.50 they would cost $2.60; in one case he would only be making a profit of 2 cents a pair, while in the other case he would be losing 3 cents a pair. Therefore, to get the best results it is absolutely essential that he run his factory at full capacity. On account of seasonal changes in styles and shapes of shoes it is difficult to run a shoe factory at full capacity more than three-fourths of the time.

Now, what is the result as far as the people employed in such a factory is concerned. The average wage paid to a shoe employee in Massachusetts is about $560 annually. If the employee only works three-fourths of the time, his income will be reduced to $420, or a loss of $140. If he works only one-half of the time, his income would be $280, or a loss of $280. This would necessarily reduce rentals and directly affect every person having anything to do in that community and indirectly affect every person in it. Furthermore, if any surplus output is sold in foreign countries it influences shoe manufacturing in those countries, making their factories feel less dangerous competitors than they would be if they had control of their own markets. This course of reasoning will apply with equal force in every industry, though the illustration can not be as pointedly made as in the case of shoes on account of the variety of material going into other products and the great variety of the production as well as variations in prices.

In all of these instances it is clearly demonstrated that it is not the manufacturer who is most affected by closing down a plant, but the workman. The manufacturer may be in dollars and cents, as well as to close his plant a quarter of the time as he would be by running it all the time and selling his surplus product abroad at the price he could obtain for it, but in the first place the workman would only receive three-fourths of the wages he would receive if the plant were run all the time, and he would therefore, while, as I have stated, the closing down of a plant affects the capital invested, it is particularly burdensome on the workman and through him indirectly affects the whole community.

President Wilson has stated in a recent address that he believes a Democratic tariff will be in the end a tariff, but such a tariff is much more likely to sharpen the appetites of the worker than the wits of the employer, who in many cases, as can be easily demonstrated, is obliged to work his wits overtime in order to make a living under present conditions and rates of duty. The President's solemn assurance that the tariff will be in the end a tariff, that a reason for changing the tariff was to develop competition and increase our foreign trade must have been made without any careful examination into the real conditions of our trade—either foreign or local.

The fact is, the United States has been developing a foreign trade in the last decade, or since the Republican Party returned to power in 1897. The increase in importations in the last two years has been more than one-third as much as the total importations in 1890, while the increase in exports in the same time have been more than one-half as much as the total exports in 1890.

The Democratic platform, as well as the President and others in authority in that party, by declaration and inference, gives the impression that one of the reasons for reducing the tariff is to develop competition domestic or foreign; the net result, however, and the reductions made generally bear no relation to competition, for they include changes in articles in which competition is the keenest, as well as those in which home production practically supplies the local market. In other words, the policy as marked out has been to reduce without regard to facts, to import more and to produce less, without regard to local conditions. As there may be some doubt as to the correctness of this statement, I will give some examples of reductions where there is now active foreign competition, and will ask why the duties in these items should be lowered, and if the result can mean anything except additional importations, which must lessen employment for our capital and labor. To do this I will not go beyond the limit of this Chamber to find articles with which to prove my contention. There are many concerns in the United States engaged in the production of the articles to which I refer.

The ink wells in the desks in this Chamber are made in Austria. Under the present tariff they pay a duty of 50 per cent ad valorem. The proposed law places a duty of 45 per cent ad valorem.

Bone letter openers found on the desks of Senators are made in France. Under the present tariff they pay a duty of 35 per cent ad valorem. The proposed law imposes a duty of 30 per cent ad valorem.

Hairbrushes in some of the Senate offices are made in England; those in the Republican cloakroom were made in Japan. Under the present tariff they pay a duty of 40 per cent ad valorem. The proposed law places a duty on hairbrushes of 35 per cent ad valorem.

Souvenir post cards with pictures of our public buildings on them made in Germany may be found on sale in the Capitol Building, and no other could be found for sale in Washington until the duty was increased on these cards in the Payne-Aldrich bill, which increase enormously developed the output of local factories without increasing the cost to the consumer; in fact, the price was lowered. It is worthy of note that a reduction has been made in the pending bill which may mean going back to the same conditions which existed before 1909.

Are our large producers of matches in this country, and yet if a Senator wishes to light a cigar in the cloakroom he finds a Vulcan safety match manufactured in Sweden. A very large number of dishes served in the Senate restaurant are prepared from imported articles, many of which are produced in the United States. And lists of the character could be extended almost without limit. If competition is desired and not destruction, why reduce duties in the cases I have instanced?

Do those who appeal for reduction of duties make their appeal because there is not domestic competition? This reason would be as fallacious as in the case of foreign competition, for there is ample local competition in the production of most of the articles affected by the pending bill.

A few instances will conclusively demonstrate this statement. There can be no denial of active domestic competition in every article produced on the farm on which the duty has been lowered and which has been put on the free list, but there may be some doubt of the correctness of my statement if applied to manufacturing concerns. It is, however, easily demonstrated. Take the cases of cotton, shoes, and wool as examples. There are in the United States 1,324 concerns manufacturing cotton, employing 37,880 people, and producing the larger percentage of these goods used in local consumption. Most of these manufacturers are stock companies and there is a public market for the shares, but there never has been any charge that there is a combination of any kind in this industry from the planting of the cotton to the marketing of the product; while it frequently happens that the same persons are active in the management of more than one mill, I can not find even in such cases that the mills with which the same men are connected make more than 5 per cent of the total product manufactured in this country and there has never been a suggestion that any attempt has been made to control or fix the price of cotton goods.

Take the case of shoes—this industry has been built up under conditions that have tended greatly to increase rather than diminish competition; there are 1,918 concerns engaged in this industry and I do not find a single instance where those interested in one of these are in any way interested in any other. Generally speaking they are private corporations or co-partnerships and no single concern produces more than 4 per cent of the product of this country.

The same reasoning applies to the manufacturers of wool; it is true that there has been complaint that the tariff favored those engaged in manufacturing worsted at the expense of woolens and talk of the Woolen Trust has been so long repeated that many people really believe there is one yet, the most active and effective competition we have in the textile industry is in this one. It was prostrated after the Wilson bill was passed, has been only relatively prosperous at any time since, and is today being conducted at a loss, without any hope for the future if this bill becomes a law. The only basis for the charge that there is a trust connected with the industry is the size of the American Woolen Co., yet this company only operates about 12½ per cent of the looms and 14.4 per cent of the spindles engaged in the woolen and worsted industry, and the company manufactures both worsted and woolens in the proportion of about 2 to 1.

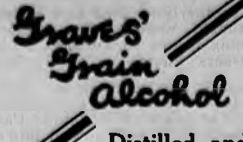

The fact is there is intense competition in all of these industries; there is not a syllable of testimony to the contrary. Yet the product of one is reduced, the reductions in another have already brought its earning capacity to a minus quantity, and our market in the case of the third has been thrown wide open to the world without any possibility of resulting benefit to the manufacturer or workmen engaged in it or even to the consuming public.

It has not been infrequently the case during the revision of the tariff that employers have stated to committees of the Senate and House, and to the public in other ways and even to their employees, that in case certain definite action were taken it would be necessary for them to either reduce wages or close down their mills.

The slightest investigation of results which might come from a tariff revision justifies such assertions, for it goes without saying that the management of a mill wishes to run its property and make it profitable, and operations will be continued even though there be no profit, and frequently when a small loss is incurred, because closing down means a disruption of organization, the losing of many good and skilled employees who go elsewhere for employment; and even without these reasons, the fixed charges incident to the business entail a very material loss.

For the first time in the history of the Government we have an authoritative statement from the chairman of Ways and Means Committee, and ap-

EDITORIAL

It is well to remind my readers that the political gyrations of candidates during the month of August ought not to influence any one who understands that the whole matter can be easily settled, either at the state primary in September or at the election in November. While the situation at the present time is not at all satisfactory to the average Republican, there is some hope that the political skies will clear before the actual votes are cast.

The speech which Senator Weeks delivered recently in the United States Senate and which is given nearly in full in this issue, is well worth reading.
The Senator has a common sense way of stating facts so that their bearing on the question at issue is perfectly plain.

RECEPTION

Mrs. D. C. Heath had Queen's weather last week at "Kalamazoo," her summer cottage at Hyannisport, to introduce her son's bride, Mrs. Warren Heath.

Of the two hundred invitations sent out to friends on the Cape and in Providence, almost all were accepted. The large number of gentlemen who were present and seemed to so thoroughly enjoy themselves, was one of the unusual features of the occasion.

The bride, beautiful in her natural grace and simplicity, was greatly admired, and was assured of a hearty welcome to her new summer home.
Mrs. Wayman McCreery of St. Louis, and Mrs. William Thayer Brown of East Orange, N. J. presided at the table, which was beautifully decorated with red sweet peas and gypsophila.

Among the aides were Mrs. Barnes of Louisville, Kentucky; Miss Doris Taylor of Springfield, Miss Anna Stevens of Savannah, Ga., and many others.
Among the prominent guests present were Dr. and Mrs. Page of Indianapolis, Mr. and Mrs. W. Blackburn of Pittsburg, Judge and Mrs. Shields of St. Louis, Dean and Mrs. W. M. Warren of Boston University, Mrs. George S.
Payson of Chicago, Professor and Mrs.
Green of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Herrick of Springfield.

HOUSE PARTY

Miss Abbie Cady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Cady of Clyde street, Newtonville, entertained a number of friends at a house party last week at her summer home at Riverview, R. I.
The guests enjoyed a trip to Newport and Conanicut park with boating and bathing at Rocky Point and the affair closed with an informal dancing party at the Riverview Casino.

The party included the Misses Clith-ro Parker of Waban, Janet Mariner of Portland, Me., Marian King of Newtonville and Messrs. Perry Smith, Sheldon Root, Roger Wheeler and Gordon Banchof of Newtonville.

MR. GREEN DEAD

Thomas J. Green, one of the most active parishioners of St. Bernard's Church, West Newton, and widely known in fraternal organizations in this city, died last Monday at a Brookline Hospital, following an ailing illness. Mr. Green was known to every lover of baseball in West Newton, as he was one of the most enthusiastic followers of the Newton Catholic Club.

For many years he made his home at 62 River street, West Newton. At the time of his death he was county treasurer of Middlesex A. O. H., an office he filled diligently for several years. He was also a member of Triton Council, No. 547, R. A.; Newton Council, No. 167, K. of C.; Division 53,
A. O. H., and the Newton Catholic Club. He is survived by his wife and three children.

Funeral services were conducted yesterday morning in St. Bernard's Church with a requiem high mass, celebrated by Rev. Fr. Farrell. A large delegation from the above societies escorted the remains to its final resting place in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.
There was a profusion of floral tributes from the societies and friends of the deceased.

The honorary bearers were State President F. E. Cannon, John Donnelly, State Vice President, James J.
Harold, County President, and Charles J. Hogan, County Financial Secretary of the A. O. H. The active bearers were Bernard D. Farrell and William Cahill, representing the family; Patrick J. Sullivan and John L.
Foley of Division 53, A. O. H.; William J. Conners and John Cannon of Newton Council, K. of C. and Maurice J.
Coleman and Jeremiah A. McMahon, representatives of Triton Council.

and on July 6th was brought to his home in an ambulance. Gradually, however, the improvement slowed up, and on Friday of last week he was transferred to the Massachusetts General Hospital that certain appliances might be made use of and methods followed that could not be employed in his own home. As a result, the several eminent physicians of Boston who are connected with the case, are unanimously of the opinion that he is suffering from surgical shock and extreme weakness, ultimate recovery from both of which may be confidently expected, though more time will be required than had at first been counted upon.

"Travel"

The wanderlust you feel is a natural desire to see new places, think new thoughts, meet new people.

It's not an abnormal craving for change, for excitement, it's a normal desire to broaden one's self.

Travel has well been called the great educator.

DON'T PUT OFF THAT TRIP!

It's easy and inexpensive.

USE OF ELECTRIC AUTOS INCREASING RAPIDLY

"It is really astonishing how popular the Electric pleasure vehicle is becoming," says E. A. Gilmore of The Whitten-Gilmore Company, local agents for the Woods Electric. "The steadily increasing interest in the Electric, according to Mr. Gilmore is due largely to the rapid strides that have been made in improving the Electric pleasure car in the last two or three years, and especially so in the last twelve months."

"The improvements have been along two general lines, first the greater efficiency of the late models and second, larger, more comfortable and more attractive roomy cars. The greater efficiency is due largely to the improvements that have been made in the storage battery recently. This has given the Electric greater power, and of course, increased speed and longer mileage. The high grade Electric of today will travel from eighty to over one hundred miles on a single charge, depending upon the kind of roads, speed and the care used in driving. Any of our present models will climb easily the steepest hill open to traffic."

"The large and more roomy bodies have come naturally with the increased power of the batteries. The real high grade Electric of today successfully rivals the finest gasoline machine, and from our point of view surpasses them in many ways, especially from the standpoint of convenience."

"There is no question but that the day is coming soon when every well equipped household will have an Electric pleasure vehicle for the use of the women folks of the home. The business men also who have to cover short distances in the congested districts, are going to own an Electric car. The Electric for the business man is even more efficient than the gas car, when one considers the numerous stops and starts necessitated by crowded conditions."

"The business men have been slow to adopt the Electric, under the impression that it was essentially a woman's vehicle, and not adaptable for the sterner sex. This impression is rapidly disappearing and the men are becoming familiar with the saving and advantages of the Electric car for all around purposes."

COMMITTS SUICIDE

Harry O. Hayes Takes Poison In West Newton

Despondent over some unknown reason, Harry O. Hayes of 322 River street, West Newton, committed suicide Sunday evening at his home by taking a quantity of Paris Green, while the members of his family were away. He had been in a despondent mood for several days, and it is thought that while in this condition he took his life.

Dr. Thomas Morton Gallagher, who was quickly summoned by his family upon their return, removed most of the poison from the man's stomach and ordered his removal to the Newton hospital, where he died the following morning. He was employed as a machinist in the Waltham Foundry, and leaves a wife and two sons.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon from his late home, and interment followed in the family lot at Mt. Feake Cemetery, Waltham.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Miss Gladys Wales was delightfully entertained on Monday evening at her residence on Lowell avenue the occasion being an informal celebration of her birthday.

A party of her friends surprised her at about 8.30 by suddenly making their appearance in the dining-room, where they had been concealed.

The table was attractively decorated with pink carnations in pleasing arrangement, and in the center was a large birthday cake surrounded by pink candles.

The evening was passed very pleasantly with music and games, and Miss Wales was the recipient of many gifts and congratulations.

SERIOUS EXPLOSION

One Man Killed and Two Injured In Newtonville

One man was killed and two others are in a dangerous condition at the Newton Hospital as a result of a terrific explosion which occurred last Monday afternoon at the plant of the Vulcan Mfg. Company at Newtonville. Antonio Borselli, 49 of 19 Quirk court, Newton, an employee of the firm for many years died shortly after arriving at the Newton Hospital, his left arm being blown completely off, and suffering from numerous cuts and abrasions about the body.

The men were at work tamping a fusee into a huge papier mache machine, when from some unknown reason the explosion occurred. Flames leaped into the air, enrolling the three men, and the explosion that followed hurled all three in all directions.

The nearby buildings were shaken by the shock, and after the other workmen had recovered from the effects of the explosion, rushed to the injured men, who were found mangled and burnt. A hurry call was sent in for the police ambulance, and a record trip was made to the hospital with the three men. Borselli was carried unconscious into the hospital, and died at 5 o'clock, without regaining consciousness.

Frank Zeman of Waltham and James Cafarello of Watertown street, Nonantum, who were badly injured in the explosion, are still at the hospital, where it is thought they will recover. The men were working with the dead man, and so far have been unable to give any clue as to the cause of the explosion.

FRUIT THIEVES

Police Captured Several Boys at Waban

Newton, which during the past has been looked upon as the "Mecca City" by the youthful fruit raiders of Boston, was again visited by a number of young boys last Sunday, but the auto patrol, which was hurriedly put into commission by Chief Mitchell dispelled the raiders, and brought two boys to headquarters where they were charged with trespassing. The boys were hurling missiles at the trees on the Hawkes Estate on Beacon street, Waban, when their presence was noticed by the owner, and a call was sent to the police.

Patrolman Larivee and the auto patrol started for the scene, but the patrol was detected by the boys some distance away, all making a wild dash for liberty towards the railroad tracks. The officer caught two brothers Albert and George Jones of 3 Sharon street, Boston, and from them learned the names of the others in the raiding party.

The two motor-cycle officers on duty this year have paid particular attention to the orchards in this city, and it is generally known by the raiders that the police were on the lookout, with the result that few have ventured into the orchards, Centre and Oak Hill which has generally been the camping grounds for the raiders. The young boys will be haled into court later, together with those who were with them.

UPPER FALLS AT READING

Saturday afternoon Upper Falls will play the strong Reading team at Reading. The game which was to have been played between Needham and Upper Falls on the Upper Falls playground on that date, is cancelled until later in the season.

LAWN PARTY

Successful Affair Given by Mr. J. J. Fitzgerald

A very successful Lawn Party was held on the grounds of Mr. J. J. Fitzgerald, 16 Lincoln Road, Newton, last Monday evening in aid of the Catholic Union. The affair was given by the Beechwood table who are going to serve refreshments at the big outing of the Union on Labor Day.

There were 350 guests present from the Newtons, Waltham, Watertown, Brighton, Boston, Neponset, Southboro and other places.

Music was furnished for dancing by a Hardy Gurdy from 8 to 11.30, a large floor being laid for the dance.

Whist was enjoyed on the lawn from 8 to 10 by a large number, the grounds being beautifully lighted by Japanese lanterns and red fire from 8 to 12.

An orchestra composed of cornet, Mr. T. F. Fitzgerald, piano, Mr. J. G. Gleda, 1st violin, Mr. T. Waters, 2nd violin, Mr. R. Hanlon, discourses music during the evening in the house and the following musical program was rendered: cornet solo, Mr. T. F. Fitzgerald who also rendered a baritone solo, piano solo by Mr. T. Dalton, and tenor solos by Messrs. J. Antell and Ernest Perry. The music made a decided hit.

The affair was in charge of Mrs. J. J. Fitzgerald ably assisted by Mrs. F. H. O'Brien and daughters, Misses Anna T. and Agnes O'Brien, Mrs. Frank McLucas, Mrs. J. J. Sullivan, Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Miss Mary J. Fitzgerald.

The Beechwood B. B. C., who have played 16 games this season, being defeated but twice, were the ushers.

The ushers are as follows, also the positions in which they play:—Mulligan, c.f., Keegan, 2b, Fitzgerald, ss, McLaane, lf, O'Brien, p, Bryson, 3b, Howley, c, Vahey, lb, Connelly, rf.

They will play the Mission Church Band Ball Club Saturday at 3.30 on Cabot Park.

ASSAULT OFFICER

Police Have a Lively Time In Newton Disturbance

Patrolman Hargedon of the local department had a narrow escape from serious injury when he was met with a volley of tools from a shoemaker's kit, which were thrown by Arthur J. Lawn last Saturday night, when the officer attempted to place the man under arrest at his home, 14 Centre place, Newton. One of the many tools hurled at the officer, a heavy iron stand, attached to a block of wood struck him on the helmet, causing a wound on the head.

Patrolman Higgins was first attracted to the house by loud talking and upon getting to the house was surprised to see a heavy hammer dropped at him from the third story of the building. Patrolmen Coady and Hargedon arrived shortly after, and placed Edwin Lawn, the father and two sons, James J. and Arthur J. Lawn, sons, under arrest.

The father was in the street trying to get his son, James J. into the house, and the loud talk which both were making, together with the cries of the other brother on the third floor attracted a large gallery. The father and son James were taken to Station 3 by Officers Coady and Hargedon and officer Higgins waited in the house until the other son, Arthur dressed himself sufficiently to accompany the patrolmen.

After waiting several minutes at Station 3 for patrolman Higgins to arrive with his prisoner, the other two officers started back to the house to see what was keeping him, and were forced to use their strength to gain entrance, as the man's wife held the door. Getting in was only a matter of a minute and after the young man had hurried one tool at officer Higgins, the other two officers made all haste up the stairs to the second floor.

The man saw them coming and started for the stairs leading up to the third floor, and as the two officers were making all haste up the narrow stairs he met them with a volley of tools, the stand striking officer Hargedon on the helmet, while another from object just missed patrolman Coady. He was soon overpowered and brought along to Station 3, where he was booked on the charge of disturbance and assaulting an officer.

All three were arraigned before Judge Bacon Monday morning, and Arthur J. Lawn was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for assaulting an officer, and ordered to pay a fine of $15 for disturbance. His brother James was fined $15 for disturbance and the charge against the father was dismissed, the court deciding that he was trying to get his son into the house.

POLICE NOTES

Wilfred P. J. Marchant, employed as a tester for the Metz Automobile Company of Waltham, was haled into court last Monday morning on the charge of speeding along Cherry street, West Newton, and a fine of $10 was imposed by the court. The automobile concern have used this street for testing the cars, and the speed which the cars travel has caused several complaints to be registered at police headquarters, and in an effort to put a stop to it Chief Mitchell stationed a man there.

Sergt. Thomas Clay of the Police Department, who has been absent from his duties during the past three months on account of illness, returned to the department yesterday, and from now on will be in charge of Station 3 during the days. Sergt. Clay is rapidly regaining his health.

Russillo Gemillaro of 41 Oak street, Upper Falls, was arrested last Monday night on complaint of his brother-in-law, who told the police that he was in constant fear of his life. The man was arraigned Tuesday morning on the charge of assaulting his brother with a rock and carrying a loaded revolver. On the former charge a fine of $10 was imposed and on the latter charge the fine was $50.

Mrs. Samuel Kessler and three children who came from Philadelphia to search for their husband and father, were picked up Sunday night in Auburndale by patrolman Charles Tainter. The woman did not know the address of her husband, but had been sent by some party in Boston to an address in Auburndale. She had but a small sum of money.

Wednesday morning the family was taken to a Jewish home in Boston. The authorities there think they have found the man.

KILLS A CHILD

John McDonald, the Auburndale contractor ran over and killed 10-year-old Grace E. Schofield on Cambridge street, Cambridge, Monday night, and has been held in $1000 bonds for a hearing on August 21.

McDonald, according to witnesses, was running up Cambridge street at a speed of about 10 miles an hour, when the child ran in front of his machine. Before he could apply the brakes the car struck the child and she was thrown beneath it.

McDonald stopped his car and, catching the little one up in his arms, set off at top speed for the Cambridge Relief Hospital. She was unconscious when he reached the hospital, and the physicians there were unable to revive her. She died within 10 minutes.

BIRTHDAY RECEPTION

Splendid Entertainment for Summer Guests at Woods Hole

An unusual treat was given last week to the summer visitors at Woods Hole by Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Crane of Chicago, on their fine estate, Juniper Point, formerly known as Butler's Point. A general invitation was sent to the members of the Marine Biological Laboratory and the United States Fish Commission and their friends for the evening of August 7th, Mr. Crane's birthday.

The night was perfect and the August moon hung over the water, adding its charm to the festive occasion. The extensive grounds were brilliantly illuminated with electric lights. The Russian Chorus Choir of the Greek Church, New York City, composed of twenty-one boys and seven men, stood upon the ample piazza of the front entrance to the house, and sang their church and national hymns and folk-songs in their native language to the admiring audience gathered upon the lawn and scattered over the grounds.

It was estimated that over twelve hundred people were entertained at the hospitable board spread under a large canopy on the lawn at the rear of the house.

Among the distinguished guests present were Mr. Curtis Guild, ambassador to Russia; Lord Percy of the British Embassy; Mr. Brandels, Mr. Norman Hapgood, Mr. J. Frederick Stimson, Mr. Bliss Carmen, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Lillie, who received with Mr. and Mrs. Crane, Mr. Crane being President of the Board of Trustees of the Marine Biological Laboratory, and Dr. Lillie the director. Professors from colleges all over the land were also present.

The music was most impressive and interesting as rendered by this famous choir, and closed with a rousing roundelay in Russian of "Many Years to Mr. and Mrs. Crane."

The Russian boys were quartered in a large tent erected on the grounds near the entrance to the estate and take their meals at the Dexter House close by. A graduate of Mt. Hermon School is employed to entertain them for the week's visit, with field sports, fishing and swimming; they in turn entertain the house guests with songs and dances of their native land in the evenings.

Mrs. Crane is a niece of Mrs. Byington of Franklin street, who is one of their guests this summer.

MAN STABBED

Phulo Grasse, 31, of 190 Adams street, Nonantum, was arrested Monday morning by the police, after a long search, charged with assaulting Patsy Bontempo of 78 West street on Sunday night with a dangerous weapon, and his case was continued until August 18 to await the possible outcome of the injuries during the fight.

The two men in company with several other Italians, got into some trouble over a card game, and Bontempo was stabbed through the back, the blade entering his left lung, just above the heart. Dr. T. M. Gallagher dressed the injured man's wound and ordered his removal to the Newton Hospital, where his name was placed on the dangerous list. Grasse made his escape after the stabbing, and the police located him early Monday morning.

NORUMBEGA PARK

In the covered open air theatre at New England's finest amusement resort, an excellent bill of vaudeville is presented every afternoon and evening, this week, and judging from the applause is meeting much favor.

Heading the bill is Edith Raymond with comedy assistant, in a unique way cycling act. Colonel Holdsworth, the eighty-year old silver voiced tenor, renders some of the old favorites with pleasing success. The Weber Family, society acrobats, showed some new stunts and the exhibition of Kennedy & Farnsworth, the original wooden shoe dancers, is extremely novel and interesting. Then there are Bert Bros. in 400 lbs. of fun making and the Four Kings, a harmonizing quartette, who were encored time and again. The usual high grade motion picture is presented. Next Sunday evening an excellent Sacred Concert has been arranged with some feature pictures.

The management is very pleased to announce that they have secured Matthew Ott's latest musical burrah "I Should Worry," with Bob Ott as the pacesetter. Of course, there are Singers, Comedians, Dancers and a bevy of cleverly handomely costumed Show Girls to interpret the various numbers and Minutiae such novel situation. Don't fail to see this excellent offering.

PLAYGROUND NOTES

The girls' baseball team of the West Newton Playground defeated the Farlow Park nine Tuesday afternoon in the Playground League 24 to 6, the contest being witnessed by a large gathering of fans from both playgrounds. Mary O'Callaghan and Elizabeth Oldfield comprised the battery on the winning team and Catherine McKee and Louise Leonard performed for the Farlow Park team. Since the season opened the young girls have developed rapidly under the watchful eyes of the playground directors and a hard fight is expected for the championship of the league before the season closes.

With Maloney, McGill and Whalen batting strongly, the Lower Falls intermediates had little trouble in shutting out the Newton Centre nine Tuesday afternoon on the Lower Falls Playground, 28 to 0. The Lower Falls team played a brilliant game, and the home plate was never threatened during the game.

In a fast and exciting 10 innings' game Monday afternoon on the Lower Falls Playground the Seniors of the Lower Falls Playground defeated the West Newton Seniors, 5 to 4, in the Playground League. With the scored Capt. O'Neil of the winning team came to bat and knocked out a home run, winning the game. Stiekney, McGill, Kirke, Cronin and Keller played a good game. In the Junior League the Newton Highlands Juniors defeated the Newton Centre nine, 11 to 10, the winning run being scored in the ninth inning.

LODGES

Betsey Ross Lodge, N. E. O. P., of Newton, re-elected the deputy grand warden, Marie Mayhew, and suite, at its regular meeting Monday evening. Remarks were made by DGV Mayhew, GC Estelle Evans, GG Eliza both Gahn, Warden Jarvis of Puritani and visitors from Arpha Lodge of Chelsea, Puritan and Harvard of Cambridge. This was followed by an entertainment consisting of a piano and violin duet by Mrs. Alice McNeil and Miss Inez Flanders, songs by John Earle, piano solo by Miss Inez Flanders. After the meeting a watermelon party, provided by the entertainment committee, Mrs. Rose Corner, chairman, was enjoyed.

KEEPING THE TABLE SUPPLIED

How New England Gets Strawberries
In February and March in May.
What the Railroads Have Done to Accomplish This.

STRAWBERRIES in March, and in May! Today this is the boast of no modern farmer, but the privilege of the many. You may even eat fresh strawberries away up in northern New England in February. Today the New Englander can eat his cantaloupe and eat fresh vegetables with snow still on the ground. New potatoes when his own are being planted are to him no longer a dream. Fresh peaches on his table when his own trees are just through blossoming excite about as much curiosity in him as the bride's bouquet of roses in January. No longer does that strawberry patch out in his own garden mean his first taste of the luscious fruit in June or July. It used to be so many years ago, but nowadays he has probably eaten quarts of berries long before his own have ripened.

All this has been brought about not by some agricultural wizard's work in our gardens, not by our meteorologists' work in studying the weather, but by the railroads. It is the result solely of the perfecting of our modern methods of transportation, the bringing up of our main steel highways of commerce to a standard not surpassed anywhere else in the world, enabling the traffic men and operating experts so to work out fast freight schedules that today the New England table is but forty hours from southern farms.

There is no faster freight service in the world than that which carries strawberries to the New England table from the southland in two days. There is no such terminal yard anywhere as the great yard or yards at South Boston of the New York, New Haven and Hartford, where this fruit and early vegetables are received, bought and sold and distributed. As many as 300 carloads of strawberries are sometimes received there in a single day, and so quickly are they handled that one hour after they have entered the yard they are either being unloaded or are being sent out again to Portland or places even farther north, where they can be eaten the next morning.

The celerity with which this most perishable of perishable freight is handled from the time it is put in the freight car in Florida, Georgia or Virginia until it has reached the marketmen scattered all over New England is probably not exceeded anywhere in this country. It represents years of study, of painstaking work over railroad schedules, of the most effective co-operation between the railroads and of the most scientific management so far as it relates to this phase of the railroad problem. It has created a new business in New England, a business that practically did not exist twenty years ago. It has made new markets and a new industry for many; has wiped out the enormous advantage which Philadelphia and New York once seemed to have over Boston and New England in this matter of table delicacies and the handling of the early southern produce.

In the business world time is counted by the business day. In the produce business it is counted by the market day, and the market day begins and ends practically between 6 and 7 a. m. Thanks to a development of a fast freight service for this kind of produce, Boston's market day is now the same as New York's, and Portland, Me., is but one market day later than Philadelphia. Today a carload of strawberries can make the journey between Norfolk and Boston in just thirty-six hours and a half.

Perishable freight is the bane of the railroad man's existence. He sometimes loses more sleep over it than he does over passengers. It involves problems not met with in most kinds of freight. It must be delivered in the quickest time possible, and in this connection the railroad, like the shipper and the commission men, must always reckon on the market day. The loss of one market day on perishable freight like strawberries often means the loss of the entire shipment. The failure of a railroad's freight schedule to insure delivery of this kind of freight for a certain market day may mean the loss to that railroad of this entire business; to the commission men and marketmen it means so much less business to get returns from. On the other hand, the ability of the time table experts and the traffic men to knock off half an hour even on the running time of a freight train may mean to the road thousands of dollars of new business and for the commission men may open up a brand new line of trade.

For years men have worked over these freight train schedules trying to lop off precious minutes of time in the yards, in the stops en route and in the delivery. Always their aim has been in the case of New England to get table luxuries, such as early strawberries, melons and peaches, into Boston by the second market day.

There is no more perishable produce than strawberries, and next to them comes fish. The New England railroads must bring the first into New England and carry the second out. In the case of berries it is absolutely essential that they be consumed within seventy-two hours from the time they are picked for them to command a price that will make the business worth while. When one considers that these early berries are picked in Virginia and points farther south the problem confronting the New England railroads in getting them on the New Englander's table within this limit of seventy-two hours is thus seen to be a big one. If a carload of strawberries consigned to a New England produce man misses a market day at the South Boston yard it means usually a depreciation of at least 5 cents on every box; on melons it means probably a cent apiece. That may not seem much, but in the aggregate it is enough frequently to wipe out the profit on an entire shipment.

In order to make a market day with this kind of freight, the railroad must get it into Boston, say, between the hours of 2 a. m. and 6 a. m. The market day begins promptly at 6 a. m. That is the hour when the big bell rings out in the perishable freight yard and there begins a scene of activity among the marketmen. When this bell rings the cars must be ready to open so that their contents can be inspected and sampled and the fruit or vegetables sold right as they stand in the car. Ten minutes after this bell rings the contents of the train may be on the way to the market.

This hour of 6 a. m., then, is the hour upon which the eye of the operating man and the traffic man in the railroad organization is fixed. It is the hour they must make, not one day, but every day, or lose the business. Down in Virginia, through Maryland and Delaware a freight train loaded with the luscious early berries of southern plantations, the first to feel the vitalizing effect of the spring sunshine, may be rushing through the night toward this goal with the speed of a passenger train. The engineer has this goal in mind, the yardmen along the route have it in mind, and up in the railroad offices the operating men have it in mind too. Like the man with the ball in the football game, these men are all working to put the train with its produce over the goal line before the big bell in the Boston yard rings out as a signal for the market men that another market day has begun.

New England has not always enjoyed the privilege of having strawberries in February or even melons in May. It was not many years ago that the average householder had to rely chiefly on his local fruits and vegetables. He waited until July for his strawberries (the melons and peaches he got later). Vegetables out of season were rare. This was when New England, by the then means of transportation, was many market days away from the south. These were the days of intensive railroads, as Mr. Brandeis would probably call them, short railroads connecting with one another, but operated separately and involving many transfer points. When freight has to go over several railroads operated on the intensive schedule it is bound to suffer delay. Between Boston and New York there were the New Haven, the old Stonington road and the Boston and Providence, over which such freight had to travel.

Even in the early days of consolidation there was still much time consumed because the old freight transfer points were retained. Boston and northern New England were not entirely without early produce, but owing to the slow schedules and delays the business was a hazardous one for commission men. In these days the bulk of the southern fruit and vegetables was put on a boat at Norfolk and rushed by sea to Boston. Some of it went by rail to New York and thence by the old Stonington line to Boston. The sea was able to afford the better service for the most part. The boats from Norfolk made the third market day and sometimes not that. The Stonington line made possible a noon delivery on the second day, but while this enabled some large consumers, such as hotels, in Boston to serve fresh fruit at the dinner hour the general consumer had to wait until the third day, while the depreciation went on.

FEBRUARY STRAWBERRIES IN NEW ENGLAND

In 1896 the first fast freight service was inaugurated, but it was not all that it ought to be until about four years ago.

At that time the New Haven road's officials got together with those of the Pennsylvania and decided to work out a schedule which would land the stuff from the southern farms in Boston in ample time for the second market day, counting from the time of its shipment. It was to be a schedule which would stand up under heavy service and be such as to warrant the commission men to increase their orders. The Pennsylvania put on several new trains, and a quick transfer was arranged for around New York.

In all about five trains are now required in the busy season to bring this produce from the south. The cars are picked up all over Virginia and even south of there and most of them are collected at Norfolk. There the Pennsylvania makes up a train, known as B 10, in one or more sections, and starts it north at noon. This train reaches the Jersey City yards of the Pennsylvania at 10 a. m. the next day. There it is broken up and the cars rushed to the New Haven transfer yards, which are taken around the East river and through Hell Gate by the most powerful tug in New York harbor. In the great Harlem river yards it is "classified" again. It starts on its way to Boston at 3 p. m., making stops at New Haven, Providence, Mansfield and Readville to drop off cars. The old arriving time of this train was 2:30 a. m. in Boston, but thirty minutes have been cut off this in the last year. Frequently it comes into the South Boston yard at 1:30 a. m. Thirty-five cars is about the limit of a freight train. When 250 carloads of berries alone are coming up from the south in one day obviously this train can't take them all, though it runs in several sections. For the later sections of the Pennsylvania road's train bringing up the berries the New Haven has still a faster train ready. This train leaves the Harlem river yards at 7:25 p. m. and gets to Boston at 4 a. m. It also makes stops on the way where cars have to be dropped for midway points. All this taken thus, so that the speed between these stops must of necessity be that of a fast passenger train.

These are the two great berry express trains of New England. With the Pennsylvania's trains they form the route over which daily passes the out of season fruit to which we are now so accustomed.

Though this stream of fruit produce runs practically all of the year, it is subject to many changes. When February's snows cover New England this stream begins to trickle and then runs with the first strawberries ripened by the warmer sunshine of the south. Larger and larger it grows and now the stream takes on a touch of green along with the red. Great peas and spinach and the early greens are flowing northward, first a few cars, then more, then fifty, a hundred and finally sometimes as high as 300 cars a day of strawberries alone when the frost is reached in early June. The berries give way to melons and potatoes and onions and so it goes until New England's own crops are ready for the reaping.

The amount of perishable freight borne northward to New England and distributed from Boston has grown enormously since the railroad men overhauled this schedule. In 1902 there were handled in yard No. 1 in the South Boston terminal 1,973 cars of perishable freight. In 1906 it had grown to 6,565, in 1908 to 7,808, and last year it totaled 8,881. Here are some of the figures:

Berries	1,672	197
Cantaloupes	623	1,522
Watermelons	292	523
Apples	412	523
Peaches	4	523
Spinach	157	775
Peas	104	375
Potatoes	614	1,623
Onions	28	308

It is this stream, rising and falling with the weather conditions, which feeds the summer resorts and has enabled New England's famous hotels to enter to the finest trade and make them independent of local truck farms. It has also greatly increased the number of Boston's commission houses.

The speed with which this stream flows northward is equaled by the celerity with which it is handled in the South Boston yard, the great distributing reservoir into which it pours its tons of produce. There are seven yards and thirteen freight houses making up the Boston terminal, and in an hour it can 1,800 cars a day, of which this perishable freight forms only a part.

As soon as one of the fast express freight trains reaches the yard in the early hours of the morning the cars are marked showing what yard they are intended for, this done by hanging the trucks to which they are consigned. They are then switched to the tracks to which they are consigned. It takes an average of twenty minutes to mark the cars. They have so reduced the time of switching or classification, it is called, that in thirty minutes every car in a forty car train will have been put in its proper yard and place. On an average it is just one hour from the time the big Pacific locomotive hands its train of fruit in the terminal that the cars are ready to have their seals broken. That is when it is ready to be sold by the marketmen, though the sales do not begin till the bell rings at 6 a. m.

There are few other cities where this kind of freight is handled so close to the market. Ten minutes is all that is required in Boston to transfer it to the market from the car. In this terminal, where 4,135 freight cars can be kept at one time, there is sufficient space provided so that trains can back up to 2,100 of these cars.

About 95 per cent of the produce brought into this yard every day remains there or is shipped out by express. The cars destined for Portland and for northern New England begin moving out by noon again, but from Boston a radius of at least twenty-five miles is covered direct. Portland will get its berries in time for breakfast the next morning.

About 1 per cent of New England is affected by this fast freight service perfected by the railroad men. The sea has had to yield this traffic to the land of steel which ties the north to the south. Today the New Englander, even though he lives in Maine, is as certain of fresh strawberries as he is of fresh fruit in the spring as he is of his own garden truck in the summer.

When the great Hell Gate bridge and Connecting Railroad joining the New Haven system with the Pennsylvania is completed in New York city this schedule may be shortened even more. This great engineering feat, undertaken by the two roads, will obviate the long water transfer around Manhattan Island. It is only three miles across New York bay from Greenville, where the Pennsylvania's trains roll in from the south, to Bay Ridge, where the cars will again take the rails bound for Boston, and the dangerous and delaying tides of Hell Gate will thus be avoided. While it will not mean the saving of another market day, it will mean that more trains can be handled and may result some day in making Portland's market day the same as Boston's.

The railroad is the great harvestmaster. It gathers the grain in one corner of our country and distributes it in another. It is the man who may be fed with the stuff of life; but, more than that, it is that his table is supplied with the good things of the ground though he live amid the snows.

ALL EASILY WITHIN REACH

Bed Pocket Receptacle for Little Articles That Might Be a Matter of Emergency.

A pocket of the nature shown in our sketch for suspending from the rail at the head of the bed will be found well worth making, for in it may be kept a handkerchief, watch, a box of matches, etc., in fact, just those few things which it is so nice to have well within reach, and which, if placed under the pillow, have the knack of getting lost and never being at hand when required.

It can be carried out in any pale shade of art linen, selected possibly to match or harmonize with the color of the bed-quilt or wall-paper. It is of quite a simple shape, and is bound throughout at the edges with narrow ribbon. Ribbon strings are sewn on at the top, by which it may be easily tied round the bed rail in the manner shown, and on the front of the pocket the simple design illustrated can be worked in colored silks.

In diagram A, at the top of the sketch, the head rails of the bed may be seen, the "X" indicating the place at which the pocket should be attached, and diagram B clearly shows the points at which the ribbon strings should be sewn on, and when it becomes necessary to wash the pocket these strings can be removed in a moment and replaced afterwards.

HEALTH AND GOOD LOOKS

Proper Fitting of Corset Means Appropriate Care of Both Those Important Items.

Various doctors and artists have been once again discussing the vexed question as to whether women should wear corsets, and they have once again come to the inevitable conclusion that if they wear the right corsets they are considerably improved by them. If ever the wasp waist asserts itself again among us it will be something to grumble at, but the corset of today is really beneficial rather than harmful, if it is properly made and properly worn. It may be that we ought not to require the support of corsets, but life in these days is artificial, and surely it is better to have a good figure by means of a good corset than to have a bad figure without it.

Just the same, a good many women are not sufficiently careful about their corset, and then they wonder why their gowns never look well. Better a cheap, ready-made blouse robe on a good corset than an elaborate frock over a shapeless one. It will not only be better from the point of view of health and carriage, but it will even give an air to the gown. French women live up to their reputation for dressing well, not on their taste in gowns, but by their attention to the corset.

ADAPTED FOR GENERAL WEAR

Frocks of White Hop Sacking Are About the Best That Have Yet Been Brought to Notice.

For everyday wear, morning and afternoon, the shops are exploiting a clever little frock of this white hop sacking, which goes by many other names. The skirt has a shaped plait let in the back and is fastened in the front with buttoned tabs of white bone. At the foot line is a broken design of Chinese blue cotton chinchilla cloth, and this is repeated as a belt, cuffs and epaulets on the shoulders.

There is no yoke in back or front, but the cloth is so cut that it will hang loosely and broadly from shoulders to waist and is held in by the belting of blue cloth, which is somewhat below the normal waist line. There is a straight turnover collar of the blue and a bow of sapphire velvet ribbon with the ends run through tabs of the material, which are used to fasten the front.

This model is also made up like the amethyst one, with the open front and the elbow sleeves to show thin shirt waist beneath; and it is also copied in polka dot foulard, which has come back into fashion for all manner of cool frocks that can be easily tucked into a suit case when traveling.

Dainty Serving.

The appearance of a dish means as much as its flavor to many persons. Prettily served it will tempt the appetite where it might otherwise be refused. Left-over chicken made into a salad may be put into cups made by removing the pulp from solid red tomatoes, and each tomato placed on a bed of green lettuce leaves. This novelty makes a table pretty, or is as attractive on an invalid's tray.

CURE FOR FACIAL BLEMISH

Irritating Red Nose May Be Caused by Inflammation and Should Be Treated at Once.

A red nose is an affliction which proceeds from such a variety of causes that it is quite difficult to suggest a universal cure, and as a red nose is an undesirable condition, no woman should hesitate about treating this feature as soon as the skin begins to show discoloration. When the flesh on the nose becomes red, it indicates some physical trouble that needs correction.

This external sign of internal derangement may be the result of an excess of eating, drinking, restricted circulation of the blood or an inflamed condition of the nose. Whatever the cause, its source should be discovered and remedied applied without delay.

On one occasion a woman wished to cure a red nose, and I suggested one cure after another. She followed all directions, but got no relief. Finally I urged her to see a doctor, because I suspected inflammation, which eventually was found to be the cause of the red nose.

If you are positive as to your diet being the right sort and your circulation is good, then in almost every instance it is advisable to have the membranes of the nose linings examined for possible inflammation, because if they are swollen an external redness is sure to follow. If the nasal structure is in a healthy condition, however, then one can be reasonably sure that by simple diet and outward applications the flesh can be restored to its normal whiteness.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

WHEN RAIN CLOUDS GATHER

Suitable Raiment for Inclement Days Has at This Time Been Made a Matter of Fact.

Fashions and customs have changed overwhelmingly in the past ten years, but in no other respect more than in the rainy day garb. Every one remembers with many a hearty laugh the way people used to look out of the window and say, in a resigned way: "Well, it's raining." That meant very positively that good looking clothes were not in decent taste in such weather and one must wear a mackintosh—was there ever a more hideous garment made?—headless rubbers, dark clothes, shabby shoes and one's oldest hat. And who ever did enjoy anything in her oldest hat! Nowadays the girl who looks on the cheerful side of things and rather enjoys the rainy day for a change has a bright red or purple hat that, of course, has no feathers, but is plain and serviceable, but which she knows is most becoming. She wears her tailored suit, but it has a short skirt and is protected by a good looking raincoat. Her shoes are high and thick, but they are just as good looking as those she keeps for sunny days and often, to add another bit of color she carries a red or purple silk umbrella. It keeps the rain off just as well as a black one, and it just makes you feel better. It is wonderful what a becoming hat and gay umbrella can do toward chasing away the blues or a stormy day.

NEW NEGLIGEE.

Model of sky blue brocaded silk with scalloped hem and large shoulder collar scalloped with lace frills.

Latest Princess Slips. The Balkan blouse dresses were scarcely launched on the market before a separate lining, in the form of a slip, was made to take care of this new requirement.

These new garments are cut on perfectly straight lines. They hang from the yoke-line to the skirt edge, with no curves appearing under the arms. Being quite snug-fitting around the hips all bulkiness is eliminated in the dress, while extra fullness for the Balkan blouse is supplied by gathering in the top of the slip at the yoke-line, from which point it falls to the hips in the soft blouse effect which is now so fashionable.

Flower for Color Scheme.

It is a very pretty fancy to take a flower as a color scheme without making any tangible use of the flower, and an example of the idea is given by an afternoon frock made of that graceful fabric, corduroy crepe, of tint of which is precisely that of a red-brown nasturtium, except the sleeves, which are as green as the rich verdure of the foliage.

PARASOLS TO SUIT THE HAIR

Season's Styles Especially Designed With a View to Millinery Just Now Most Popular.

Parasols are made this year to accommodate the modish small hat of the top of the head, and the big shade hat which will not be discarded. The steep sided parasol illustrated is hardly larger than the hat the large parasol is meant to shade.

The little parasol of black and white stripes is especially suitable to carry with the street frock. Black and white parasols can be carried with white, black and white or any color combination.

The big parasol with blunt tip is suggestive of the paper sunshade of Japan. The square, light handle on the rose fastened smartly on the edge of the parasol are interesting features.

This sort of sunshade will be carried a great deal at the seashore. It gives protection, which the smaller parasols do not give, to the hatless head.

ODDITY IN NEW SUNSHADE

Long Handles of Velvet Give Distinctive Appearance to the Parasols Introduced From France.

One of the oddities in the new French sunshades is that they have handles of velvet. These are exceedingly long, after the manner of those used in the Director's days, and therefore the velvet is quite conspicuous. It is in a different color from the parasol itself. Vivid colors are omitted, but black and white is used a great deal.

The sunshade itself is not small; on the contrary it is quite large, for these accessories are evidently intended to really keep the sun from the head; although the majority of women will use them folded, more as an ornamental staff than anything else.

Already the picturesque women who arrive at a full knowledge of their physical possibilities and limitations, and who, therefore, dress with individuality, are securing the longest handled parasols and using them as a means of posturing a la Tosca—you remember the way all the Toscas of the stage have stood with two fingers resting on the knob of a long ivory staff twined with roses.

TELEGRAMS FOR PLACE CARDS

Idea That Has Found Favor With Those Who Desire Novelty at Their Entertainments.

Some interesting place cards are little telegrams. The envelope is white, printed in blue, and the words on the envelope speak of good cheer and friendliness. The telegram inside the envelope has more to say regarding friendliness and hospitality. The name of the guest, naturally, is to be written on the outside of the envelope. Two dozen of these telegrams, in a box, are sold for 75 cents. Little letters are also sold for place cards. The envelopes have a slip of transparent paper through the center, like the envelopes used by some business firms, and the name, written on a card within the envelope, shows through the transparent paper. A riddle printed on the card also shows through the paper, and the answer to the riddle is printed at the top of the card, to be read when it is taken from the envelope. In the upper-left hand top of the envelope are the words "Return often to this house," and the stamp is formed of the words, "Eat, drink and be merry," printed in red.

Fashion's Fancies

The new cotton dresses, trimmed with vividly tinted embroidery, are particularly successful.

The best stocking is always plain of a good quality of lisle or silk and in an unpretentious color.

The lace neck ruffle, standing up right at the back and falling softly away from the neck at the front, is a favored fashion in neckwear.

A new idea on many suits is to bind the upper half of the buttonhole with a band of one color and the lower with another harmonizing color.

A pretty hat is covered with white crepe and trimmed with white pleated edged ribbon. The front is finished with a small bunch of colored flowers.

The new colors in tailored suits are Chinese blue, Bulgarian green, wood brown, light and dark grays, terra cotta rose, brick and other tones of red.

Silk Stocking, Again.

One can prolong the life of silk hose many times. Sew a piece of soft silk on the inside of both toe and heel. Soft Japanese wash silk is good. Darn it in around the edge. Also sew a piece of the silk at the top where the garters fasten.

SIXTH BOYS' OUTING AT Y. M. C. A.

The sixth outing for poor boys was held at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday, August 14th. The guests for the day were forty boys from Nonantum. The boys took a two mile hike under the leadership of Mr. Donle, playground director at the Stearns School. They arrived at the Y. M. C. A. at eleven-thirty, ready for the shower bath and swim in the pool.

After the swim the boys had a fine lunch ready for them, prepared under the direction of Mrs. C. D. Kepner, consisting of sandwiches, milk, bananas, ice cream and cake.

In the afternoon the boys were given on the use of the game room, the boxing room, the athletic field and the swimming pool.

The ladies who assisted Mrs. Kepner were Mrs. Hiram Miller, Miss Emma Page, Miss Bailey, Miss Eva Bailey, Miss Lydia Brown and Miss Whitton.

GLOUCESTER EXCURSION DAILY

Up along the North Shore route by the boats of the Gloucester line is an experience worth taking any time one is within reach of the north side of Central wharf, foot of State street. The starting time is 10 A. M. weekdays, and 10:15 sharp Sundays and holidays. The rugged charms of Cape Ann and quaint old Gloucester at this season of the year are particularly delightful. Enough time is given one at the fishing city to give a splendid idea of what the great fishing industry is like.

OUR CITY DEPARTMENTS

Facts Gleaned From Reports of City Officials

Charity Department

Over one thousand persons were aided in Newton during 1912, according to the report of Mr. Oswald J. McCourt the acting overseer of the poor, at a cost of $24,814.08; the net cost to the city being $18,113.05, the difference being repaid by the state, other cities and towns and individuals.

Fifty-one persons were cared for at the City Home during the year, the average number being 27. A new ward and matron, Mr. and Mrs. John Ewart, were appointed during the year in consequence of the resignations of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Goodman, after 14 years of service. The cost of running the City Home was $7,620.54, or an average weekly cost for each inmate of $5.06.

Fire Department

Chief Walter B. Randlett of the Fire Department, reports that in 1912, there were 542 fire alarms, and a total estimated loss on buildings and contents of $89,357.94 and $99,272.79 was paid in insurance. This is nearly double the damage and insurance paid during 1911. The value of the buildings and contents where these fires occurred was $1,691,195, covered by insurance to an amount of $1,039,560.

One hundred and forty-seven of these fires were in buildings, and 294 were other than buildings, making a total of 441 fires.

Public Buildings Department

The annual report of Mr. Walter R. Forbush, the Public Buildings Commissioner, shows that 276 frame and 44 other buildings were erected in 1912 at an estimated cost of $1,529,638, making a substantial addition to the valuation of the city.

The department expended $37,159.08 in repairs and maintenance of its public buildings, $20,925.20 being for the schools.

Mr. Maurice B. Coleman, the Inspector of Plumbing, reports that 2,207 fixtures of various kinds were installed in Newton houses last year, 550 permits for plumbing were issued and 1,750 inspections made.

Sealer of Weights and Measures
 Mr. Arthur Prior, the head of this department, tested 4063 scales, weights and measures in 1912.

The sealer reports that the weighing of coal has been going into during the year and conditions proved satisfactory, only three re-weighings out of 17 proving under-weight.

Pedlars of fruit, vegetables and nuts which now are sold by weight or count, instead of by dry measure have increased the work of the department as the spring scale in general use by these persons, is very liable to get out of order; 300 of such inspections were made and many scales adjusted.

Milk bottles can now be sealed by the manufacturer instead of the local sealer. The change puts the burden on the sealer to see that the bottle holds the correct amount by stopping the team on the street. In some cases it was found that the bottles were correct but they were not always filled to capacity.

Milk Inspector

Mr. Arthur Hudson, the milk inspector, states that the quality of milk sold in Newton in 1912 was generally above the legal standard, 808 samples of milk having been examined. It is interesting to note that Mr. Hudson estimates that the daily milk supply in Newton is 18,233 quarts and 812 quarts of cream, or 6,669,818 quarts of milk and 279,191 quarts of cream during the year, at an estimated value of $816,077.52.

AUGUST PRICES FOR FALL FURS
 Lamson & Hubbard of 92 Bedford St. Have Large and Select Stock

Those who are methodical in their purchases and carefully anticipate well in advance the approaching season are the very ones who now will begin to consider their winter's furs. This is especially true of those who either feel the need of new gowns, coats or neck pieces, or who see an advantage in having their old furs made over to suit the prevailing styles.

Lamson & Hubbard, of 92 Bedford street, are advertising special August prices, and the house will gladly give all required information to those who care to come in touch with the firm, which means that prospective purchasers will be furnished with careful estimates also.

An advantage of buying furs now is that the house requires no payment until fall delivery, and, meantime, no storage charges are asked. In the collection of furs will be found many rare skins made in designs that are original with the house. The designs include some of the best ideas from the most noted furriers of the world.

In the last five years Lamson & Hubbard have greatly enlarged their fur department and factory facilities, and today they are better prepared than ever to meet the demands of their growing trade.

MR. WALTON WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Greycroft Inn, at Beverly presented a very attractive appearance Saturday evening being decorated and illuminated with Japanese lanterns, the occasion being a greeting to the guests of the salmagundi party, and incidentally to do homage to the prize winners of the croquet tournament, which was finished Saturday.

Mr. Horace M. Walton of Linwood avenue, Newtonville, was the winner of the silver cup, which also carries with it the croquet championship of Greycroft.

Mr. Walton displayed great skill and judgment in carrying off the premier honors from his opponent, Woodrow Wilson of Boston. The prizes were presented by E. D. Richardson, who in very neatly worded speeches praised the vanquished as well as the victors.

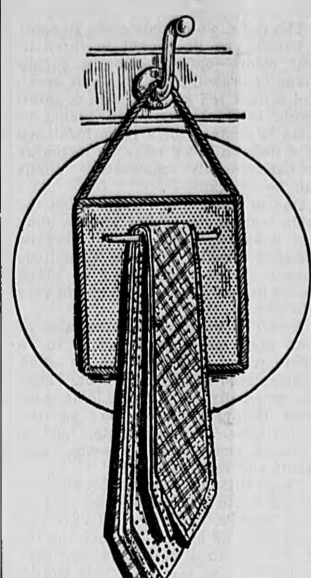

It was one of the delightful social events on the shore, and attended by a large number of guests who participated with great enthusiasm.

Little Holder, the Work of Only a Few Minutes, Will Be Found Most Useful.

This little novelty is intended for hanging from one of the pegs in a wardrobe or cupboard, and can be made in a few moments. It merely consists of a square piece of stiff cardboard, covered on both sides with pale blue art linen, and edged with cord, and it is provided at the top with a loop of some of the same cord, by which it may be suspended from the peg.

Across the upper part, a band of broad elastic is sewn, under which the ties may be slipped in the manner illustrated, and in this position, they will not become creased or out of shape, a thing which so often happens when loosely placed together in a drawer.

Any particular tie may be seen and selected at a glance, and pulled from the band without disturbing the others. The sketch so clearly shows the nature of this useful little article, that further description is unnecessary.

KIMONOS IN ALL DESIGNS

Dainty Negligee Garment May Be Had in Practically Any Form That Can Be Required.

Despite the pronounced vogue of Chinese modes in formal garb, the Japanese kimono remains the intimate friend of the woman who has a collection of dainty lounging robes. For those cold mornings when the wind howls outside and the furnace is in sulky mood, there are comforting robes of quilted Japanese silk, daintily hand-worked with light and dark floss.

For milder weather there are adorable kimonos of flowered satin with borders of satin or Japanese silk, and some of these have the shirring at the elevated waist line which slightly suggest a blending of the Empire with the Oriental style.

Still more fascinating are the cotton and silk crepes in white, sprinkled over with pink cherry blossoms and in blue or rose printed with graceful sprays of white wistaria. To wear the kimono there must be a clinging loose slip of satin in a solid tone matching either the grounding or the figuring of the robe. Many women, however, prefer to wear the ordinary princess garment of Secco silk trimmed with lace ruffles or the one in white lingerie carrying muslin embroidery.

Van Dyck point insertions, and edgings of Valenciennes lace.

MADE HAPPY BRIDAL TABLE
 Novel Ideas, a Feature of Recent Dinner, May Be Worth Keeping in the Memory.

At a dinner given by some college lads and lassies to a couple who had been very popular and whose engagement was made during their college days, the following were some of the novel features: For a centerpiece there was a good-sized sailboat afloat on real water, which was supposed to represent the "Sea of Matrimony" and the name on the boat's side was "Just Launched." The two college colors were flying and the cargo consisted of white roses and red carnations, the two class flowers. When the clear soup was served, a tiny bark made of thin bit of toast with toothpickmast and paper sail floated in it and the fees at the end were in the shape of ships, the bonbons were in tiny canoes. The two class colors were also in evidence in great bowls of red and white tarlatan, which adorned the chairs occupied by the honored guests. The guests acted as sponsors for the happy pair, and all gave toast in honor of the newly launched craft, which was aptly called "W & W" to a rhyme read by one of the guests.

Amber Articles.

Amber is at the top notch of popularity. This is significant, in view of the fact that champagne is the popular spring color in Paris for gowns, suits, etc., and that (as is so well thought of in this country).

In point of fact, however, amber has been slowly, but surely, winning public favor for a year or more. Starting with a mere spark, this favor gradually increased to a flame, then became a blaze and now bids fair to finally amount to a positive conflagration.

AUTOS COLLIDE

An automobile owned by Harry J. O'Meara of 5 Abbottsford road, Roxbury, a nephew of Police Commissioner O'Meara of Boston, containing two men and two women, besides the chauffeur, came in collision with an auto owned by Representative George H. Ellis and driven by Supt. F. B. Stables, Monday morning, at the corner of Elm and Border streets, West Newton. Although nobody was injured, Mr. Ellis' car was badly damaged.

Mr. O'Meara's machine was going along Elm street, toward West Newton square, when the smaller machine came out of Border street, and attempted to make the corner in the same direction in which the large machine was going. Neither machine could be brought to a stop to avert a collision, and the larger machine crashed into Representative Ellis' car, knocking off the rear left wheel and badly damaging the body.

The chauffeur of Mr. O'Meara's car, after ascertaining the damage done off, and the other car was towed to a nearby garage, where repairs were made.

SLOW WITH WIDOWS

But Mrs. Crabtree's Lemon Pies Were Good and She Was Coy.

By CARL JENKINS.

Of course Deacon Hartley, widower, knew that there was such a person in the village of Dalton as Mrs. Crabtree.

He knew that she was a widow.

He knew that she attended his church.

In fact he passed her house at least ten times a week.

The Deacon knew things and would not have denied them, but he was going slow on widows. During the eight years he had been a widower four different attempts had been made to lasso him for another trip in the saddle of matrimony—two by widows and two by old maids.

The Deacon was a sly old bird of sixty. He was comfortably well off. The days passed peacefully, and he wasn't taking any risks. And the four attacks or him by the four women had made him so suspicious of the sex that if a woman stopped him on the sidewalk and asked the time of day there seemed to be a hidden motive somewhere.

The widow Crabtree had never sought to advance herself in the attention of the Deacon. If he bowed as they encountered each other at the church door she bowed. If he remarked that it was a fine morning she agreed. On one occasion he asked whether old Mrs. Thompson was dead or not, and she had replied that she guessed not, as she had seen her out mending the stable door the afternoon before.

It cannot be said that Mrs. Crabtree was either sixty years old or a sly bird, but she may have had thoughts and plans. It's just possible that she may have picked up a hint from a remark dropped by a neighbor one day. The Deacon's name happened to come into the conversation, and the neighbor said:

"Isn't it queer about the Deacon's appetite?"

"How do you mean?"

"Why, he's a regular fend for lemon pie. He wants one at every meal."

"You don't say!"

"And that's about all he does want. He's had about three housekeepers a year since his wife died, and has let them all go because they couldn't make good lemon pies. Aunt Sally Smith is there now, but she was telling me the other day that she don't expect to stay long. He says her lemon pies would kill a dog."

Nothing further was said, but there was a germ of a big idea. The Deacon always went to the postoffice after supper. Sometimes he passed the widow's and sometimes he went the other way. She took her chance the afternoon of the conversation and baked a lemon pie. Mrs. Crabtree had never boasted of her skill as a pie-maker, but when it came to a lemon pie she had a twist of the wrist that turned them out for a king.

At six o'clock on that summer evening the Deacon came walking down Spruce street. He had just got up from the table, and on that table had been lemon pie. Aunt Sally Smith had done her level best. The Deacon had cut the pie in halves and lifted half up in his hand and taken a bite of it and exclaimed:

"Take the darn thing off!"

"But it's a fine e, Deacon."

"It tastes like a raw carrot!"

"Mercy on me!"

"Feed it to the dog!"

"Deacon, you just surely have eaten green cherries and got a bad taste in the mouth. I never took such pains with a lemon pie."

"You never knew and you are too of flims, I wish I knew in a hundred miles how to make a lemon pie!"

Aunt Sally started to the kitchen with quivering chin, and Deacon Hartley shoved back his hat and started for the postoffice. He was watching for the widow Crabtree. He came down Spruce street with a scowl on his face, and as he reached her gate she opened called:

"Just a minute, please, Deacon."

"Well, what is it?"

"I am going to ask you rather a funny question."

"I don't care to answer it."

"But lemon?"

"I can eat three made right," said mouth began to water.

"I made one for you come in and I should like your opinion of it. Will you come in?"

"Bless me, yes!"

That pie was on the table waiting for him. His eyes began to dance at the sight of it. It was a noble looking pie. It seemed to smile in his face. There was juice there. There was a crust there as flaky as the bark on a spring willow. At last he had found the hope of his life.

The widow cut him pie in quarters and passed him one of them. He ate this standing up, and with great gusto. Then he ate the next section sitting down, and he smacked his lips just seven times.

"Have another?"

"He would."

"And don't leave this piece to be someone's."

He didn't. It followed the other three, with many a smack and grunt, and then the Deacon stood up and said:

"Widow Crabtree, I never tasted better."

"Thank you, Deacon."

"I never tasted as good."

"You are so kind."

"If I could only have such pies every day—yum! yum!"

On the next day Aunt Sally determined to suit the Deacon's taste for lemon pie or break a leg. She went to no less than five of the neighbors for advice, and she was as careful as she would have been with the works of a watch, but when the good man came to sample it he shook his head and said:

"There's a little improvement—just a little. I could tell it from dried pumpkin, but that's about all!"

"But what can be the matter with it?" asked Aunt Sally in despair.

"Tain't lemon pie."

"But I put in two lemons."

"Guess they crawled out again!"

"You know they couldn't. Deacon Doctor Sholes says that too many lemons will destroy the stomach."

"But I don't want but three a day!"

"It's so funny that I can't suit you. You must get a peculiar taste in the mouth just before your meals. You don't chew tobacco, do you?"

"You know better."

"You don't eat sorrel?"

"Course not."

"Nor pucker your mouth up with green plums?"

"Humph!"

"Well, I see that I may as well commit suicide first as last!" she wailed as he left the house.

It was down Spruce street again, and again the widow came to the door. This time she said:

"Deacon, I just happened to make another lemon pie today."

"Good!"

"And if you will step in—"

"Why, of course."

The pie was devoured and pronounced even better than the one before, if possible. He lingered for a few minutes this time, but their conversation was only friendly. He was bland and the widow was coy, just as should be.

It got to be the thing for the Deacon to stop and eat a lemon pie every evening, and sometimes he remained for an hour afterwards. This can't be done in a village without gossip. By and by, without the principals having heard a whisper, the parson of the Deacon's church called him to the study and said:

"Deacon, they say you are courting widow Crabtree?"

"Hain't even thought of it, parson."

"But you call there every evening."

"Parson, do you like lemon pie?"

was asked.

"Why, yes."

"Well, the widder Crabtree makes the best in the land. That's what I stop for—to eat one of her fresh-baked lemon pies."

The parson leaned back and thought for a minute and then said:

"If I was a widower—"

"Yes?"

"And I knew a nice widow—"

"Yes?"

"Who could make the best lemon pie in Davis county—"

"Yes?"

"I'd fall in love with and marry her within three months!"

"And darn my old hat if I don't do it!"

And he did, and at last accounts he was eating his three lemon pies a day and the couple was very happy.

It's No Use.

Miss Inez Mitholland, the well known and charming suffragist, was arguing with an "anti" at a dinner at the Colony club in New York.

"Oh, you are unfair," she said. "You turn even our meigs against us. You are like Rain-in-the-Face."

"Chief Rain-in-the-Face was once escorting a woman in a canoe across a Canadian lake which the Indians held in superstitious dread, believing that if one spoke while crossing the lake one would inevitably be destroyed by the Great Spirit."

"Well, the woman thought she would cure the Indians of this silly superstition, and so, in the middle of the lake, she sang a song at the top of her voice."

"Rain-in-the-Face was overcome with dread and horror. He signified to his paddlers to paddle faster, and the men strained every nerve. In silence they soon landed the canoe on the opposite bank."

"Then the woman said to Rain-in-the-Face:

"There! I hope you're convinced now that one can talk and sing while crossing the lake without angering the Great Spirit?"

"Huh," said Rain-in-the-Face scornfully. "The Great Spirit is merciful. He knows a woman can't keep still!"

Where Farming is on a Big Scale.

E. W. Howe of Atchison, who is globe-trotting again, writes from Melbourne: "In the warehouse of the sleeping car, early this morning, I met an American, a Boston man, who has been a gentleman farmer in Australia for 12 years. He told me he owned 52,000 acres of land, and that, where as he came here with nothing 12 years ago, he would not take $1,500,000 for what he owns now. He originally visited the country on business, thought he detected great possibilities, and came here to live. He didn't know corn from barley when he began, but applied business rules to farming, and has succeeded. I expressed surprise as to his large land holding, whereupon he told me that in the interior there are sheep farms 500 miles square, or as big as the state of Kansas. This land is leased from the government at a pittance and artesian wells 3,000 feet deep are being bored, and these wells are greatly benefiting the arid district."—Kansas City Star.

MAKES PRETTY WEDDING GIFT

Novel Centerpiece, Braided in Rickrack Braid Will Be Found Very Acceptable.

A novel centerpiece is one which is braided in rickrack braid instead of the much-used coronation and souché braids. Get a centerpiece which is not too close in pattern, as the lines must be far enough apart to conveniently lay the rickrack braid upon them without overlapping. When sewing the braid on to the centerpiece, use the running stitch through the middle of the braid, taking care that only very short stitches show on the right side. Embroider French knots on each point of the braid, using a medium weight embroidery cotton. This is very effective with the French knots in Delft blue or a pretty green. If the pattern has extra lines like veins to a leaf, or dots, embroider these in the same color that you use for the French knots. The edge may be buttonholed in white an outline of the color on the inside edge, or it may be in one solid color. No. 17 in the braid is a pretty size. This makes a handsome centerpiece, and one that is entirely new.

BACKWARD VIEW OF FASHION

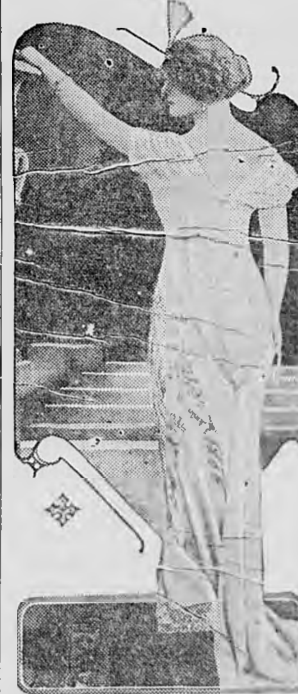

Most Interesting Way of Really Getting Hold of the Changes in Style.

An interesting way of really getting hold of the changes of fashion is to look back a year and see what one was talking about then. Judged by that test, one of the most striking contrasts between last June and this is the persistence with which the subject of silk holds the attention today.

Ordinarily, by the first of June, silk has practically ceased to demand consideration. Even belated buyers—those women who, in ordering their wardrobes, never do catch up with the season and never will—refuse generally to get excited about silk suits and dresses when summer is actually present.

But this year these late shoppers cannot afford to ignore silk, for it is enjoying one of the most enduring vogues in all its long and checkered career. The woman who thrifty looks ahead and expects considerable service out of her wardrobe is especially open to the idea of silk as a summer fabric, for she reflects complacently that the frocks can be carried over for cold weather wear.

EVENING GOWN

An evening gown of champagne charmeuse with embroidery and lace yoke. The skirt shows a deep accordion plaited flounce.

Fall Shoes.

Local manufacturers and jobbers of women's shoes offer 14-button patent and dull leather shoes, with narrow toes and low heels, for fall wear, says the New York Times. Out-of-town orders so far specify broad toes and lower heels, combined with the wide English shank. Colonial effects and pumps, with narrow toes and Louis Cuban heels, lead current selling. High shoes most called for now are patent leathers having gray, brown and white cloth tops. For summer the demand is practically limited to white kid and canvas oxfords. Tan and white oxfords sell best for men's spring and summer wear. Tan high shoes are the expected leaders for men's fall footwear. New styles will have wide toes and low heels.

Evening Coats.

Evening coats for young girls are made of net, silk, crepes and pinions embroidered in silver, pearls and moonlight beads. The body of the coat often is set into a deep hem of brocade satin or ribbon well below the hips. This gives that effect of restrained fullness which is a feature of the present fashions.

Napkin Cases.

Among the many dainty pieces of Madeira work shown in the shops are napkin cases shaped quite like envelopes. The flap is elaborately embroidered. Other cases similar in shape are for handkerchiefs.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—A number of new attractions never before seen in Boston will be included on the bill arranged next week for B. F. Keith's Theatre. The Great Adas Troupe of sensational lady aerialists, who were brought to this country as a special feature with the Barnum and Bailey Circus during its engagement in Madison Square Garden, will make their first appearance outside of New York City in a spectacular aerial act that is described as a genuine thriller. Surrounding this aerial feature will be a number of turns new to Boston, among them being Kramer and Morton, two black dots as they call themselves, who present a really startling and unique series of dances and songs in black-face. Captain George Auger, the giant, will appear supported by his novel company of midgets in "Jack, The Giant Killer," an adaptation of the old fairy tale of that name, and other excellent features will be Irvin and Herzog, two comical comedians with splendid voices, known as "those men in blue," Burke, King and Walsh, dancers three, including a very pretty girl; Bell and West, another new team of funmakers; the Oxford Trio, fresh from Europe, who will make their first appearance in this country at B. GETHSEMANE COMMANDERY, KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

Newton Knights Are Enjoying Their Trip To Denver Colorado

Gethsemane Commandery, Knights Templar, now in Denver, Colo., attending the triennial convocation of the national body, had an interesting and unexpected experience on the way.

Their special train was taken off the regular route because of a freight wreck five miles beyond La Junta and on the route of the excursionists. It occasioned a delay of a few hours in reaching Pueblo, but gave the party more than the schedule called for and enabled those aboard to see a new phase of the country, also taking them within 10 miles of New Mexico.

At one station on the return over the Colorado Southern Mrs. Harry G. Pollard of Lowell created a happy diversion for those in the company by distributing a box of chocolates to a group of papooses.

On the way up a stop was made at Newton, Kan. It came about that one of the trainmen, a member of the K. T. Commandery of that city, had telegraphed ahead that Templars from Newton, Mass., were on their way to Denver, and on his suggestion, a reception was arranged for the tourists, who found on their arrival three score Templars as well as about 100 other citizens at the station.

Commander Chevey extended a warm greeting to Commander Church and those who accompanied him. Then the commander of Gethsemane introduced Grand Commander Nagle, who presented the members of his suite. As a further mark of courtesy from the Kansas Templars a dozen watermelons grown in their own town were put on the train and to each was presented a phial containing Newton water, which the inhabitants claim is 99 per cent pure.

The exchange of knightly courtesies is due to the fact that Newton, Kan., was settled by persons from Newton, Mass.

An hour was devoted by the pilgrims to the museum of mines. Mrs. Walter G. Adams and Mrs. Thomas Zeigler, on behalf of the women's committee of the local commandery, received the women visitors at the hotel, where the pilgrims took dinner and will be in attendance to greet all who pass thru their city.

On Saturday the party visited Pike's Peak. They had with them the Beaumont of the commandery and thus showed it 14,171 feet above sea level the highest point where such has been displayed. Delegations of two Pennsylvania Commanderies were there at the time.

Mrs. E. W. Paine of Newton was overcome by the bracing atmosphere and restoratives were applied by Dr. Miller of Gethsemane, so that she was in her normal condition by the time the train returned. The party had the novel experience while on the summit of being out in an August snow squall and later in the day were caught in a hail-storm 8000 feet up, while going to Pleasant Park.

Gethsemane Commandery, Knights Templar, are considerably in evidence this week at the triennial convocation of the order now being held at Denver, Colo. If newspaper reports from that city are any criterion.

On the way from Boston the ladies of the party received large black and white silk parasols. On the handle of each is a small beaumont, on which is the device, "Gethsemane Commandery, No. 35, Newtonville, Denver, 1913."

On arrival at Denver the ladies evolved the idea of escorting Grand Warden Jewett to the Grand Commandery headquarters in the Brown Palace Hotel. They hoisted their parasols, which caught the sunlight rays and made a charming picture. With a band and a score from Greeley Commandery leading, and followed by the Gethsemane escort directed by Adit. Billings, then Commander Church and Grand Warden Jewett, the parasol contingent and Knights of Gethsemane combined to make the most effective sight yet seen where there has been a constant panorama of surprises.

The entire route from the railroad station to the hotel was crowded with cheering crowds. It was one constant ovation and at least 50 times cheers were started and Templars came to attention.

The women in the ladies' party were Mrs. William L. Church, Mrs. Austin H. Decatur, Mrs. C. W. Henderson, Jr., Mrs. J. O. Perkins, Mrs. Albert H. Miller, Mrs. E. F. Ripley, Mrs. William Mitchell, Mrs. W. K. Dunham, Mrs. C. E. M. Ross, Mrs. A. C. Daniels, Mrs. John Daniel, Mrs. O. H. Butler, Mrs. John W. Fisher, Mrs. C. A. Galland, Mrs. A. H. Foucar, Mrs. William H. Bliss, Mrs. E. W. Paine, Mrs. J. M. Gillond, Mrs. H. M. Fletcher, Mrs. L. W. Perkins, Miss Sophie T. Anthony, Miss Gertrude S. Young, Miss Mabel Williams, Miss Lillian Williams, Miss C. A. Williams, Miss Emma Grover, Miss Mildred E. Rose and Miss Lottie A. Rose of Gethsemane, besides Mrs. George E. Collins and Miss Daisy M. Royell of the Grand Commandery.

Gethsemane Commandery made an imposing appearance when drawn up on the lower floor of the Brown Palace, the gold baldrics of the escort proving attractive to the eye. Acting Capt. Gen. Decatur led the way for Grand Commander Nagle and suite, and as they passed along to the head of the line the commandery saluted, acting Generalissimo Shepard being in charge.

There was another incident of delightful nature for one of the Gethsemane pilgrims. Mrs. John Daniel was the bearer of a loving message to Grand Master Melish from Past Grand Commander Caleb Saunders of Lawrence, who through illness, was prevented from attending the grand encampment. The grand master presented Mrs. Daniel an exquisite badge as provided by the Grand Commandery of Colorado and also asked her to convey to Past Grand Commander Saunders the grand encampment members' badge. Mrs. Daniel was welcomed by Mrs. Melish at an informal reception held by the latter during the afternoon.

THE NEWTON PLAYGROUNDS

Plans Being Made For Second Annual Field Day Next Week at Newton Centre

Plans are under way for the second annual field day of the Newton Playgrounds which is to be held at the Newton Centre Playground next week. If funds can be secured for a band an all day picnic will be held. The announcement as made by Superintendent Hermann, follows:

Second Annual Field Day

Note—The Field Day at the Newton Centre Playground will be either on Friday, August 22, or on Saturday, August 23.

Preliminary announcement of events and directions for the games, folk dances and athletic events.

All the playground directors are urged to prepare the children for this field day. It is very important that we bring out the largest number of children possible, and that we get the parents also to come. We shall try and make this affair an annual picnic and if we can secure a band for the whole day we shall make this field day an "All Day" affair. The directors should begin at once to canvas the children and also the parents and urge them all to participate in a joyful children's day.

Playground Colors

Each playground shall have a distinctive color and if possible some banners around which the children and parents may gather. The directors shall see to it that all the children are properly provided with colored bands. The boys shall wear theirs around their left arms and the girls shall wear a sash from right shoulder to left hip.

The colors are to be as follows:
Farlow Park—Old Blue.
Stearns Playground—Kelly Green.
Cabot Playground—Pink.
West Newton Common and Eden avenue—Navy Blue.
Newton Lower Falls—Red, White and Blue.
Newton Upper Falls—Orange.
Newton Highlands—Cardinal Red.
Newton Centre and Thompsonville—Yellow.

GLOUCESTER EXCURSION DAILY

Up along the North Shore route by the boats of the Gloucester line is an experience worth taking any time one is within reach of the north side of Central wharf, foot of State street.

The starting time is 10 A. M., weekdays, and 10.15 sharp Sundays and holidays. The rugged charms of Cape Ann and quaint old Gloucester at this season of the year are particularly delightful.

Enough time is given one at the fishing city to give a splendid idea of what the great fishing industry is like.

REVERE BEACH

Great preparations are being made for the Carnival and Mardi Gras festival which will take place this year on Sept. 2nd and continue until Sept. 13th. Revere Beach is rapidly forcing the front in regard to Carnival celebrations, and while the character of the display is not as elaborate as of New Orleans it is said by many to have seen both that Revere is a second.

Many new innovations have been planned to please the public and reported that many surprises are in store for all who visit Revere Beach during Carnival time. J. W. Gorm world famed High Diving Ho "King and Queen," have been engaged at great expense to give exhibitions of equifite intelligence to the public.

The Mardi Gras spirit will be rampant at the resort during the commencing Sept. 8th, at which the famous Mardi Gras celebration start in earnest. The parade will in review along the entire length of the Reservation and it is conservatively estimated that fully two hundred thousand persons will witness the play each evening.

CRANDALL—WHITE

Miss Frances Alice White, daughter of Mr. Charles McIntosh White of Waldorf road, Newton Upper Falls, quietly married Sunday evening at home of her grandmother in Maine to Ralph Grinnell Crandall of Chicago, a graduate of Radcliffe College for the past four years who has been teacher in the Newton schools. Crandall is an attorney in Chicago.

HIS OWN ATTITUDE

Breath of Spring, Girls, and Franchise of Flowers Wrought Wonders as Usual.

By A. MARIA CRAWFORD.

"Marjory Patten is the sort of girl to warm the very cockles of your diuined heart. She is an airy, fairy girl, the kind to enchain an old fellow like you, Jim. You smack of strange lands beyond the seas and since women adore adventurous spirits, your affection will be returned. There you are with pretty romance ready made for you!"

The desert-browed face of the man relaxed a little and his lips parted in a slow smile. "It's a funny thing to me how you drowning men want to pull us down with you."

"I wouldn't be single again for anything you could name," exclaimed Sullins Stuart heatedly. "I am absolutely happy. Kate is the finest woman in the world."

"Well, I am glad to hear that. For the life of me, I can't place her. She must have been a child when I left here the last time. They do grow up in such a hurry."

"She has taken a tremendous interest in getting up the dinner for you tonight. Her decorations, fics, in fact everything represents the desert lands of Africa where you have been keeping yourself for years."

"Sounds like a dry dinner," laughed Jim Heskell.

"Nothing drier than the champagne except sunlight," Stuart flashed back at him. "You can trust Kate to find an oasis in any desert."

"Good!" A whimsical little smile wrinkled the corners of his worldly wise gray eyes. "I wish that I had faith in women as you have, Sullins. It means everything to a man's happiness."

"Your own attitude has something to do with it. I remember that you distrusted girls back in our college days."

"Not without reason perhaps. I loved a girl then who, in schoolboy language went back on me."

Stuart laughed until men in the club rooms where they sat smiled to hear him.

"Fancy you, an old globe trotter, who has had his fling everywhere, having his heart broken at school! That's too good to keep. Talking of the past reminds me that Kate was able to get an acceptance to dinner tonight from Anne Templeton. She is a very famous woman."

"Anne Templeton?"

"Yes, surely you remember her. Her father was professor of English. She used to draw pictures of everybody on the campus. They were great too. Well, now she is the most distinguished portrait painter in this country."

"I remember her. She drew a picture of me sitting on a bench by our frat house with my arm around a girl and presented it, framed, to me."

"Could you recognize the girl in the picture?"

"Instantly! So Anne Templeton has never married!"

The breath of spring, sweet with the fragrance of flowers on the street outside, blew in at the open window. Golden jonquills in bowls about the rooms made a brave show of color in the fading light.

"We had better be going soon. Kate wants you early so that she can find out for herself if you are as attractive as some of us have told her. Marjory Patten is visiting her and I think she hopes to give the girl a try at you before the other guests arrive. Who is the girl of your youthful love affair? I'll wager she is married, fat and has three children."

"I refuse to tell. She must never know that she shattered my faith in women. It might make her happy."

As the two men stepped into Stuart's home an hour later, their attention was instantly drawn to a girl who was coming down the stairs. Fair and slender with her soft white gown with valley lilacs clustered on her breast, she seemed the very embodiment of the elusive something men call youth. For some it endures only a little while but for the elect, it lingers in the heart when age comes on, making music out of discord and roses out of life's rue. The charm of youth, long dormant in the traveler's breast, stirred at sight of the picture on the stairs like the tiny plants in the earth flutter into blossom at the kiss of the south wind and the blue bird's love call in the early spring.

"Come, Marjory, and meet a distinguished cynic! Miss Marjory Patten, Mr. James Heskell, late of the unromantic country of the Nile!"

"Kate was late in getting home from an auction bridge game this afternoon and isn't ready yet to monopolize you as she threatened," said Marjory when greetings had been interchanged.

"I wonder," said Jim Heskell thoughtfully when Stuart had left them together in a cozy little den. "I wonder if I would appear very ungainly if I said that I am glad Mrs. Stuart's bridge game was so interesting that she couldn't leave it any sooner than she did?"

"That would be a debatable subject."

"Then let's avoid it!"

"It must be wonderful to know the world as well as you do, Mr. Heskell. I, too, have heard the voice of the Wanderlust."

"And why have you never followed?"

"Father needed me at home. It was my pleasure to stay with him because a woman is never happy when she is sacrificing something apparently desirable for the sake of loved ones."

"I am glad to know there is one unselfish woman in the world."

"There are many of them."

"Almost I am persuaded to believe."

"Why have you no faith in us?"

"That is not a fair question since I have just met you. I thought that I was in love when I was a college boy. The girl was pretty, charming and clever. You know how a boy idealizes the first girl! Well, she did something dishonorable to hurt me and made unjustly critical of all women since that time. It isn't fair perhaps but my disillusionment in her case colored my glasses for all things feminine. I have been lonely because I was afraid to trust again."

"Surely, somewhere the healing waters of faith flow for you."

"I am beginning to hope," he said faintly, "that I have found such a pool of water, clear and sparkling under palm trees' slender fronds and though I may drink deeply of its pure waters, yet I shall always thirst for more."

"Then perhaps," said Marjory innocently, her ringless hands arranging and rearranging the lilacs on her breast, "you have had your faith awakened. I would be a splendid thing for a woman to know that she was able to lead you back to the heights."

"It would be more splendid for me for no man can be happy without faith. But how about the woman? Would she believe that after years of exile in foreign countries, I could come back unspotted by the world? Would I be worth her saving grace?"

She looked into the clear gray eyes of the man before her. "I know you are worth any woman's effort to try and make you happy," she said.

An illuminating light as of some powerful torch within made his eyes bright and his face as the face of a boy.

"You represent youth and the happiness of springtime to me. Your eyes are misty with youth's dear dreams, there are flowers all about you and your voice has the sound of happy birds singing in budding trees. Can springtime come to winter?" he asked, touching the hair that was turning gray on his temples.

"She hides in his heart," said Marjory softly.

At the dinner table the distinguished portrait painter whom Heskell had taken in turned to him with a question.

"Do you remember the picture I drew of you and the little Mayfield girl sitting on a bench near your frat house?"

"Yes," he answered quietly, "I remember."

"I have always wanted to apologize for that. It was a mean thing to do. I never saw you put your arm around any girl but I was suspicious and jealous I suppose. I dare say you didn't care. Boys never take things like that seriously."

"I understand," he said and thought of the long, empty years embittered by loss of faith in his girlhood ideal.

"Do you expect to go journeying again soon?" asked his hostess.

"No," he returned promptly, "I am going to stay at home. Your springtime here is so wonderful, I mean to woo her with a lover's ardor," he said enigmatically and nobody understood but Marjory who smiled at him over a miniature jungle where wild beasts lurked in search of prey.

Neutral Water.

According to old fishermen there is what might be called neutral ground, or rather neutral water, in rivers, where there is no use of trying to make a catch—unless it be that some food fish with a piscatorial brain-storm snatches bait like an insane human might grab a red hot stove.

This neutral water is the part of the river where its flow encounters the saline impregnation of the salt water of the bay or ocean into which it finally empties. With the ebb and the flow of the tide the salt water of the bay runs up into the river for miles, and on the reverse the fresh water descends several miles against the bay leading into the salt sea.

There is a midway between the salt and fresh water points, however, that very seldom shifts. Around this mid-way shad and blue and other salt water fish, if they visit at all, will hover on the ocean side. On the fresh water fringe will loiter such fish as inhabit currents that are devoid of the saline ingredients. If the fisherman happens to cast bait in this neutral zone he is not likely to get either one kind or the other

HER LAST LONG SIGH

By GRACE G. BOSTWICK.

"It isn't as though she had cared," Atherton said, in a tired voice, turning the letters and telegrams over listlessly. "It isn't as though she had cared," he repeated, dully, opening and closing the small drawers, one by one. He was searching for a photograph that she had kept on her desk—a likeness taken in her early girlhood, long before he had met her.

As he felt clumsily about among the papers a letter fell out. He started to replace it, but caught sight of his own name in the familiar writing and paused. He opened it with trembling fingers.

"I did the best I could," he said, slowly to himself. "I couldn't help not caring. I thought I could—at first. I thought it would come with time. God! how hard it has been, how bitter hard!" He passed his thin, nervous hand wearily across his colorless face. "At least, she never knew, never suspected, nor cared, either way," he said, bitterly. "She was as indifferent as—as I was."

"I wonder if she knows now," he breathed. "I wonder if she knows—and understands. She never seemed to understand anything. I used to wonder how anyone could feel so little and live. I tried once to tell her how I felt and she laughed. Said I needed something to tone me up. Perhaps she was right. Perhaps I am a morbid chap. Poor Helen!" he sighed as he pored over the letter in the falling light. He sat up, startled.

"Dear," he read, "I couldn't hope ever to make you understand how I love you. You have just left me—cold, unloving, careless, as you always are—and I (poor foolish, loving thing) put my starved arms about your chair and laid my lips passionately against the spot where your dear head has lain. Dearest, no man was ever loved more deeply, more tenderly, than you are. O, the sadness, the heartbreak of it all!"

"I want you to know if you are left—and you will be—that I have always cared. Dear, I know how it is with you. I know that the bonds have become so irksome that they have worn into your very soul. If you had cared, John, we should have been very happy. I love your work, your interests, but I have not dared voice it for fear—O that look! that cruelly indifferent, hard, careless look! It burns into me as I write and I write under the torture of it."

He sat with his head on his arms for hours. Once he cried out in agony: "My God, if I had known! If I had known!"

At last he climbed the heavy, dark stairway to the room above to face his dead. He turned back the white coverlid with hands strangely steady after his long vigil.

Her face was oddly girlish as it was in the little photo. He felt a vast tenderness welling up within him as he looked.

"If I could tell her just once and see her smile as she used to smile before!" He buried his face in the clothes at her side at the recollection. He remembered suddenly that she had been possessed of a horror of burial with life still existent. He started and looked again, piercingly, into her still face. It was not marble-like as the faces he had seen in death. A sudden glow clutched at his heart.

"Helen," he cried, "come back! You are mine, child; I have always loved you—always. I didn't know. O child, open your eyes to me!" His face went gray with the effort of his life. He was straining, striving against death, the conqueror himself. He prayed by all he held sacred. By his mother's memory. By his belief in love, by the prayers of the long-gone dead, and holding her two cold hands in his own, he chafed and warmed them unweariedly, repeatedly, calling to her, pleading with her, begging her to come back.

The passionate warmth of his appeal softened the cold stiffness of her fingers. They seemed to him to be growing pliant, human.

"Helen," he called for the last time, "Helen child, it is I—open your eyes to me!" It was the impassioned appeal of soul to soul.

Then slowly, wearily, unwillingly, as of some child waking from a sleep of deep exhaustion, the cold, white lids lifted and the familiar eyes looked into his own, though faintly as from a long distance. The shadow of a smile parted the gray lips—the lips of death.

"You are going to live!" he cried, loudly. "You are going to live—for me!" He felt her cold, cold face against his own hot cheek. He heard her sigh—a long sigh of rapture that was almost a sob—then breathless.

In the little study below the sick-room—the room of resurrection—a few hours later Atherton again fumbled about his wife's desk for the little photo. Again his awkward hands tumbled the contents of the drawers in reckless confusion, but at last they closed on the treasured picture. Tears of joy, the great tears that rise out of the deepest feeling of a strong man's heart, fell thickly, unrestrainedly, on the child-like face of the woman who had been his wife for four long, miserable years.

MR. CAMPBELL DEAD

Mr. Cyrus H. Campbell, one of the best known business men in Nonantum square, died early yesterday morning at his home in Watertown, following a stroke of paralysis, some ten weeks ago. Mr. Campbell was born in Nova Scotia, 69 years ago and came to Newton about 1865, and during the past 48 years has been engaged in business within a mile of Nonantum square. A carpenter by trade, he first entered the employ of Orrin Whipple who operated a mill for many years on Church street, near the site of the present Y. M. C. A. building. On his marriage, Mr. Campbell made his home in Watertown, where he has since resided. He has been engaged in the hardware business for many years, and purchased the business of Clark W. Morehouse about 23 years ago.

Mr. Campbell was twice married and is survived by a widow and a son by his first wife, Mr. George C. Campbell of Watertown. He was a member of the Methodist Church of Watertown and active in all church work. Honest and straightforward in his business and in his social relations, he leaves a large number of friends to mourn his death.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from his late residence on Parker street, Watertown.

POPCORN'S MANY USES

DELICACY NOT USUALLY APPRECIATED BY HOUSEWIFE.

Properly Prepared, It Makes an Ideal Breakfast Cereal—Better Than Usual Cereals Added to the Dinner Soup.

Try popcorn some morning instead of the ordinary breakfast cereal. The chances are you will like it. The corn should be popped the night before and left in the oven or some other warm, dry place until morning. Before serving, set the food grinder at the notch where it grinds its coarsest and run the popcorn through. Place in a warm oven until the chopped popcorn is heated. Then serve with sugar and cream, like any other breakfast food.

Try adding half a dozen fluffy white kernels of popcorn to each portion of soup served. These are a pretty substitute for the usual croutons, and, especially in tomato or pea soup, the color effect is attractive. Where the soup is served at table a small dish of perfect kernels of popcorn can be placed near the tureen and a few served with each portion of soup. They float lightly on the surface and are a pretty novelty. For the nursery table this is a feature sure to be hailed with delight.

Try "kornettes" as a novel form of wafer to serve with afternoon tea. Little cookies are made from one cup of chopped popcorn, a tablespoonful of softened butter, white of one egg, one-third of a cup of sugar, and a little salt. Flavor with a half teaspoonful of vanilla. The butter is first added to the chopped popcorn, then the egg is stiffly beaten and added, then the sugar and other ingredients. Beat all together thoroughly and drop from tip of teaspoon on to a buttered baking sheet. Spread with a knife dipped in cold water and bake in a slow oven until a delicate brown.

Where a coal range is not available there are several ways of attempting to do corn-popping over a gas stove, but the process is never as satisfactory as when done over a bed of live coals. An iron stove lid placed over a burner of a gas range and allowed to become red hot will give sufficient heat to make the kernels burst into bloom, provided one has a little patience. Where gas is used in the kitchen the furnace fire offers a splendid place for the popping of corn. With the large area of coals, the work can be done quickly and well.

Turkish Sweet.

A confection known to every visitor in the land of the crescent and doubtless tasted by the victorious Balkan soldiers, is diamonds of citron. Pare and chop a large fresh citron and boil it until it is tender. Drain the water and add lemon juice and lime juice to cover. Keep the citron covered for three days and then drain and add a pint of boiling syrup of sugar and water and stir until it forms a thick green paste. Add a quarter of a cup of rosewater and boil until it hardens when dropped into ice water to test it. Quickly take from the fire and pour into oiled dishes about an inch thick. Dip into powdered sugar and the confection is done. Although this is not easy to make, a person familiar with candy making ought to be able to get very good results from this rule and to approach if not actually equal the veritable Turkish product.

Apple Fritters.

Pare apples and cut in thin slices; put them in a bowl with a glass of brandy, some white wine, a quarter pound powdered sugar, a little cinnamon (finely powdered) and the rind of a lemon (grated). Let stand some time, turning over frequently. Beat two eggs very light, add one-quarter pound flour, one tablespoon melted butter and as much cold water as will make a thin batter. Dip the apples on a sieve, mix them with the batter and take one slice with a spoon of butter to each fritter. Fry them quickly to a light brown, drain well, put in a dish, sprinkle sugar over each and glaze them nicely.

Burnt Sugar Cake.

This is a nice ice cream cake, as the delicate caramel flavor goes well with most any kind of cream. Take half a cup of butter, one and a half cups of sugar, one cup water, four tablespoonfuls caramel, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, two and a half cups of flour, one teaspoonful vanilla, and beaten whites of two eggs. Bake in a loaf and ice with boiled nut icing made of one cup sugar, one cup milk, teaspoonful butter, and two teaspoonfuls caramel to flavor; add half cup chopped nuts and raisins.

Spilled Water.

Water spilled upon the bed, when some one is ill, may be quickly dried in this manner: Fill a hot water bottle with boiling water and place it between the mattress and the bed clothing.

Asparagus in Pepper Rings.

Remove the seeds from green peppers. Cut rings one-quarter of an inch wide and slip through them asparagus stalks, canned or freshly cooked. Serve with cold French dressing.

Usefulness of Cheesecloth.

Cheesecloth makes good strainers, dust cloths, polishers for furniture or shoes, is excellent to lie over milk crocks and fruit jars, and makes dainty curtains and comforters.

Sweetbreads With Asparagus Especially Appetizing at This Season of the Year—Game Stew and Croquette Sauce Also Good.

Sweetbreads With Asparagus—Par-boil three sweetbreads, plunge in cold water for a moment, drain and lard with thin strips of fat salt pork. Place in saucepan with one cup veal or chicken stock, three green onions (chopped fine), one cup thin sweet cream, salt, pepper, chopped parsley and a very little mace or nutmeg. Heat quickly, but do not boil, or the cream may curdle. Have one cup hot asparagus tips, cooked and drained, and add just before serving.

Game Stew—Lay four mallard ducks cut in small pieces in salt water five hours. Take one bunch of celery, two carrots, one onion, small piece of garlic, five red peppers and chop very fine. Put ducks on to boil and at the same time add the vegetables and half a pound pickled pork. Cook one hour and add one can tomatoes, two cans French mushrooms and cook 30 minutes more. Then add half a teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves, allspice, mace, nutmeg, thyme and savory and three bay leaves. Stir and mix well together. Peel five potatoes, cut in small pieces and add when stew is nearly done. Then add one quart ripe olives, five tablespoonfuls Worcester sauce, half bottle catsup. Thicken with a little flour. Let stew stand 30 minutes after cooking to blend. Be careful not to put in too much of any one spice. The same stew can be made of any wild game, using about the same amount of meat.

Croquette Sauce—The croquette depends for its success on the merits of its outside crust and inside consistency. The former should be delicate and yet strong enough to keep in shape; the latter, when the croquette is hot, should melt into a semi-liquid. The croquette mixture should be finely chopped and made of the best material—chicken, game, sweetbreads, veal or lamb. Rice or mushrooms may be added and it should be mixed with a white sauce, somewhat jellied when cold, so that it will almost liquefy when heated. This is the way to make it: Mix two even tablespoonfuls flour with one tablespoon melted butter and add three half pints rich, jellied, white stock. Season with a bit of thyme, celery, parsley, two cloves, six peppers and sufficient salt. Add one cup thin, white, stock and let the whole simmer slowly an hour. Strain through a fine sieve and let cool.

The Croquettes—Take one and a half pints mince-meat of any sort proper for croquettes and mix thoroughly with one cup of the melted sauce. Season with salt and pepper, stir a few minutes over the fire and add two tablespoonfuls cream and the beaten yolks of three eggs. Form the croquettes in any shape and size preferred, brush with egg, roll in the bread crumbs and fry in a basket immersed in hot fat until they are a delicate brown.

Veal Birds—Buy a large veal steak, cut very thin. Cut off stringy ends. Cut off steaks two inches wide and four inches long. Put stringy ends through meat grinder with same amount of salt pork. To one cup ground pork and veal add one-half cup bread crumbs, one level teaspoon salt, one level teaspoon sage, one-quarter level teaspoon sweet marjoram, dust of pepper, one tablespoon lemon juice and two eggs, beaten slightly. Mix herbs, eggs and lemon juice with bread crumbs before adding to ground meat. Spread each little steak with filling, roll and pin securely with toothpicks. Flour ends well and fry in frying pan with enough grease to cover one-third of ends. When ends are brown, pour in one and a half cups rich milk. Let simmer with cover on slowly until thoroughly cooked through and the gravy becomes brown and thick.

To Clean a Black Straw Hat.

First sponge with alcohol, and then brush over with a thin solution of gum arabic, which gives a varnished finish, as well as a slight stiffness. If the straw is very dingy, use a good black ink or a liquid shoe dressing before applying the gum arabic preparation.

Eggless Chocolate Cake.

One cup sugar, two ounces butter creamed with sugar, three tablespoonfuls of water, one cup sweet milk, three tablespoonfuls (a little heaping) of cornstarch, two level teaspoonfuls of cream tartar, one level of soda, vanilla, slice in one square of melted chocolate. Very nice.

Spots on China.

The beauty of old china is often destroyed by brown spots which appear on the surface.

An effective way to remove these is to bury the dish in the earth, covering it completely.

The darker spots require more time to remove them than the lighter ones.

Remove Odor of Onions.

After peeling onions I always rub my hands well with celery or parsley. I find this very good to counteract the odor of the onions.—Exchange.

When Boiling Greens.

When boiling greens always add a piece of fat about the size of a walnut. This keeps the water from boiling over.

DROWNED IN MAINE

While bathing in Moose Pond, in front of the Denmark Inn last Monday, Miss Linda McAllister of Auburndale, Mass., sank to the bottom in seven feet of water and did not rise.

A young man nearby dove and brought up the body, which was taken ashore and every attempt was made to revive the young woman, but without success. Dr. John Reynolds of Dallas, Texas, a guest at the hotel, and Dr. Abbott of Bridgton, worked over the girl for several hours, and Dr. Henry P. Merrill of Portland was sent for and came at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon with a pulmotor. The physicians decided that death was due solely to heart failure, as there was no water in the lungs.

MR. WALSH DEAD

Michael Walsh, a resident of Auburndale nearly 50 years, died Monday at his home, 49 Staniford street, after a short illness. The deceased was for over 30 years employed by a West Newton contractor. Funeral services were conducted Wednesday morning with a requiem high mass from St. Bernard's Church, West Newton, celebrated by Rev. Fr. Farrell, and interment followed in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham. The bearers were Michael Henley, Thomas F. Manning, Martin Mullen, John F. Carey, Jeremiah Ryan and John F. Kelly.

City of Newton

Boston, Mass., August 4, 1913.
To the Board of Aldermen of the City of Newton.

Gentlemen:

The West End Street Railway Company, by the Boston Elevated Railway Company, its Attorney, respectfully petitions for leave to construct, maintain and use an alteration of its existing locations as follows:

On Tremont Street, a relocation of the northerly of the existing tracks from the Brighton line to Park Street.

On Park Street, a relocation of the easterly of the existing tracks from Tremont Street near Washington Street; and of the westerly of the existing tracks to near Washington Street.

On Washington Street, a relocation of the southerly of the existing tracks from near Park Street to Brook Street; substantially as shown by red lines on plan of A. L. Plimpton, Civil Engineer, dated July 30th, 1913, filed herewith; together with all necessary curves, crossovers, switches and connections; said alterations being in substitution for existing tracks as shown by dotted black lines on aforesaid plan.

Also that permission be given said company to establish and maintain the overhead single trolley electric system of motive power in the operation of its cars on said new tracks, and to erect, maintain and use the necessary poles, also wires, appliances and electrical appliances and apparatus and to make the underground and surface alterations of the streets necessary for that purpose.

West End Street Railway Company, By Boston Elevated Railway Company, Its Attorney,

By William A. Bancroft, President.

City Clerk's Office, August 15, 1913.

In accordance with the provisions of the Revised Ordinances of the City of Newton, notice is hereby given that hearing upon the foregoing petition will be held by the Board of Aldermen on Monday, the 8th day of September, 1913, at 7:45 o'clock P. M., in the City Hall, in that part of said Newton called West Newton, notice of the time and place of such hearing being given by publication of the foregoing petition and this notice thereon fourteen days at least before the day of said hearing in the following newspaper published in said City of Newton: Newton Graphic.

EDITORIAL

The taxpayers of Newton have good cause to congratulate themselves over the tax rate announced this week by the Assessors, and the Assessors themselves, at least until the actual tax bills are out, will be included in the congratulations. To keep the expected increase in the rate down to eighty cents was a truly remarkable feat and the Assessors deserve all that is coming to them in that respect.

The enormous increases in the city tax, state tax and the natural increase in our Metropolitan taxes, together with the low prices of stocks and bonds were large factors in anticipating a heavy increase in the rate. These increases have been partially offset by another large increase in valuations, particularly in personal property. Last year the Assessors found about four millions more property than in 1911 and this year the increase is about three million of dollars. When we find that the average increase in valuations for quite a number of years before 1912 was about a million and a half, these two years make a splendid showing, and come when they are greatly needed.

At the same time we should not deceive ourselves that the Assessors can always be depended upon to dig up three millions additional valuation, and make appropriations accordingly. Indeed, the effect of reducing the rate last year from 17.60 to 17.40 was followed by an extraordinary large city budget, possibly due to the relaxed financial strain on account of the reduction in the rate. I do not believe the city will ever see a tax rate less than eighteen dollars in the future. The higher cost of materials, the lessened efficiency of labor and reduction of working hours, affect municipal enterprises even more than private business, and when to the higher cost of city work is added the assessments from the same causes from the state, metropolitan and county, it will be easily seen that we must either have a change in our taxation system or must face a higher tax rate in the future.

Taken all in all, a tax rate of $18.20 is good cause for satisfaction in this city.

In a recent number of the Outlook, Mr. Edward Bok, the well-known editor, confirms in a general way and from a broader standpoint, the recent criticism in these columns of the lack of efficiency in our school system. Mr. Bok refers to college graduates, both men and women, and comes to the conclusion that the modern system of education neglects such essentials as spelling, English, and writing. I am glad to learn that the poor results I have noted in the Newton schools are not local, and that in all probability, they are in accord with the present educational system of the country as a whole. If such is the case, it is high time for those of us, who believe that arithmetic, spelling, writing and English are important factors in success in life, made some organized effort to emphasize those apparently neglected studies. I do not believe that these studies are within the scope of the high school or college, they should have been learned while the pupil is in the grade schools, even if music, drawing and sloyd and a few other studies of that nature were given less time.

The present educational system reminds me of a broad and very shallow river, where the water (representing the children) flows languidly in numerous channels, stagnating in pools and shoals, finally reaching the larger body of water of life, where it makes hardly a ripple in its surface. On the other hand the former ("old-fashioned") (if you please) system of education, confined the water into narrower channels with clearly defined banks, the current sweeping over all obstacles and entering the river of life with enough impetus to make some impression. A few essentials well taught are far better than a multitude of things skimmed over.

Attention is invited to the appeal of the Mothers' Rest for funds to continue its excellent work for mothers and children of Boston.

Gardner and Goetting would make a great team, literally and literally. It would be Gus and Gus, so to speak.

WE NEED YOUR HELP

In Boston there are, oh, so many mothers and little children who never have a chance to get out of that crowded city—never know what fun it is to have plenty of room, lots of fresh air, fine big trees with apples on them, a kind person to give them the right kind of food and plenty of it, a good place to sleep through the cool quiet nights. So, if we are told of a place called "The Mothers' Rest" at Needham Heights where all these things are to be had and more, too, wouldn't we like to invite some of these mothers and their little children to stay for two whole weeks and get rested and strong? Especially those mothers who have to go out every day and work hard and perhaps come home at night to hold a sick baby in their arms. The Rest would be just the place for them and wouldn't the mother and baby go back feeling strong and well.

There were eighteen mothers and thirty-two babies and children there last time and such a happy crowd. It would be great if the children and young people could furnish some entertainment to get some money to help this lovely charity—give a veranda (chance party, or piazza tea or a summer church collection. I know of some girls who had a little lemonade stand, and who made and sold may baskets and candy and these same little girls arranged a little dancing entertainment, the very cunningest thing. They danced on a rug on the walk between two houses and arranged four screens to form a dressing room, where their costumes were changed with surprising rapidity.

Two danced at a time. One dance, I remember was called "The Reapers." Wasn't that a cute idea to get money for the Mothers' Rest?

If any of my readers arrange to do something to help us I would like to hear from them so I could thank them personally.

We need your help so much, for this is an expensive season for us.

Checks payable to the "Mothers' Rest Association," sent to Mrs. F. S. Risteen, 9 Moreland avenue, Newton Centre.

TREMONT TEMPLE—"Les Miserables," Victor Hugo's wonderful story, has been photo-dramatized. The first presentation in this country of this spectacular production will take place in Boston, on Monday September 1, at the Tremont Temple. The engagement is for a limited time only. The story is produced in 9 reels that combine a series of thrills that is said to surpass all former achievements in motion photography. The production is the work of the Eclectic Film company who engaged for the leading characters many of the most famous French stars of the day, and is said to have cost a tremendous sum, far in excess to any other similar production. In every one of the pictures there is a stir and thrill from start to finish.

MR. DANIEL CRONIN DEAD

Mrs. Mary Cronin Walsh, wife of Mr. James H. Walsh of 21 White avenue, Newton Centre, recently suffered a severe loss by the death of a dearly-beloved brother Daniel Cronin in Roxbury. He was practically the only one of her kin in this country, and there was naturally an affectionate attachment between them. Up to Saturday evening Mr. Cronin was in perfect health and left the house after reading the evening papers, to visit a barber shop and make one or two other calls. About eleven he was returning on a trolley car when the accident that caused his death occurred. In some manner he got thrown under the car, and the heavy rear trucks passed over his right leg at the ankle. He was immediately taken to the hospital where an amputation was performed. Later another and higher amputation was found necessary, and the sad result was his passing away on Monday night, surrounded by his sorrowing family.

A writer in the Brockton Searchlight, who knew Mr. Cronin from the cradle to the grave, says of him:

"Daniel T. Cronin was a blacksmith by trade, and was reputed to be one of the very best mechanics in his line in Boston. He came from a family highly endowed with mechanical genius, his father, the late Timothy Cronin of Castletown, in the County Cork, Ireland, being unquestionably the best all-round blacksmith in the province of Munster. His mother before her marriage was Mary Dwyer, of Iries, and was an exceptionally good, capable, and intelligent woman. Both parents ranked high for intelligence, uprightness, honor and integrity among their class, and these fine inheritances were transmitted to their bright progressive and enterprising children."

"As a young man Daniel Cronin was a favorite with young and old. His fine character endeared him to every neighbor, and his exceptionally fine physical appearance made its impress upon all beholders. From his father he inherited the regular features, and handsome brown eyes of the Celt, as well as the deep intelligence and sturdy uprightness of character which distinguished both. From his mother's side he was also heir to intelligence, honor and integrity, and while not boastful, he was always proud of his honored lineage."

"At an early age he went to work in his father's shop, despite the protests of both parents, whose desire was that the promising and handsome young fellow should have a good education. He had an inherent passion for the trade, however, and he seemed to be unable to resist the call of the forge. He was never permitted to leave school until after he was 16 years of age, and as he was a bright and brainy young fellow, under the tutelage of a splendid staff of teachers, and averaged 220 days a year at school, he was fairly equipped in school education when he donned the apron of a blacksmith by his father's side. While still a 'kid' in the forge he had made a wonderful record in skilled workmanship. On one occasion in the late 70's an American who had lost his watch-key and was unable to procure one in the village was advised to go to 'Cronin's Forge,' with the supplementary tip that if the Cronin's could not help him out, there was no relief for him until he found a jeweller in the nearest city. The boy was the only one in the shop when the 'Yankee' arrived. With his eye the natural young mechanic measured the little bar into which the key ought to fit, and immediately proceeded to work upon a horse-nail, with the result that in a few minutes he produced a key, with the rude tools and out of the rough iron, that worked admirably. The Yankee was amazed and delighted. The rude key filled the bill until he got back to America, and for many years afterwards he treasured as a souvenir the unhandsome but useful watch-key that was made for him by the boy blacksmith of Bantury Bay."

"At the age of about 18 Daniel Cronin came to this country. In the early 80's he married Miss Mary Glynn, of Roxbury, and since that time he has always made his home in that section of the city."

He leaves besides his only sister, Mrs. Walsh, a widow and three children, Timothy, William, and Lillian; His aged mother and brother Patrick also survive, both living in Ireland.

NORUMBEGA PARK

The excellent character of the offering at Norumbega's world renowned covered open air theatre will bring forth crowded attendances every afternoon and evening this week. Matthew Ott's "I Should Worry" is replete with good music, a superb cast including Bob Ott who takes the part of a wealthy German, and a bevy of handsomely costumed show girls. Novel situations and laughter provoking absurdities are punctuated with many new songs of the whistleable kind. Among the song numbers are "Old Maids' Ball"—"Hello, New York Town"—"Down in New Orleans"—"Chicken"—"Peg of my Heart"—"And the Green Grass Grew All Around" and others. Then there is the usual high class motion pictures. Every Sunday evening at eight an excellent Sunday concert is presented with motion pictures and illustrated songs. Veranda concerts are given every afternoon and evening at the Grape Arbor Cafe where the services and cuisine is all that could be desired. The zoological garden, the new merry-go-round, the swing court, canoeing and boating all have a large following.

Next week the charming musical comedy "The Dainty Quakeress" is the offering.

FIELD DAY

playground and the team representing the West Newton playground. A strong list of athletic sports have been arranged, and the leading athletes of Newton and the surrounding towns will enter. The events consist of 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, half-mile run, mile run, high jump, running broad jump and relay races. There will be dancing on a large platform from 2 in the afternoon until 11.

The field day will be in the charge of J. F. Murphy, assisted by Miss Catherine Cooney, Miss Mary Anderson, Miss Alice Caine, Miss Mary Cooney, Miss Ethel Cooper, Miss Gertrude Dunleavy, Miss Edith Early, Miss Nellie Cooney, Miss Francis Fitzgerald, Miss Alice Gleason, Miss Nellie O'Neill and Miss Helen Warren. The sports will be conducted by Alfred Murray, James Murphy, James Burns, Edward Healey and William Delaney. The committee in charge of the entertainment comprises Roy Early, George Manning, William Delaney, Edward Healey and Lewis E. Connolly.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—Victor Moore, the famous star of George M. Cohan's "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," "The Talk of New York," "The Happiest Night of His Life," and numerous other musical comedies, will make his first Boston vaudeville appearance in years at B. F. Keith's Theatre the week of August 25th, assisted by Emma Littlefield and company in a great revival of his famous travesty, "Change Your Act or Back to The Woods." As the original "Kid Burns" of Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway, Mr. Moore is known the country over. This great comedy feature will be surrounded by a pleasing all star vaudeville bill, practically every act on the bill being new to Boston audiences. Ben Deely and his company, including Marie Wayne, will present the uproariously funny farce, "The New Bell Boy," while a great European novelty is promised in the Three Bartos, an acrobatic turn that is said to surpass anything of its kind ever seen in this country. Other big features will be Goldrick, Moore and Klaess in a novel conceit, "Camping;" Tom Mosher and Co. in a new comedy; Doc O'Neill, the merry wag; Rae Eleanor Ball, the violin virtuoso; Roser's Aerial Dogs in a canine offering; and Billy and Edith Adams, "That Effervescent Pair" in songs and dances.

The Pathe Weekly will present its customary series of motion picture news items culled from all over the world.

CASTLE SQUARE—The sixth season of the Castle Square Theatre under the management of John Craig will begin next Friday evening, August 29th. The play will be the famous comedy, "London Assurance," which ever since its production many years ago has been one of the favorites of the American stage. Its author is Dion Boucicault, famous both as an actor and playwright, and in it he wrote a sparklingly brilliant comedy of the gay manners of English society of the period. It is brimful of action and life, and gay with witty dialogue, and its lively plot involving the adventures of Lady Gay Spanker, of Charles Courtley and of a dozen other actors, is entertaining in the extreme. It is no wonder that "London Assurance" has lived on the stage so long, and its revival at the Castle Square will be especially welcome.

The opening of the Castle Square is always a gala occasion, and the theatre will be crowded to the doors to see this play acted by Mr. Craig and his company. Mr. Craig will himself appear as Charles Courtley, with William P. Carleton as Dazzle and Miss Doris Olson as Lady Gay Spanker, while in other leading roles will be seen Walter Walker, Donald Meek, Frederic Ormonde, Carney Christie, Al Roberts and Florence Shirley.

Mr. Craig is planning a popular season, among the plays to follow being "Under Two Flags," "The Ninety and Nine," "Baby Mine," "The Girl of the Golden West," "Excuse Me," and "We the People."

FIELD DAY

Catholic Union of Newton Has Fine Program For Labor Day

The recently organized Catholic Union of Newton will hold its first field day next Monday on Moran's Field, Waverston St., and a program of entertainment, which should prove highly interesting has been arranged by the energetic members. In making preparations for the event, the club has had the assistance of the several clubs and organizations of the Newton Section, all of whom are desirous of making the first effort of the Union a decided success.

The list of attractions includes an athletic program of 100-yard race for boys under 15 years, a 75-yard race for girls under 16 years, a 150-yard race for boys under 18 years, a boys' three-legged race, sack race, tug-of-war, and a married women's race. In addition there will be a vaudeville show, African Dodge, Breaking Dish, Chinese Laundry, Grab Bag, Hoop-la, Canes, Banners, a band concert, from 4 to 5.30 P. M., dancing from 7.30 to 10.30 P. M., and a display of fireworks in the evening.

The affair is in the hands of capable committees, headed by the general committee composed of President Thomas J. Murphy, James A. O'Donnell, Clifford S. J. White, Joseph P. Witzer, Thomas F. Hanron, Thomas Hickey, Andrew J. Cunningham, Dr. F. Fair, John J. Delaney and Francis J. Nevins. The chairman of the committees are as follows: Grounds, Thomas F. Fitzgerald; Advertising, E. J. Murphy; Novelty, Francis H. McGuire; Special Novelties, Miss Mary Lake; Music and Dancing, J. Harvey Hickey; Games, D. Robert Mahoney; Reception, Joseph H. Witzer; Refreshment, John L. Hennessey. There will be tables on the grounds from the various ladies' auxiliaries, including the Catholic Union Tables, Beechwood Table, Alp Club Table, La Coterie Club Table, Foresters Table, Fremelbam Club Table, Wynona Club Table, Imelda Club Table, Rhododendron Club Table, and Fleur de Lis Club Table.

The officers of the club are Thomas Murphy, president; James A. O'Donnell, vice president; Clifford S. J. White, recording secretary; Joseph P. Witzer, financial secretary; Thomas Hickey, sergeant at arms.

Upper Falls

—Mr. and Mrs. William Washington Elliot street observed their silver wedding anniversary on Saturday by entertaining twenty-five couples with English dances and old English songs. They received a number of useful and beautiful gifts.

—The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Sheridan, the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Sheridan of Chestnut street, and Mr. John Francis Lynch of Brookline took place Wednesday morning at the church of Mary Immaculate of Boston, Rev. Fr. Danahy officiating. The bride, who wore white crepe de Chine, was attended by Miss Rose Sheridan as bridesmaid and Mr. John Galvin of Boston was the best man. After a wedding trip to Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Lynch will make their home on Boston street, Brookline.

WEDDED IN MAINE

Young—Seccomb Nuptials Attended by Newton People

One of the old churches in North Andover, familiarly called "Uncle Billy's," was the scene, August 19th, of a wedding, beautiful in its simplicity, in keeping with the edifice and its lovely surroundings. It was the second church wedding in all the history of the island.

The contracting parties first met in this charming spot, where their families have been summer residents for many years. The groom, Allan Jewett Young, Brown, 10, son of Mrs. Helen M. Young of Newton Centre, was attended by Warren Johnson, a college classmate, now a Rhodes scholar at Oxford.

The bride, Miss Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Seccomb of Newton, was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Copeland of Newton Centre, a classmate of the bride at Abbott Academy, Miss Hilda Russell of Jacksonville, Fla., Wellesley, '14. The flower girls were Elizabeth Chalmers and Doris Sawyer of Bangor, Me., and Rhoda Young, a sister of the groom.

While the guests were assembling, Sawyer's Orchestra of Bangor, discoursed sweet music and Miss Maude Combs sang "My Love is Like a Red, Red Rose."

The ceremony took place at 11.45 A. M. Rev. Harry C. Hull, a Baptist clergyman officiating, and using the single ring service. The decorations were exclusively green and gold and arbor vitae and golden rod were lavishly used. The bridal party entered by the main aisle, preceded by the ushers, Franklin Russell, Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla., Yale Scientific; Elmer Horton of Providence, R. I., Brown, '10; the flower girls in dainty white with yellow ribbons, carrying baskets of golden rod, the bridesmaids in yellow flowered crepe with ribbon and lace trimmings; the maid of honor in white embroidered voile, the bride in a very attractive gown of silk voile with Irish crochet over messaline, leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. At the altar, which had been transformed into a bower of green, they were met by the clergyman and groom.

After the ceremony the friends went to the "Seaside House" for an informal reception and wedding breakfast. Those attending the wedding beside the members of the immediate families were the friends in the summer colony at Ryder's Cove, one of the prettiest spots on the Maine coast.

The bride evaded the shower of sweet peas which had been planned for her going away by escaping to a motor boat on the shore which took the couple to Kidder's Point, where they were to take a train for the wedding trip.

The many friends of these estimable young people wish them "bon voyage" for life.

ALCOHOL CHAT

We say Graves' Grain Alcohol is the best and purest alcohol distilled. We don't ask you to take our word for it, but you can prove it to yourself by purchasing from your druggist either an 8, 16 or 32 ounce bottle of Graves' Grain Alcohol bearing the firm name signature, Chester H. Graves & Sons over the neck and cork of each bottle.

PLAYGROUND FIELD DAY

Children from All Over the City Enjoy Themselves on the Newton Centre Playground

That excellent work has been accomplished on the various playgrounds of Newton this year was clearly demonstrated at the second annual field day, held last Friday on the Newton Centre Playground. The children from the eight playgrounds on which supervised play has been directed this summer, numbering about 1000, proved delightful entertainers for the large and distinguished gathering that assembled to witness the work.

Mayor Hatfield, several members of the Board of Aldermen, city officials and members of the clergy of Newton witnessed the affair, and were warm in their praise for the work accomplished by Superintendent Ernest Hermann with the children. The affair took the form of an all day outing, the children enjoying a basket luncheon during the noon, while the band which was furnished through popular subscription, rendered classical and popular selections.

The playgrounds that participated in the exhibition were Farlow Park, Stearns, Cabot Park, West Newton Common, and Eden ave. Playground, Newton Lower Falls, Newton Upper Falls, Newton Highlands and Newton Centre and Thompsonville. In the fine list of events which were conducted, the representatives of the West Newton Playgrounds scored the largest number of points, with 42. Stearns ranked next with 40 and the Upper Falls children came in a good third with 30 points.

One of the leading events of the day, the deciding baseball game between the Newton Upper Falls girls' team and the Stearns nine ended in a protest, but the matter was later adjusted by the directors, giving the victory and also the championship of the city to the Upper Falls girls, by the score of 18 to 13. Miss Nina Porter was the captain of the winning team, bringing the victory to her team mainly through her excellent pitching. Miss Margaret Considine was the captain and pitcher for the losing team, but the other members of the nine gave her poor support.

When the various contests were to be ushered in, the children, grouped in various parts of the field, with their colors flying, made a delightful picture. The Farlow Park children being known by their band of old blue ribbon, while the children from the Stearns Playground were profusely decorated with Kelley Green. The color of the Cabot Park group was pink, West Newton Common and Eden ave. Playground was navy blue, Lower Falls was red, white and blue, Upper Falls was orange, Newton Highlands was Cardinal red and of the Newton Centre children, yellow was the dominating color.

The special exhibitions given by the various playgrounds, were a feature of the day's program, each showing a different line of amusement which is being instructed by the directors. The children from Farlow Park were given a hearty applaud on completing an Indian folk dance, under the direction of Miss Mildred Burr, the director. An exhibition of the Scottish reel was very well given by the children of the Eden ave. Playground, under the direction of Miss Martha T. Rice, and a group of children from the Upper Falls Playground under Miss Margaret Harding, went through a drill, showing marching tactics.

"Three Deep" a game which has proved very popular with the children was demonstrated by the children from the Newton Highlands Playground, under the direction of Miss Stella G. Cuddy, and the boys from this playground played a relay baseball game, with the director, Robert P. Barry officiating. The Newton Centre special exhibition, a dance "Marching Through Georgia" was a decided hit with the spectators, the children going through a fine drill, with Little Ruth Buffum, heading the line of march carrying Old Glory. Miss Elizabeth Loring directed this event.

The athletic events for both boys and girls were warmly contested, and many of the directors have unearthed several stars, which should later become prominent in High School athletics.

All the playgrounds participated in the folk dancing, three prizes being awarded for the best all round work. Four different dances, Hop Mother Anika, Czolugar, Carrousel and Ace of Diamonds, were demonstrated and the prizes were awarded to Miss Mary O'Callaghan and Miss Dorothy Cunningham of the West Newton Playground and Miss Pearl Porter of the Upper Falls Playground. The judges were Mrs. Hatch of West Newton, Miss Barnes, supervisor of playgrounds in Waltham; Miss Wilson, supervisor of playgrounds in Watertown, and Miss Collins, supervisor of playgrounds in Somerville.

The Upper Falls children won the last event of the program, in which 10 couples from each playground took part in the folk dance.

The winner of each event was awarded medals of gold and silver, bearing the seal of Newton, by Charles F. Johnson, Jr., of Newton Highlands, secretary of the commission. The summary:

MR. HASKELL DEAD

Division Engineer of the B. & A. Dies at Newtonville

Mr. Edward A. Haskell, 49 years of age, Division Engineer of the Boston and Albany Railroad, died at his home in Newtonville, 65 Walker street, Sunday August 24. Mr. Haskell has been in failing health nearly two years. He was known throughout the state as an engineer of unusual ability. He was born at Deer Island, Maine in 1864, educated in East Boston public schools, Chauncy Hall and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the class of 1887. He began work for the Railroad company as a surveyor twenty-six years ago. In 1884 he was made Division Roadmaster with headquarters at Springfield. In 1903 he removed to Pittsfield to take charge of a new division. In 1907 he was appointed Division Engineer with headquarters in Boston and since that time he has resided in Newton. Mr. Haskell was at one time President of the N. E. Roadmasters Association and always took a prominent part at the association's annual conventions. He was a member of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers and of the New England Railroad Club.

Mr. Haskell leaves an enviable record among the officers and men of the Boston and Albany Railroad for exceptional ability and integrity. He was respected and beloved by all who knew him as a man of the highest type of refinement and character. Besides his widow he leaves two sons Paul C. of New York City and Allan G. of Boston. The funeral service was held at his late residence Wednesday morning at eleven o'clock and was conducted by Rev. George S. Butters, D. D. of Auburndale. The burial was in Lowell.

THE IMPORTANCE OF PLAY

Its Hygienic and Pedagogical Importance During School Hours

The following address was made this week by Playground Director Ernst Hermann of this city at the Fourth International Congress on School Hygiene, held at Buffalo, N. Y.

From whatever point of view we study the value of play as a part of every child's school education we will find that it is of such great importance both pedagogically and hygienically, that we cannot any longer look upon it only as a valuable substitute for the spanking rod or a kindness and special concession on the part of the teacher who finds herself at the end of her powers for keeping up interest and deportment. Nor do we meet the needs of our High School scholars by a tolerance of athletics as a kind of moral enema for congested scholarly ambitions.

The nearest approach to a real understanding of the pedagogical value of play we find in Froebel's methods. But unfortunately his Kindergarten system is very badly applied to present day needs of the 20th century child and the present physical and mental make up of children. As Froebel's methods are being taught today in the school rooms they are used about two years too early. The Montessori method is pedagogically as well as hygienically much nearer the actual needs of the average American city child of 3, 4 and 5 years of age. But both these methods will not meet the physiological needs of the children unless more out door free play with proper equipment is added.

Our one morning and one afternoon recess and our artificial system of school room gymnastics, relief drills, breathing movements, fancy calisthenics, corridor promenading, change from so-called purely intellectual to semi-intellectual or manual training lessons are absolutely insufficient for the daily physiological needs of children. Two or three physical training lessons a week are sufficient for the development of special skill and the acquisition of knowledge of good poise, forms of exercises, and for training in military discipline and for the training of perfect and instant reactions. Such lessons should be classed with all other pedagogical means and must be subject to the same recreational variations.

But all these things do not insure the best possible functioning of the child's whole physical system. Without the perfect functioning of all the vital parts of the mechanism good and really efficient mental processes are impossible. If forced pedagogical means are now employed to secure attention and deportment the child's powers of concentration and attention, discrimination and logic, interest and enthusiasm, are systematically weakened, and, in a few years deteriorate beyond recovery. The prolonged forcing of mental processes is always in itself a serious offence in education. With children not in perfect condition, due to slower circulation of blood and lymph and respiration with increased presence of waste products of metabolism, due to the growing process plus sedentary work, such forcing means a constant nerve waste which must finally result in breakdown.

It is hardly necessary for me to point out to this audience our rapidly increasing knowledge of the real function of the lymphatic system, nor do I need to emphasize here the fact that the lymphatic system does depend upon the muscular system for its proper functioning even more than the blood system.

From birth on the child unconsciously shows us the way nature proceeds. It is alternately active and at rest, apparently busy at all times. Yet there is alternation of activity and repose. Always it grows in spurts. A period of growth is followed by a period of settling down. Nature in all its processes proceeds rhythmically. To force (not necessarily by physical means) a young child of 4 years to a continuous mile-walk will very seriously affect his neuro-muscular system, since the powers of endurance mature very late in life. Prolonged severe exertion will result in a stunted growth of the physical body. How much more dangerous are our present day school methods of long continued and forced attention under lowered physiological efficiency? My first contention therefore is this:

The periods of forced attention under sedentary indoor conditions must be shortened.

With children of 4 and 5 years, 15 minute periods of directed and spontaneous activities should alternate.

Six, seven and eight year old children should have half hour periods. The periods should alternate indoors and outdoors.

From there on throughout the rest of the grammar grades the child should have at least twenty minutes in every school and consequently in a too early application to purely mental training when it enters school.

The Kindergarten and the Primary schooling is today in the greatest need of our profoundest attention. If we can correct this we can do away with many of the so-called fads and fancies during later school years.

In my opinion no other age of childhood is more largely handicapped than the pre-schooling age. The home environment of a child up to 7 years of age is our greatest drawback today.

Ash barrel backyards and clothesline rear porches are the training grounds of young America. The streets are now unsafe. The houses are overstocked with ready made furniture. Stairs, alley ways and narrow sidewalks are all that is left. Even in the better homes the child has no room to play. Creeping among fancy furniture and brick-a-brack, dressed up like dolls, hours a day in perambulators and not even a mother's lap for first leg-work are possible.

Where do our boys get their opportunities for chores and occupation play? The father is never home and the old-fashioned doing of things in the home and for the home have disappeared. Everything is ready made.

Even if a young child does get valuable sense stimulations from his environment, where is the chance for him to react upon them with his muscles? There is no educational value in sense stimulation without motor reactions. How then can he have a well developed motor brain when he comes to us in the schools? Is it wise under these conditions to submit him at once to intellectual training? Is it wise to submit him to long periods of sedentary training? Is it wise to demand application and concentration?

Would it not be better to give him for several years more an environment where spontaneous application is possible, where his motor brain will have time to mature and where his social instincts can be cultivated by means of free and wholesome mingling with other children? Let us postpone our intellectual education a number of years and let us start a few years earlier to provide for him a playground where his imagination may be stimulated and where his spontaneous enthusiasm may find wholesome and diversified motor outlets.

My second contention therefore is that we must cut off at least two years of our primary school desk education and substitute for these playgrounds and play yards, and that we must get hold of the children at least 2 years earlier than we do by providing baby play grounds in every primary school district.

By playgrounds I do not mean only a ball field or a place filled with swings and other apparatus, but a place where the child can get in touch with "mother" earth, a place resembling an old fashioned backyard and garden and farm, a place full of opportunities for doing things, for caring for things, for testing latent powers of muscular control. A place filled with opportunities for occupation play and for imitation of every thing that moves and acts.

The Social Value of Play

All students of social conditions must be convinced by this time that a mob spirit is very rapidly developing in all our cities and towns. We must concede that our American "mob" are made of very young people, and we must further, to our shame, admit that these young people have received their education in our American schools. True, many of them live in a home environment which is still elementally foreign.

It is truly astonishing to observe the rapid deterioration of the manners of our young people almost as soon as they leave the school building. It is remarkable how soon even the school youngsters degenerate during vacations when they are out of their glad school clothes.

They very soon seem to turn into a crowd of young unmannerly rowdies with nasty speech and nasty manners. Those who are students of social conditions and those who have come into contact with the "gangs" in our parks and playgrounds are astounded by the fact how rapidly boys and girls, who have only recently graduated as "angels" turn into a tough lot of loafers. Not all of them by any means, and not even a majority of them, but enough to make us wonder what is wrong with the school system.

The real culture which a boy and a girl get in school will show itself best if he turns into a self respecting wage-earner, if he turns into a self respecting citizen, if he becomes an honest voter and a law abiding citizen.

What is wrong then with our schools. Is it perchance the hard-working teacher or is it the system. Is it that the teacher has no real chance to know the boys and girls sufficiently long enough to let their sweet example bear fruit? Can it be that the average teacher has lost her or his hold over the boys and girls because the disciplinary powers have been taken away from them and the "bad" boys do not get spanked sufficiently because the father may have a political pull. This is all more or less true. It all has more or less contributed to the ineffectiveness of over coming insubordination and vicious habits. But the greatest fault lies in our ridiculous system of marshalling the children in the schools from the first minute to the last. It is a straight-jacket discipline with the desk as the jacket, the room as the cell, and the magnificent "aesthetically" furnished building as the prison, where no boy may shout nor step from room to room, where they are marched two by two in lockstep to the basement and finally out of the building. Where the teacher comes a half of an hour earlier than the children and where they leave a half of an hour after the children have left, and where the children come noiselessly and on tip toes into the class room to step into the straight jacket for the day. Never a chance for the teachers to see their pupils in a truly uncontrolled state.

There is today hardly need for more arguments in favor of more outdoor school work, but there is still much need of a better understanding by the general public of the high educational value of the motor-activities in the development of an efficient central nervous system, and the great influence which organized play may exert in the building of character. Organized recess exercises not only insure an equal opportunity for every child, be he weak or strong, but it gives the teacher an opportunity to know the real child—the child as he unbends during spontaneous action, as he unfolds during intense application and when close to nature. The schoolroom child is a product of an artificial environment. The playground child is a product of fundamental emotions and hereditary instincts. To get hygienic results with normal children no means can possibly surpass in value such vigorous outdoor activities as running, leaping, skipping, bending, twisting, and reaching, especially if they are the result of spontaneous interest and unconscious application. We have, therefore, in the plays and games of children and the sports and athletic activities of youth a most excellent agent in maintaining physiological efficiency during school hours.

Play, then, as a method of recreation and of physical training is unsurpassed, because it uses established coordinations and fundamental muscles, especially if a variety of games are practiced. It develops vital and functional strength rather than mere muscular strength, on account of the large extent to which the majority of the big groups of muscles are involved. It is Plato said, "The play of children is the mightiest influence on the maintenance or non-maintenance of law." It is this emphasis on the benefit play, this great ethical force, which judges of juvenile courts see in playground activities, and it is this reason that I believe in making play a part of our school education. Unlike other cultural agencies, for development of the moral side of nature we return to the fundamental activities of the body to get the highest of character. If we once appreciate that mind, body and soul are interdependent, we shall see that the soul best be reached through well directed and organized physical activities which the whole child is interested in. Physical education offers more opportunities for ethical culture than other ethical agency because it separates these three parts. Through play, the mind accumulates knowledge by learning to play "fair" we develop character; by conquering odds, grow in courage; by supporting mates, we foster cooperation. It is "playing the game" that one acquires chivalry, fosters civic virtue, and develops loyalty.

WORTH PAGE OF SCRAPBOOK

Some More or Less Novelties That Will Give Relish to the Allotted Daily Menu.

A Point in Preparing Cucumbers—It is well to know that a good soaking of sliced cucumber in cold water before it goes to the table will render it much more digestible. Take thick parings from the fruit, removing every bit of the green which holds the bitter principle next to the skin. Slice water thin and lay in ice water for an hour. If a little salt is added it becomes even more digestible, but its tender crispness will be lost. A combination of cucumber with little young onions is also healthful and appetizing.

Green Pea Salad—Shell peas to make a quart. Boil in salted water to cover, seasoning with mint, salt and pepper. Drain thoroughly, pour in a salad bowl and while still hot season with a tablespoonful of butter. Set on the ice to chill while you prepare the dressing. Rub smooth in a basin the yolks of three hard boiled eggs, season with a half-teaspoonful each of salt and white pepper and a half-teaspoonful of made mustard. Blend carefully then beat in, little by little, four tablespoonfuls of olive oil. When thick add gradually a tablespoonful and a half of cider vinegar; pour over the peas and serve.

Peas with Mint—The English custom of adding a few sprigs of fresh mint to green peas while cooking is an agreeable one to most palates. They also use mint with dressed cucumbers.

Mint Vinegar—Now is the time also to put up mint vinegar for flavoring purposes when the fresh mint cannot be obtained, and the dried mint of commerce lacks the "woody" flavor that you are used to. Put the washed mint leaves in a wide-mouthed bottle, but do not pack. Fill up with good cider vinegar. In three weeks uncork and pour off the clear liquid into another bottle, corking tightly. If a little strip of horseradish is added to each bottle before sealing, it can be kept through the winter.

VALUABLE HINTS TO COOKS

Proper Method of Serving Asparagus to Get Best Flavors—Turnip Cups Also Very Good.

Asparagus Steamed—We are indebted to Sir Henry Thompson for this recipe. He says: "A hint about boiling asparagus is worthy of mention, since the proper method is rarely followed by English cooks. Asparagus of the stouter sort always, when of the giant quality, should be cut of exactly equal lengths and boiled standing heads upward in a deep saucepan. Nearly two inches of the heads should be out of the water—the steam sufficing to cook them—as they form the tenderest part of the plant, while the hard, stalky part is rendered soft and succulent by the longer boiling which this plan permits. Slide the asparagus (they should be tender in about 30 or 40 minutes) out very tenderly on an inverted sieve with a cloth laid on it."

Turnip Cups—Boil and halve turnips. Scoop out the centers and fill with peas, carrots in dice, beans or beet root—anything, in short, that will form a pleasant contrast in color. These can be put round a dish of lamb or veal. The scooped out part can be used for a puree and the cups put round it. Before filling the cups, coat them with white sauce.

Turnips au Mouton—Young turnips are required, shaped according to taste. Sufficient butter is then to be melted in a stewpan. It should just cover them in a single layer and the cooking should be gentle or they are liable to break. Cook 30 to 40 minutes. A great improvement in flavor is effected by parboiling them in white stock. Serve as they are, or sprinkle with chopped parsley or capers. They are nice with lamb or veal.

Greens a la Creme.

Wash and boil two young cabbages in the usual way; press them between two plates to drain the water from them. Roll a lump of butter the size of an egg in some flour; stir it over the fire with a wooden spoon till it is quite smooth, but not in the least colored. Add gradually a quarter of a pint of cream, a teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of pepper and one eighth of a nutmeg grated. Simmer 10 minutes and serve poured over the cabbages. Time, from 15 to 20 minutes to boil the cabbage. Sufficient for five or six.

To Revive Cut Flowers.

To revive cut flowers plunge the stems into boiling water, and by the time the water is cold the flowers have revived. Then cut the ends of the stems and place them in cold water.

For the Coal Scuttle.

When you have purchased a new coal scuttle have the carpenter cut a piece of wood to fit the bottom. This prolongs the life of the scuttle, and the wood once cut will last indefinitely.

Greening.

Wash a handful of young spinach leaves, pound them in a mortar; put the bruised leaves into mullin and squeeze out as much juice as required; use sparingly until desired shade is obtained.

Dark Steamed Pudding.

Two cups flour, half cup milk, half teaspoonful soda, half cup molasses, mixed; one tablespoon chopped suet, half cup chopped raisins, half teaspoon cloves.

USE STRAWBERRY AS FLAVOR

How This Most Popular of All Summer Fruits May Be Put to the Best Use.

Old Fashioned Strawberry Shortcake—Put four cups sifted flour into a mixing bowl, add half teaspoonful of salt and mix well. Chop in three large tablespoons butter. Dissolve one level teaspoon soda in a little hot water and add with a well beaten egg to one large cup sour cream or rich sour milk and one tablespoon sugar. Mix well together with a spatula or flexible knife, but do not handle more than is necessary. Roll lightly and quickly into two thin sheets. Bake in well greased tin. Lay one sheet brushed with butter. When done separate them and cover the lower half with a thick layer of crushed and sugared strawberries. Place the second shortcake on top of berries, cover with whole berries, dust with powdered sugar and serve with thick cream. Sweet milk and baking powder can be used instead of sour milk and soda.

Strawberry Charlotte Russe Cake—Whip one pint cream until the point of the whip is discernible. Then add enough bar sugar to sweeten, whip in the whites of two eggs and flavor with strawberry. Spread this on layers of sponge or any nice cake and over the whole tumble a box of hulled strawberries. Pour over this the pint of whipped cream and serve from large platter.

Strawberry Foam—Mash one cup hulled berries and pass through a sieve. Beat one cup cream until stiff and the whites of two eggs until dry. Gradually beat into them half a cup powdered sugar and continue beating until very stiff. Then fold in the cream and strawberry juice; set on ice to chill and serve very cold in thin glasses.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

A few drops of oil of lavender scattered through a bookcase is said to preserve the books from mold in damp weather.

To prevent the contents of a kettle boiling over on the stove, wipe the inside of the kettle around the top with butter.

In making a cocoanut pie or custard, soak the cocoanut in the milk for a few minutes before adding the other ingredients.

As soon as tongue is boiled tender it should have cold water run over it for a minute; then the skin will slip off easily.

When furniture does not actually need polishing it is a good idea to wipe off thoroughly with a cloth dipped in linseed oil.

There comes an iron stand provided with a clamp. If this is fastened securely to the ironing board or table there will be less danger of the iron slipping off on the floor.

Whitefish may be had good almost throughout the year, but they are in their prime early in the year. The whitefish is light and delicate, and in choosing it you must examine whether the fins and flesh be firm.

Peppernuts.

Four pounds brown sugar, one pound currants, one-fourth pound citron, one-half pound almonds, one quart buttermilk, one tablespoon each of ground cloves, allspice, soda and salt, two tablespoons coreander, one teaspoon each mace, pepper and grated hartshorn. Pour boiling water over almonds and remove skins. Chop citron, currants and nuts very fine and put them in the pan with the sugar and spices sprinkled on top. Stir hartshorn into one pint sifted flour, add buttermilk and enough flour to make as stiff as bread dough and roll it long. Cut in small pieces and make round as a marble. Put these in one and a half inches apart and bake brown. This amount will make about half a bushel.

Scorched Linen.

If, when ironing a shirtwaist or other white garment, a place should become scorched, it is unnecessary to launder the whole garment, according to Woman's Home Companion. Lay the scorched portion over a deep saucer or cup, and with a teaspoon press the cloth down to the bottom of the dish while you pour in some boiling water. In a few minutes lift from the water, wring in a cloth, and let dry sufficiently to press, after which you can not tell where the garment was scorched.

To Destroy Carpet Bugs or Moths.

Mix thoroughly with two quarts of water three ounces of salt, one ounce of alum, one ounce of chloride of zinc. Let it stand over night in a covered vessel. In the morning pour it carefully into another dish, leaving all sediment behind. To use, dilute this with two quarts of water, then sprinkle it over the edges of the carpet and to the distance of a foot from the wall. This will not injure the carpet, and is said to be a sure remedy for the pests.

Tasty Dish Made With Lamb.

Press lamb as you do corned beef. When cold slice in thick slices, dip in egg, then cover and fry in deep fat. Serve with or without tomato sauce. Lamb stock combined with tomato makes delicious soup. Minced lamb on toast is nice for breakfast. Lamb pie or stew is nice. When making a meat pie have the filling cold as possible and bake at least half an hour. If crust is thick bake longer than that.

NEWTON MAN SELECTED

Mr. H. M. Biscoe Elected Vice-President of New York Central Lines

Mr. Howard M. Biscoe of Lake avenue, Newton Highlands, was elected last Tuesday, a vice-president of the New York Central Railroad, and will on Sept. 1st, succeed Mr. James H. Hustis in charge of the Boston and Albany lines of that company.

Mr. Biscoe was graduated from Yale in 1892, and in the same year began his railroad career in the ticket auditor's office of the Boston and Albany. A year later he went to the Central Vermont, where he had a position in the general freight office. In 1896 he went back to the Boston and Albany as clerk in the office of the general traffic manager. From 1898 to 1905 he was foreign freight agent for the company at Boston, and then was appointed general freight agent. In February, 1910, he was appointed assistant freight traffic manager, reporting to the general traffic manager at New York. In July, 1911, he was appointed general traffic manager, his present position.

NEARLY DROWNED

Six-Year-Old Boy Dragged from River by a Rake

John Yunick, aged 6, of 1022 Chestnut street, Newton Upper Falls, had a miraculous escape from drowning in the Charles River last Tuesday afternoon. The child, with two other boys, was fishing from a rock in the river near the silk mills at Echo Bridge when he fell in.

The cries of his companions brought Sandy O'Hara, day watchman, and John Fay, fireman, of the mills to the shore of the river, and with the aid of a long rake they fished the boy ashore. He had become exhausted and was unconscious when brought ashore, but after hard work he was resuscitated and taken to his home.

NATICK MAN CHOSEN

Newton Democrats will Support Martin T. Hall for Senator.

At a meeting of the Ward Committee of Newton and the Town Committees of Framingham, Watertown, Ashland, Hopkinton, Sherborn, Weston, Holliston and Natick last Monday evening at Mague Hall, West Newton, the Democrats of the 1st Middlesex Senatorial District nominated Ex-Representative Martin T. Hall of Natick as their candidate for the Senate for the primary election Sept. 23.

Daniel O'Connell of Newton, State committeeman, who saved the place on the ballot by filing nomination papers for himself, and later withdrew in the interest of Mr. Hall, placed the latter in nomination in an enthusiastic speech, and there were speeches by Alderman Murphy, James S. Cannon, last year's candidate, William H. Mague and the two Newton candidates for the House of Representatives, James A. Waters and Francis J. Nevins, Ex-Representative Michael F. McGrath of Natick, B. J. Healey and P. W. Mullen of Natick and others.

Daniel O'Connell of Newton was chairman and Leonard J. Maskell of Newton secretary of the meeting.

CASTLE SQUARE—John Craig opened his sixth season at the Castle Square Friday evening. The house was crowded to the doors, and there was a cordial reception for all the players that make up Mr. Craig's famous stock company. The play was Dion Boucicault's brilliant comedy, "London Assurance," and it will be continued through the coming week. In the cast Miss Doris Olsson is introduced to the Boston Public as Lady Gay Spanker, and she promises to become an immediate Castle Square favorite. Mr. Craig is playing the role of Charles Courtly, and with William P. Carleton as Dazle, Donald Meek as Sir Harcourt Courtly, Florence Shirley as Grace Harkaway, and Frederic Ormonds, Carney Christie, Al Roberts and Mabel Colcord in the other parts, Mr. Craig's season is starting off very auspiciously.

THE MOTHERS' REST

A Little Story of Its Need and Work

Little Gina sat on the tenement-house steps sucking a bit of orange peel. July heat lay heavy over the city and beads of perspiration stood on Gina's red face. She shook her damp curls back and wished an ice cart would go through her street. Still, she sucked rather contentedly at her orange peel and gave a smile to one of the neighbors who passed up the dirty steps beside her saying: "Buon giorno, Gina."

It had been hot for many days—too hot to run and play and, hah! how the street smelled! She missed her baby, too, for tiny as she was she had often to play mother to Roberto, "my baby," as she called him.

Roberto was sick; and all the time above the street noises and the noise of women calling their children, and the cries of many babies, she heard Roberto's fretful wall. In her heart, Gina was wishing for something—she did not know what—something that would make Roberto well. The mother was scrubbing the two rooms which made their home and watching the baby at the same time. She was tired out with working in the exhausting heat and worried about Roberto. "Il mio bambin," she kept saying wistfully. She had given the medicine faithfully which had been given her at the Dispensary, but had tried the cooling bath; but how could the baby get better in that stifling closet of a room?

It was not long since little Giorgio had died in the August heat. No wonder Gina's mother looked pale and worried. Perhaps she could take the baby and Gina to the park where her man had taken them once—but the children had no clothes fit for the street-cars, and then the fares.

Gina still sat on the steps, playing now with a broken bottle and three bits of china she had found in the rubbish. They were of pretty colors and shone in the light; yet she dropped them every little while to listen to Roberto's crying. Minna Klosky leaned out of the window opposite and called to Gina. Minna had been away a long time—two whole weeks.

"Comonover," called Gina, and Minna drew in her head, appeared at the door in a moment and darted across the narrow street to Gina's side. She held a doll in her arms, a real doll, such as Gina had once seen in a shop window. Gina stretched out her tiny motherly arms and Minna let her hold the dollie—just a minute. Soon the children were talking eagerly, Minna, a little older than Gina, talking most. "Green grass, so green," she cried excitedly, and white flowers, millions of them, like moonlight. "Minna was very picturesque in her speech—"and rooms so great," and she moved her arms wide. "Much to eat, and my dollie they gave me and we swung in a swing up and down," and again she moved her arms to the swinging motion.

Gina's dark eyes glowed. She no longer asked questions; it was too wonderful to her about this new world where Minna had been.

"There were many babies," Minna chattered on, "some sick ones; but they got well. The doctor-man gave us small white pills—sweet like candy—for play medicine."

Gina had stopped listening. "Some sick ones; but they got well," was the last thing she heard and the words kept going over and over in her head. Presently she left Minna and rushed up the steep stairways as fast as her baby legs could carry her to tell the mother of the wonderful place where there were no hot streets, but much grass, where all the babies got well.

"Who took them there?" asked the mother. Gina dropped her head, she did not know that. But a ray of hope lit up the mother's face as she ran across the street to ask the question. "It was 'the mission lady' who took them," said Mrs. Klosky, "The Mission Lady!" Gina's mother looked doubtful again. Since her man had lost his job she had had to work so hard that she could not take Gina to the Mission, could not buy her dress or shoes to wear; she did not like to return to the Mission now for a favor. But the thought of Roberto was strong. She would go tonight and see if there were a chance for her to take the baby to the coolness of that wonderful place.

"Yes," said the "Mission Lady." "I remember you and little Gina. I tried to find you and to see why you didn't come any more to the Mission, but they said you had moved away—no one knew where. Perhaps there is a chance for you and your baby at the Mothers' Rest, if they have money enough to keep it open longer. I shall find out tomorrow if they will keep it open next month and if they do you shall have the first chance, you and your baby and Gina."

Gina felt sure the chance would be theirs. Her dark eyes danced, for Roberto would get well, and she might get a doll like Minna's. The mother could hardly speak her thanks for even so much of hope. Her lips trembled as she tried to frame the words and her heart spoke in the words of her native language, "Grazie, Signorina, grazie. To-morrow night, come again." The Mission Lady smiled, "I shall know then."

Gina and her mother and Roberto are waiting for their chance. What answer shall the "Mission Lady" give? Will you help them to go? EDITORIAL

The present primary election law of the state is more or less under discussion at the present time and while I have been a strong advocate of this method of nomination for many years, actual experience in its operation for two years, leads me to believe that it has many disadvantages, some of which are inherent in the system and some of which can be improved by legislation. It is folly to claim that the direct primary allows the comparatively poor man a larger opportunity to seek public office. The expense of canvassing any large district for an office, which is relatively unimportant like that of councillor, county commissioner and other county officials, is so great that a poor man is practically frozen out of the running before the race is hardly begun. It is also true of the more important offices of the state, such as governor or congressman, for it is a rare man, indeed, who would have friends enough all over the state or district to do the necessary preliminary work, as volunteers. This defect is inherent in the system and cannot be avoided. On the other hand, there should be fewer officials elected under this system than now. I believe that the people should only nominate and elect such officers as influence the policy of administration, such as governor, lieutenant governor, councillors, United States senators, Congressmen, county commissioners, state senators and representatives.
That all other officers, now elected by the people, should be chosen either by the legislature or appointed by the governor or other administrative heads.

Why, for instance, should the people elect the secretary of the commonwealth, the state treasurer, state auditor or attorney general? These officials could be equally well chosen by the Legislature as by the people.
Why should the judges of the Commonwealth be appointed by the governor, while the clerks of the courts and the district attorneys are elected by the people? Why should such a distinct clerical position as that of Register of Deeds be an elective office, when the duties are absolutely non-political? These changes, by reducing the number of officials to be elected would make the primary law far more satisfactory and practicable than at present.

While I have been aware that there is some public sentiment in the city on the school question, I have been somewhat surprised at the numerous favorable comments which have been made on my recent editorials on that question. The trouble seems to be as I have already suggested that no one has enough technical knowledge of the subject to desire to enter into a discussion with our educational experts.
The matter of expense, however, is one which every tax payer understands, and if every one of my readers who endorse the stand I have taken in these columns would take the time and trouble to either write or telephone their nearest aldermen, it may have some effect when the city government passes on the 1914 budget this fall.
It does no practical good to simply approve the sentiments here expressed, or merely say "Good boy, go for them some more."

The actual school administration is in the hands of the school committee and the appropriations for schools are made by the aldermen. To have the right effect, public sentiment should be directed at these officials. It may be well to remind the tax payers that the school committee are demanding an appropriation of about $375,000 for maintenance during 1914, an increase of about $25,000 over that of the present year. The state for the first time will reimburse the city for some of the (technical) work at the High School, but instead of allowing this rebate of over $20,000 to REDUCE the school budget, the school committee not only demand the whole of the $20,000, but actually ask for more. It should be remembered that in addition to this $375,000 for maintenance, there is something like $15,000 additional expended for repairs on school buildings and about $140,000 annual charges for aerial bonds and interest on school bonds, making a grand total of about $550,000 for school expenses in this city. The superintendent of schools asks in his last annual report, "Do you approve their policy?"

Now is the time to indicate to your alderman or member of the school committee your position on this important question.

The action of the Progressive city committee of Newton in pressing the appointment of additional election officers to represent that party fails to show a serious consideration of the condition of our city treasury. An expense of $832 for this purpose is wholly unwarranted as no one will seriously contend for one moment that the ballots cast in this city will not be honestly counted by the election officers already provided for by law and by the appropriations of the city. The mayor and aldermen should refuse to grant this most unreasonable request.

There are at least two candidates for the Republican nominations next month who are bent on getting there.

A CITY MANAGER

From Ohio, rather than from one of the states most commonly looked upon as laboratories of political experimentations, municipal and otherwise, comes the story of a brand new way of running a city. Dayton, famous for its great flood of last spring and for various other things, is to put itself in the hands of a general manager. The new charter, which it adopted last week, provides not for the commission form of government to which cities have been turning by scores in the past few years since Galveston and Des Moines led the way, but to an even simpler form. There will be a small body of city legislators, whose chairman will be called the mayor, but the entire administration of various city departments, except the schools and courts, is to be put in the hands of a "city manager," chosen by the merit system.
He has the complete power of appointment and removal of his subordinates.
The idea is not unlike that in German municipalities, and it is said that no other American city, Sunter, South Carolina, a place of ten thousand people, has the same kind of a plan. It is at least an interesting and significant development in the attempt to improve the efficiency and economy of municipal administration. It centres responsibility, and if the right kind of manager is chosen it ought to work well.
That is a big "if" however and the experiments may well be tried in small cities rather than in large ones.

CANOE CAPSIZES

Considerable Excitement Last Sunday On Charles River

A frantic mother, endeavoring to save the life of her six-months-old baby, who with her husband and a friend had capsized from a canoe Sunday afternoon on the Charles River at Auburndale, furnished much excitement for several hundred canoeists, who witnessed the remarkable rescue.

The accident happened under the Western Bridge, where the water runs 12 feet deep, and because of the narrowness of the arch the police and canoeists had a hard struggle in pulling the unfortunate from the water.

The occupants of the canoe were going towards Riverside, just under the arch of the bridge, when the canoe overturned. The shrieks of the mother brought to the scene several hundred canoeists who were returning from the band concert.

Patrolman Michael Ryan of the Metropolitan Park Police was standing on the float in front of headquarters when the canoe overturned, and within a few minutes had pulled the mother and father into his canoe, only after a hard struggle in pacifying the woman.

The three older people made it very dangerous for the canoe nearby, all making an effort to grab hold of something to hold them up. A canoeist, who was nearby, suddenly made a dash for the baby when the canoe overturned, but backed away before the older people overturned his canoe. Patrolman Ryan made the short distance from the station to the scene of the accident in a remarkably short time, telling the unfortunate to keep their heads until his arrival.

A spectator who was standing on Weston Bridge, in assisting to save the woman, threw a life-preserver, rope and all to her, the preserver encircling around the woman's head. The woman gave the officer a hard struggle before he could land her in his boat, she yelling out in broken English to save the child. After the woman had been placed in the officer's boat her husband was next brought to safety, and the other male occupant was pulled into another canoe.

The mother was in a very weak condition when brought to the police station and it was some little time before she was able to leave for her home.
The baby suffered little from the ducking, the quick work of the canoeists no doubt saving it from drowning.

An effort will now be made to put a stop to men and women, who are accompanied by children, to rent boats from the boat-houses on the river, several of the owners having refused to let canoes to these parties all the season.

MRS. BARBER DEAD

Mrs. Amelia B. Barber, the wife of

FOR GIRLS

We send students to Vassar, Wellesley, Smith, Mt. Holyoke on certificate. Many girls after leaving grammar or high school do not wish to go to college. But often they desire advanced work in a new environment with competent instructors, and to select studies best meeting their tastes and needs.

We offer just these opportunities. Students take English or Literature, but the course otherwise is elective. All subjects count for diploma.
Graduation from high school not necessary for entrance.

Special work in voice, piano, violin and pipe organ with eminent Boston masters.

A finely equipped school. New building with new organ; new gymnasium and swimming pool.

All the opportunities of Boston in Music, Art and historical associations are freely used.

A girl, after leaving grammar school, can begin her studies at Mount Ida and continue them until she has an education equivalent to two years in college, taking through her whole course an elective program. Domestic Science, Art, Education.

Exceptional opportunities with a delightful home life.

Prof. C. L. Maynard gave a very interesting address on a "Journey thru the Bahama Islands" last Sunday evening at the Congregational Church, Centerville, Mass.

GLOUCESTER EXCURSION DAILY

Up along the North Shore route by the boats of the Gloucester line is an experience worth taking any time one is within reach of the north shore. The starting time is 10 A. M., weekdays, and 10:15 sharp Sundays and holidays. The rugged charms of Cape Ann and quaint old Gloucester at this season of the year are particularly delightful.

Enough time is given one at the fishing city to give a splendid idea of what the great fishing industry is like.

Auburndale

Mr. and Mrs. Durell have moved into the house at 29 Brae Burn road.

Mr. Henry Kemp of Riverside has recently purchased a new automobile.

Mr. C. H. Hunter has moved into the J. H. Darling house at 15 Maple terrace.

Elliott Stickney of Chaske avenue is visiting George Fiske of Woodland road, at his summer home at Gloucester.

Miss Mabel Jackson, Pianoforte Teacher, Faellen System: pupil of Carl Faellen, will take a few more pupils; teach at their homes. For terms, etc., address Auburndale, Mass.

Advt.

The H. P. Converse Company, of which Mr. Howard P. Converse of Woodland road is president, has been awarded the contract for building about two miles of bulkheads in connection with the construction of the big dry dock to be built by the Boston Dock Directors. The amount involved is $184,136.

WHY NOT?

Newton is priding itself on the fact that it is the home of some of the leading railroad men in this vicinity. Howard M. Biscoe, who has been elected vice president of the Boston & Albany, is the latest. He has an attractive residence on Lake avenue, Newton Highlands. His predecessor, J. H. Hustis, now head of the New Haven, is a resident of Newton.—Boston Globe.

TIME TABLE FOR COOKING

Experienced Housewife Gives Rules for Preparing Fresh Garden Products.

Young fresh garden products require less time for cooking than older ones. One important rule should be followed, namely: When vegetables have been cooked tender, remove from the fire as soon as possible, and remove the water, where there is an excess, as in potatoes and beets. An experienced housewife gives the following time-table for the preparation of vegetables:

Bake potatoes thirty to forty-five minutes.

Steam potatoes twenty to forty minutes.

Bolt potatoes (in their skins) twenty to thirty minutes.

Asparagus (young) fifteen to thirty minutes.

Beets (young) forty-five minutes.

Corn (green) twelve to twenty minutes.

Cauliflower, twenty to forty minutes.

Cabbage (young), thirty-five to sixty minutes.

Celery, twenty to thirty minutes.

Lima or shell beans, forty-five to sixty minutes.

Onions, thirty to sixty minutes.

Oyster plant, forty-five to sixty minutes.

Peas, twenty to thirty minutes.

Parasnis (young), thirty to forty-five minutes.

Spinach, twenty to thirty minutes.

String beans, thirty to sixty minutes.

Summer squash, twenty to thirty minutes.

Turnips (young), forty-five minutes.

Tomatoes (stewed), forty-five to sixty minutes.

When vegetables are served with boiled salt meat, they must be cooked in the liquor from the meat after it has been removed.

Blue Bird Pin.

Since Maeterlinck so appropriately used the blue bird as a symbol of good luck, representing the soul of happiness, it has made a permanent niche for itself in the hearts of the multitude, and it is only quite fitting that this year should see a revival of the "blue bird" pins.

These pins come in three sizes, cuff pins, brooches and bar pins, and are inexpensive.

RUNNING OF THE CHUTE

By NATHANIEL DICKENSON.

It was with the bitterness of gall that her captain swung the Marcus Baldwin into the wharves of Blank City. Disappearing around the bend were the twin stacks of the Queen of the River. Yes, the Marcus Baldwin had been fairly beaten. To the passengers and crew this had been but a friendly race of boats, but to the captains it had meant infinitely more.

Three miles below this landing was the Chute and the locks through which the steamers were lowered past it. To the one first landing at Blankville, then, it meant first reaching the city, a mile below, owing to the long delay at the locks. At the city a certain young lady had said to these two young captains but a week before that he who first arrived on the return trip could marry her.

Upstream there had been no race at all, for the boats, being passenger carriers, were booked to arrive and leave on schedule days. So of the down trip until that last day. Then, with their destination within the hundred-mile mark and some half dozen landings to make, it had been touch and go; the Marcus Baldwin ahead at one landing, the Queen of the River, by some turn of the wheel, at the next. Then had come that last long stretch of some 20 miles, when the Marcus Baldwin, ahead at the last landing, had been overtaken at the crucial point by her rival and the dark featured De Witte had almost danced in his exultation as his boat crept by the other, while Banks had eaten his soul out in sullen silence.

And now the race was as good as lost to him—and the girl. So, at least, he reasoned, with the Queen of the River as good as in the locks.

And he had given up hope as he freight aboard, the lines of the Marcus Baldwin were cast off and she gathered way out into the stream. Yet, the very fact that she was again in motion fanned the dying spark. Was there no hope? Had he left no stone unturned? The Queen of the River's engines might break down! What if, her engines disabled, the freet current in the river should carry her through the Chute? Yet, boats had gone through that safely.

And with this thought Captain Banks grew of a sudden quite dizzy, for what had been done might be done again, he reasoned. Ordinarily a good ten feet of water ran in the Chute. With the river at its present height he could fairly count on finding 15. For a width of 100 feet the Chute was clear of rocks, and the water ran in great oily seas. Yes, it was possible, yes! The risk! A wrecked steamer, lives lost, maybe! But when a man loves as Banks did he throws cost to the wind.

A quarter of an hour later the Marcus Baldwin rounded the bend above the Chute. Below her lay the locks. Half way through these, Banks saw the tall stacks and upper structure of the Queen of the River; a half hour and she would be through them.

It needed but this to steady him in his growing resolve.

"Wilson," he said quietly to the pilot, "I will take the wheel now; you may go on bow."

With a six-mile current hurrying her on and her engines forcing her through it at a 12-knot clip, the Marcus Baldwin swept on. As she neared the Chute, Banks could see that the strong wind from the south had stirred this into a maelstrom of frothing water. Yet, there was not time to turn now, even if he had so wished. On past the lock clip swept the steamer. For a moment it seemed she hesitated on the brink of the yawning Chute, passengers shrinking from her forward decks in horror, then she bowed majestically and plunged forward.

Before she had gone 100 yards she sheered herself halfway across the channel, listing horribly the while. With the energy of despair Banks spun the wheel to meet her. Her bow rose for the moment on a huge crested comber, and the rudder once more controlling, she shot back across the Chute, burying her stern to the lower deck and sending the spray clear over her. Again Banks met her erratic flight, but to have her zigzag back across the storming current this time, missing the white bill of a spray-drowned rock by the width of her sheer.

This could not last. Again she rose for the charge. In the flash of a glance Banks saw the crowded decks of the rival steamer in the last of the locks as she drove by. Down plunged the bows of his own boat again, at an angle which nearly broached her, too, and in which passengers, crew and even captain thought her last moment had come in the shocking roar of waters and blinding spray. Then she rose, slowly at first, and then as a dog, shaking the water from her, and swept into the calm water below the rapids. Far astern, hopelessly out of the race, Banks saw the Queen of the River pulling out of the last of the locks.

And the captain's reward? A month later there was a wedding. (Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

THEIR COLLABORATION

By CAMPBELL B. CASAD.

After an absence of four weeks I was again at Betty's side. For a moment I stood in her cosy little sitting room, admiring her.

"By Jove! Betty," I cried, I was thinking that we might collaborate on a play. A regular romantic drama."

"What's the first act to be?" she demanded.

"Let me see. Oh, yes, the scene is at the seashore, say Atlantic City."

Betty looked suspiciously at me. "How very peculiar!" she murmured, "that is where we first met. But go on."

"The heroine of our play," I began, as if reading from a written description, "is a beautiful, young girl with hair of spun gold, eyes of azure blue, and teeth of pearly whiteness."

"She must be a peach," quoth Betty. "I should like to see her."

"Then kindly step this way," I announced in formal tones as I took her arm and gravely led her before a large plate-glass mirror at one end of the room. There I stopped and ceremoniously cried:

"Madam, behold the divinity of our play."

"Mr. Winton, you are a silly goose," she assured me. Now for the hero."

"Well, let's see; the hero meets her on the beach, gains an introduction through a mutual friend and everything seems smooth sailing. But alas! he finds out on better acquaintance that she is a heartless coquette."

"Brr!" This time Betty was vexed. "In the play," I calmly continue.

"Oh!"

"The climax of the act comes when she leaves for New York in an automobile accompanied by the hero's rival."

"Now, Harry, I protest—he was not the hero's rival," the adorable protests with spirit.

"But this is in the play," I again assure her.

"Well, I don't like it, even in the play."

"All right, I'll let you try your hand on the next act," I concede.

"Where does it take place?" she asks.

"In the auto that has broken down half way to New York."

"Really, Harry, on second thought, I believe that you had better write this act. You have such a vivid imagination, you know."

"Do you think so?" I ask. "Well, then, how's this? As the machine is hopelessly out of order, to avoid a scandal he suggests that they hunt up a minister and get married."

"Which suggestion she emphatically declines to agree to," Betty breaks in. "Why?" I query with assumed innocence.

"The reason is made known in the last act," she replies with irritating evasiveness, "but to continue. While they are plunged in despair a life-saving countryman, seated in a rickety farm wagon makes his appearance and takes them in tow. In this manner they reach the city and the act closes. The last act is the strong one."

"The action takes place in the heroine's home and the setting is identical with these rooms. The hero after a month's absence has called on her for the first time. He is very moody and as the conversation is far from animated, suggests that they write a play."

"At this moment the doorbell rings and the maid enters. She announces: 'Mr. and Mrs. Philip Armstrong.' At this announcement, I start in surprise, then angrily cry:

"What, that chap calling on you? And he married, too. The nerve of him."

"Why, yes, he was even married when we took our automobile ride together," Betty laughs; "that was one reason that we couldn't marry after the accident."

"One reason? Then, what, pray, was the other?"

"He was already my brother-in-law."

"Gee whiz! what a chump I am," I humbly acknowledge.

"I think so, too," the unfeeling girl tells me.

"Can you ever forgive a silly-nilly like me?"

"If you coax hard enough, maybe," Betty relents.

"Then suppose you let me into this family affair," I suggest.

"What do you mean?"

"Suppose you give me the right to call him brother-in-law as well as yourself."

"Do you think that you deserve it?" she asks.

"Well, that's the way all good plays should end," I explain.

"Then for the sake of our play, I consent," and Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong entering at this moment surprise two very red-faced youngsters fondly embracing.

Old City Found.

Surprising discoveries have been made in the effort to excavate the vast baths of Caracalla at Rome, that have lain hidden under 200,000 cubic meters of earth. In this latest excavation it has been found that underneath the baths proper was a subterranean city, consisting of over 4,000 yards of vast galleries used by the slaves and attendants and for marvelous hydraulic, heating and ventilating systems. The drainage is described as splendid, and but for the rise in the level of the river Tiber, which makes it impossible sufficiently to slope the pipes, these drains could still be used.

ARCHERY NOTES

Twelve of The Newton Archers, as the local archery club is called, took part in the Annual Tournament of the National Archery Association of the United States which was held on Soldiers Field, August 19th to 22nd.

The twelve Newton Archers who participated, and most of whom are residents of Newton Centre, not only secured places well up on the list but developed among them a new United States Champion, Mrs. Louis C. Smith of Newton Centre winning in the contest for the championship medal for the Columbia Round. She also won second place in the contest for the championship medal for The National Round and won both the National Handicap Round and the Jessop Wand Shooting Contest.

Miss Dorothy Smith, the 10-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Smith, had the distinction of standing sixth in a list of ten women archers who competed in the Columbia Round and she won the Junior Columbia medal.

Mrs. Burton Payne Gray of Newton Centre was a close competitor for the championship medals and was the winner of one or more range medals.

Master Burton Payne Gray, Jr., 10 years old, competed in all of the men's events and won the Junior Trophy and also the Elmer Spoon.

The Newton Archers entered both a gentlemen's team and a ladies' team in the Team Shoot Contest, and the ladies' team, which was made up of Mrs. Burton Payne Gray, Mrs. L. C. Smith, Miss Norma Pierce won the Ladies' Team Championship. The gentlemen's team comprising Messrs B. P. Gray, S. W. Wilder, C. T. Switzer and Ellis Spear came out third in the contest.

The following are the names of The Newton Archers who competed in this National event:

Mr. Burton Payne Gray.
Master Burton Payne Gray,
Mr. Louis C. Smith,

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—The regular season of the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, will open on Saturday night, August 30, with May Irwin, who will be seen in "A Widow by Proxy," the funniest piece this popular comedienne has had in years. Miss Irwin comes with identically the same cast and production that kept New Yorkers laughing for more than four months last season. "A Widow by Proxy" is the bright and breezy effort of Catherine Chisholm Cushing, who has written several other successful plays. In it Miss Irwin is seen as Gloria Gray, a singing teacher, whose income, at the opening of the play, has dwindled down to almost nothing. She has a bosom friend recently widowed or at least supposed to be. The alleged departed was a scion of a Mayflower family. He married an actress and the family had refused to see her. After his supposed death in Alaska, a rich uncle dies, leaving a legacy to his niece by marriage. To get it she must visit the family. She refuses, but as the money is needed Gloria impersonates the widow and takes her place at the family home. A cousin of the reputed dead husband falls in love with her. She agrees to marry him and then—the dead husband comes back to life. However all ends happily and the deceit owing to its motive does not block the course of true love. In the cast are Clara Blandick, Alice Johnson, Frances Gaunt, Helen Weathersby, Orlando Daly, Lynn Pratt, Joseph Woodbury and Arthur Bowyer. There will be a special Labor Day matinee as well as the usual Thursday and Saturday matinees. And of course the usual Plymouth Theatre custom of paying strict attention to all mail orders will be one of the big features for the season. Therefore, don't hesi-

THE PARABLE OF THE PRIMARY

The value of a political aphorism lies in the practical application of it; and the worth of an election law is found in its ability to give the most benefit to the most voters at the least expense.

When the Amalgamated Jaw-workers of the Commonwealth got together and endorsed the Primary law, they said: "This is a law for the poor and brain-laden citizen; this puts a crimp on the rich dillard, the ward room heeler and the ancient and honorable Fix-it Society. We endorse it heartily."

The Society of Guys Who Never Got a Look-in studied this great measure and remarked: "This is a great law; it solves the problem of the ages; it puts rubber heels on Liberty; gives the Boss the hook and gives a permanent jar to the Man Behind, the Man Higher Up, and the Hereditary Office-holder. It opens the door of Hope and Opportunity for intellectual giants like us who have hitherto been compelled to take a large Back Seat. We approve the Primary enthusiastically."

The Association of Editorial Oracles and Purveyors of Punk and Platitude at their annual Chowder party considered and discussed this new Declaration of Independence. "It is a noble and comprehensive enactment," they declared. "It places honor, office and preferment within the reach of all and several. It opens up vast vistas of place and power for the Plain People who have pennies for papers. The idle rich will no longer dominate the landscape and raise Cain in the business office and advertisers who pay their money and ask no questions will multiply to the glory of a free press. The rule of the people is inaugurated at last."

A poor but vocal candidate, who longed to serve his country and adorn a salary list heard these utterances with a glad heart; too long had caucuses turned him down and machines given him the horse laugh; and now he saw his opportunity to climb the golden stairs of opportunity and office; he knew the day of rectitude and patriotism handicapped by poverty had come, and he would go forth to whoop and win.

He called on the Editor and gave him the thrilling news, and said with pride: "Announce me in your columns;" and the Oracle said: "Gladly will we carry the tidings to the People for $50 a column, $75 if accompanied by a portrait. Your day is here; so is ours. Drop down and see the Business Office."

He sighed and departed to solicit signatures and even at a quarter per they mounted up and came slow. When eager patriots recognizing his worth volunteered to aid him it cost $20 per diem.

When he spouted on corners the cop told him to move on; when he asked for a hall the Janitor asked cash; and everywhere he met the glad, open and receptive hand, until he wondered if the road to power and place led through Bankruptcy.

When the count was made he found himself out at elbows and pockets; the public had not responded to Brains and Patriotism; and a Rich Guy, with dollars and doughnuts, workers and works, cash and convincing arguments had pulled off the Prize.

The poor and vocal candidate scratched his head and said: "This Primary Law is a Promissory Note that never is cashed. It is an empty vessel that makes a lot of noise; but there is nothing in it for the Poor and Lowly. It has the caucus and convention tied to the Post as a game to beat the Cashless Candidate. The Plain People get the new Primary josh; the plutocrat gets the Primary Job."

The Moral of this Fable is that it is folly to believe all that Reformers say and editors write; and it is well to remember that the ears of the American Ass are as long as they ever were.—Truth.

NORUMBEGA PARK—Queen of them all is the apt description of the musical comedy playing at Norumbega's famous covered open air theatre this week. The Dainty Quakeress is presented by a superb company of singers, dancers, comedians and charming show girls, including Nettie Knise, as the demure Quakeress, who won immediate favor with her excellent dancing and whistling. Then there are Herman Hansone, Hope Gage, Leona Belasco, Harold Dunne and our old friend Lew Williams in other principal parts. Twelve song numbers including "Back to Carolina," "Levee Lou," "Quaker Song," "Pretty Girls," and the "Magical Maids" with Herman Hansone and chorus made a decided hit. The usual first-class motion pictures are presented.

For next week the musical farce "The Happy Hunters" is the attraction.

Every Sunday evening an excellent sacred concert is presented with the Universal films of world events. With Orchestra Concerts conducted every afternoon and evening in the Grape Arbor Cafe makes this the ideal place to dine. The Zoological Gardens are always the centre of admiring throngs, while canoeing and boating on the Charles were never more popular than now. Then there is the new merry-go-round, box-ball alleys, rifle range, swing court, electric arcade etc., all for the entertainment of visitors.
